THE ERA
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1904.

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

Another year is coming to an end, and The Era will soon add another twelve month to the long-life which commenced in 1837. It is curious to turn to the first "file" of our paper, and to note from what small beginnings it has grown to its present position. In those days The Era was somewhat pessimistic in its predictions. In an article on "The Drama," in the issue for Sept. 30, 1838, a writer remarked, somewhat quaintly, "It is a curious fact that, as the drama itself is said to decline, the number of its temples has greatly increased. We are ourselves very much inclined to think that the increase of theatres has itself tended as much as anything to the decline of the drama." So that, even in 1838, the poor old drama was "declining;" and, according to certain statements recently made, it is declining still. It must be admitted that, like Charles II., it has been "an unconscionable time dying." Still more gloomy was The Era's view, in 1838, of the financial side of dramatic enterprise. Speaking of MACREADY'S opening of Covent-garden Theatre with Coriolanus, the critic gloomily observed, "The pit and gallery were crowded to excess; and the waving of heads in the one and the noise of the other recalled the early days of our theatrical reminiscences, when fortune, instead of ruin, followed in the wake of dramatic speculation." At the beginning of our career Mrs NESBITT was delighting everyone at the Olympic with a comedy by CHARLES DANCE; quadrilles were a "new foreign importation;" and people still believed in the "British Constitution."

From that small germ, The Era has grown, slowly but steadily, to its present size and importance. It began as a paper of twelve pages of four columns each; it now frequently contains forty pages of five columns each—an increase in columns from forty-eight to two hundred. What is most gratifying is that the prosperity of the paper has been progressive. There has been "no looking back." To err is human; and it is possible that, in our long career, we have made mistakes. But the profession, with characteristic generosity, has always been ready to "forget and forgive" in consideration of the fact that The Era has always been the faithful friend of the class which it represents.

It has always been our aim and endeavour to elevate the profession. We believe that, on the whole, the English playgoing public is healthy-minded and has cleanly tastes, and we have always tried to prevent an honourable calling from being ranked with those which are dirty and degraded. Of course, we have had to pay for our zeal. We have denounced the imposture of announcing a prostitutes' gathering as an "actresses' ball;" we have spoken out plainly in reprobation of plays and performances which we believed to be indecent and demoralising; and we have attacked bogus management. In each case we have been obliged to endure the worry and expense of actions at law, or threats of the same, scarcely less harassing, and altogether we have lost many thousands; but secure in the goodness of our "case" we have cheerfully "borne the brunt." One of the witnesses, on our side, on a certain occasion—he is a leading London critic—was asked in the witness-box why he would not have spoken out as plainly as we had? "I think," he replied very honestly, "it was because I should have been afraid." Whether we have been right or wrong, there has never been any mistake about what we meant, or of our having the "courage of our opinions."

It is not, however, of these necessary but disagreeable incidents that we desire to think at this kindly Christmas season. We prefer not to remember the evil that men have done to us; but we have the keenest pleasure in recollecting the good which, by the generous aid of the profession, we have been able to do to them. We like to think of poor ROSE NORREYS kindly and carefully tended in her sad state, and though insane not unhappy; of the NYE CHART bed, in which the actor, recovering from a serious illness, may rest and recuperate; of the late poor, blind WILLIAM RIGNOLD, whose declining years were made cheerful and comfortable by the combined efforts of The Era and his fellow actors and actresses; and, above all, of the intense interest which the recent discussion in our columns is stimulating in that excellent and admirable institution the Actors' Benevolent Fund. It would be an interesting though laborious task to go backwards through the columns of The Era since its foundation, and to make an account of the thousands of pounds which have passed to the profession through the conductor of this paper. In nearly every case, in addition to a personal contribution, the duties of a treasurer—often onerous and generally unthankful—have been cheerfully performed by him.

These are pleasant reflections, and well befit the "season of the year." Whatever gratitude may be due to us from the profession, our debt to them is far greater. It is they who, by their continued support, have placed our financial position so high as to make all carping criticism of our methods empty and absurd. The well-known epitaph on the famous architect which told the visitor if he wanted a monument to look at the cathedral which he stood in will apply here. The long array of volumes which we call our "files" stand in serried rows attesting the gradual but steady and unceasing success of the paper. In this age of eager competition, when an enterprise has but to be prosperous to attract shoals of imitators, The Era has "stood the test of time." But this is owing, in the first and foremost place, to the loyalty of our supporters, to each and all of whom we wish once again—

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

COVENT-GARDEN BALL.

The fancy dress ball given at Covent-garden on the evening of the 16th inst. attracted a huge crowd, numbering over a thousand. The dresses were varied and beautiful, and among those which took the eye of the early comer were "Lovely Venice," representing a mandoline player hailing from that romantic city. This costume came from Mr W. Clarkson, and gained a ladies' first prize. He was also awarded prizes for "Missions of Mercy," with its emblems of Faith, Hope, and Charity; "Treasures of the Deep," a white satin dress trimmed with coral, seaweed, and pearls; "Henry VII.," &c. One lady appeared as "The Beautiful White Devil," while another dress represented "Bird's-Eye Views of Brighton." "Autumn Tints" and "'Midst Snow and Ice," were not, perhaps, typical of the time of year, but they were extremely effective dresses. There were two first prizes, one for the most artistic costume and one for the dress expressing the greatest originality. These were awarded about two o'clock in the morning, when the grand march past took place. The orchestra was, as usual, conducted by Mr Dan Godfrey.

THE Wyndham A.D.C. presented on Tuesday evening an excellent performance of Mr H. Arthur Jones's The Case of Rebellious Susan to an appreciative and crowded audience in the Town Hall, Epsom. Miss Kate Harris gave a quite intelligent rendering of Lady Susan, and Mr Squire acted creditably as Sir Richard Kato, K.C. The Admiral Sir Joseph Darby of Mr Tom Godfrey was a neat performance. The other parts were very well filled. The lighting of the stage left something to be desired, but the music and management were fairly good. The proceeds will be handed to the local cricket club.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT).

PARIS, THURSDAY, Dec. 22.—The 20th of December, the première at the Folies-Dramatiques of Madame L'Ordonnance, will be memorable in the annals of the dramatic world, for it was on that date the Folies-Dramatiques' Treaty with the Authors' Society expired—and was not renewed. The society ignores M. Richemond, the manager of that playhouse, who returns the compliment, and, for the first time in the memory of men, the society did not send an employee to collect the royalties, like they do every night at the other playhouses in France. M. Chancel, the author of the new vaudeville, will therefore receive direct from M. Richemond the 12 per cent. to which he is entitled. The society over which M. Georges Ohnet presides never thought that M. Richemond would defy them so openly, and they are somewhat taken aback at the attitude he has taken up. Altogether, it is rather a curious state of things; and fresh developments are anxiously watched in the theatrical world.

The name of M. Chancel is known to English playgoers as M. Xanrof's collaborator in His Highness My Husband. His new venture is funny, but very coarse—especially in the last act—even for the case-hardened frequenters of M. Richemond's theatre. Chantenay, a young lieutenant in garrison at Tarascon, has married the daughter of Madame Pepita D'Olivarès, a handsome widow with a volcanic disposition. Pepita admires daring men, and has lost her heart to Victorin, the lieutenant's servant, who, at a bull-fight at Tarascon, killed with his bayonet a bull which had jumped over the enclosure. The inflammable Pepita not only tells her hero that she loves him, but gives him the strongest proofs of her affection. For all that, Pepita has principles. Although belonging to the noble family of Olivarès, she makes Victorin her lawful husband, keeping the marriage secret from her daughter, and especially from the lieutenant, who would be anything but flattered if he knew that his servant had become his father-in-law. And then the unforeseen happens. Craquelet, the colonel of the regiment, admires the buxom Pepita. He commissions the lieutenant to ask her to become his wife, and the lady is compelled to tell her son-in-law everything. In the second act we see Pepita and her husband in their home, and a queer home it is. Victorin's relations, the Duponts, funny-looking peasants, have come to pay Victorin a visit. They are a numerous party, and have even brought their cow with them, and tied her to the door-knocker. The cow, tired of waiting, breaks loose and shows fight, whereupon Pepita calls upon her husband to kill the animal in true toreador fashion. But Victorin is frightened, and it is the colonel who performs the heroic deed. The third act cannot be described. Sufficient to say that Pepita, disgusted with her husband, divorces him and marries the colonel, to the intense delight of the lieutenant, who need no longer be ashamed of his father in-law. To interpret the rôle of Pepita without exaggeration was no easy task, and this Madame Augustine Leriche performed with wonderful skill and tact. The same, unfortunately, cannot be said of M. Milo, whose Victorin was more grotesque than necessary. M. Matrat portrayed the amorous colonel to perfection, and in M. Rouvière the lieutenant found an able exponent. The remaining rôles were well sustained by the other members of the company.

AT the Theatre Trianon, in Le Divorce Impérial, Madame Pauline Savari shows us a Napoleon still very much in love with his wife, Josephine De Beauharnais, but sacrificing his love to his ambition. M. Philippe Garnier supplied an interesting sketch of Napoleon; M. Alexandre, fils, gave a good account of the rôle of Fouché; and Mdlle. Renée Cogé was very pathetic as the unfortunate Josephine.

I AM sorry to have to record the death of M. Talbot, ex-Sociétaire of the Comédie-Française, where for a great many years he played important rôles. After his retirement from the stage he devoted himself to teaching; and among his numerous pupils is Madame Réjane, of whom he was always very proud. M. Talbot had just completed his eightieth year.

I HAVE on several occasions referred to the great injustice on the part of the Comedie-Française Committee in persistently refusing to raise M. Henri Mayer to the dignity of Sociétaire. M. Mayer, an author of great talent, joined the House many years ago, and, although he appeared during that time in numerous plays—always ready to replace an absent brother-artist—he, for some mysterious reason, was kept in the background. At last he has received a tardy recognition of his services, for on the list of those promoted to the rank of Sociétaire I see with pleasure the name of Henri Mayer. The other two who share with him this distinction are Mdlle. Marthe Pierat and M. Delaunay. The former is only twenty, and, therefore, the youngest member of the company. She makes up, however, in talent what she lacks in years. M. Delaunay, son of the famous actor, is less brilliant than his father, but he is painstaking, and renders valuable services to the House.

M. SAINT-SAENS'S new opera, Hélène, is in full rehearsal at the Opéra-Comique. In fact, the artists know their parts thoroughly, and the date of the première will soon be fixed. The rehearsals have been several times interrupted owing to the great musician's frequent absences from Paris. There is no more restless man than M. Camille Saint-Saëns. If he is more than a month in one place he gets melancholy, and pitches his tent elsewhere. He has now left for Toulouse with his friend M. Gailhard, director of the Opéra, to attend the first performance at the Théâtre du Capitole of Les Barbarrs.

I AM authorised to contradict the rumour that Madame Céline Chaumont intends to return to the stage and will make her appearance at the Gaîté as Dorine, in Tartuffe. Madame Chaumont has no intention whatever of resuming her old profession.

No little amusement has been created here in artistic circles by the splendid reproduction in a London illustrated paper of the famous poster of "La Boîte-à-Fursy," showing M. Loubet, Mr Joseph Chamberlain, Colonel Marchand, and other celebrities applauding Fursy's performance. Vive l'Entente!

MADAME SARAH BERNHARDT has returned to Paris, and will reappear on Sunday next in La Sorcière. It is also mysteriously whispered that she intends producing a French adaptation of a "sensational" English comedy. The name of the piece was even mentioned to me, but it seems too strange to be true.

MR WILLIAM GREET'S Western company of The Earl and the Girl, under the direction of Mr W. A. M'Neill, provides the Christmas entertainment at the Grand Theatre, Plymouth. They travel by special train to-morrow from Paddington sixty strong, and the management is providing a Christmas dinner in the train. The northern company will be similarly catered for on their journey, by London and North-Western, from Glasgow to Manchester, where they will supply the Christmas entertainment at the Gaiety Theatre.

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, in addition to the letters that have been officially addressed to you, I have personally received a number of communications from ladies and gentlemen in the profession who are in favour of the matinée scheme, amongst others from Mrs John Wood, Mr H. B. Irving, and Mr R. C. Carton.

Some of these letters raise questions that may possibly be discussed elsewhere, and I therefore should be glad if you would allow me to deal briefly with them.

Nobody seems to doubt that there would be very few difficulties in the way of organising the scheme in London. That seems to me more than half the battle, as the metropolitan matinées would naturally realise the largest amounts.

It is said, however, that in the provinces some resident managers might object to the scheme. Personally, I cannot see why we should assume that provincial resident managers are less charitable than other people. A resident manager has to pay rent for his theatre whether it is being used for a matinée or not. But it is urged, however, that in any week an extra matinée would affect the business of that week. I venture to suggest that the business for that week would have to be very poor before it could be so affected, but even if we grant that it would be affected, surely the effect would be a very small one, and not such a one as any manager would shrink from in the cause of charity. Moreover, the bars would be open for eight shows instead of for seven shows, which would be to the managerial profit and advantage. Human nature may have its weaknesses, and business sometimes may be bad, but I personally do not believe that the resident-manager exists who would demand rent for his theatre on the occasion of a charity matinée if the scheme of universal matinées were generally adopted.

I believe that pretty much the same argument would apply to the resident staff. Actors, actresses, and managers are always in sympathy with the staff and its little troubles when it wants help and its little pleasures when it wants an annual outing. I believe that the staff would undoubtedly volunteer to assist in a charity performance without remuneration. In a few cases they might demand half salaries, but I believe that the cases would be very few.

As a matinée would only be an extra performance of the play running at the time, very little extra printing would be required, and knowing the purposes for which that extra printing would be used, I am sure that local printers, if properly appealed to, would never charge more than the bare cost price for it.

Similarly with regard to press announcements and press advertisements. The press is invariably more than generous where charity is concerned.

I believe that in eight cases out of ten the matinées I suggest could be given without any greater expense being incurred than that which was necessary to defray the cost of consumable properties and lighting. Everybody engaged would give their services. The author would permit his play to be performed without fee, the manager would grant the use of his theatre—universal effort on a universal day.

The incentive to this effort, I am sure, would be increased by the knowledge that we were doing the whole of our work at one time, that we all were benefiting more than one institution by our endeavours. That is why I suggested federation. I would not for one single moment interfere with the organisation and administration of our charities as they stand, but instead of letting them each collect money separately and apart, I propose that money should be collected for them in one lump and divided between them according to their requirements, but I do not believe in the multiplication of boards and committees. In my humble opinion the proper body to organise the universal matinée, to collect the sums derived from it, and to distribute those sums, is the Actors' Association. It is in close touch with the charities already, because many of the members of the Actors' Association Committee are members of the Actors' Benevolent Committee and members of the Actors' Orphanage Committee. Eventually, I should hope to see the charities and the Association housed under one roof, thereby effecting a saving in rent and insuring an increased efficiency and economy of administration.

Some expenses would be attached to the organisation of the matinée scheme, especially in its earlier stages; but this out-of-pocket expense the Actors' Association would naturally charge against the receipts of the universal matinée. The Actors' Association exists for the benefit of the actors' calling. Charity is organised for the benefit of the poorer members of that calling. If the Actors' Association succeeds in organising the charity scheme that seems most acceptable to the profession the Association also should have its reward. I, therefore, should suggest that, in addition to actual out-of-pocket expenses, the Association should be permitted to retain for its own purposes five per cent. of the sum total derived from the benefit performances.

I make this suggestion because the Actors' Association has never yet been supported as generally and as generously as it deserves. The curse of the actors' calling is its lack of organisation. I am not asserting for one moment that the Actors' Association is at present a perfect organisation, but it is the only one that we have got, and it already contains within itself all the best elements of theatrical unity. Yours faithfully, CECIL RALEIGH.

Miss Burgoyne, Thursday, Dec. 29.

AT the Gaiety Theatre, Birmingham, this week, Will Evans, comedian, has caused hearty laughter; and Marie Kendall is loudly applauded; and artistic operatic duets are rendered by Les Voces. The Four Maisanos give an amusing musical show. Some smart dancing is contributed by the Sisters Casselli, and other popular turns are those of J. A. Wilson, "the black oracle"; the Sisters Geretti; Alec Fisher, comedian; and Leo Tell.

THE sudden death of Mr S. Arthur Chappell took place at 45, Brook-street, Grosvenor-square, on Wednesday night. He was in his seventy-ninth year, and for some time past had been in indifferent health. There will be a memorial service at St. Andrews, Well-street, at 11·0 a.m. to-day, and the funeral will take place at West End-lane Cemetery Hampstead, at 12·15.

PLAYGOERS' CLUB DINNER.

The annual ladies' Christmas dinner was given by the Playgoers' Club on Sunday night at the Hotel Cecil. Miss ELLIS JEFFREYS was in the chair, and amongst those present were Mr Lionel Monckton, Mr J. Bannister Howard, Miss Gertie Millar, Mr Louis Bradfield, Mr B. W. Findon, Mr Herbert Sleath, Mr Bransby Williams, Mr Van Biene, Miss Isabel Jay, Mr and Mrs Douglas Story, Mr and Mrs Passmore Edwards, Mr E. N. Durlacher, and Misses Grace and Sybil Arundale.

Mr KENNETH HAVERS, the vice president, in proposing "The Ladies," said Mr Zangwill, the president of the club, had written him from America expressing fervent admiration for Miss Ellis Jeffreys, as "one of the most charming and gifted actresses in English"—an actress who, Mr Zangwill hoped, "might be spared to grace a piece of his own." After enumerating some of the parts in which Miss Jeffreys has appeared in recent years, Mr Havers presented her with a handsome mirror, framed in filigree silver, as a testimony of the good wishes entertained towards her by the members of the club.

Miss ELLIS JEFFREYS, in responding said,—First of all let me thank you for that round of applause—as an actress I am not above longing to "get a hand," and on this occasion it is doubly welcome, as I am not sure if you will be kind enough to repeat it when I have finished my speech! I need scarcely say how much I value the too kind and flattering remarks that have been made about me, and how much I appreciate the great compliment you have paid me in asking me to be your guest here to-night. Cela va sans dire—if you will allow me to take refuge in French—a language, by the way, I take an increased interest in now after having studied your menu, which in itself is a thing of beauty, and something to read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest! When I claim your indulgence to-night, I'm afraid I cannot take refuge in the time-honoured excuse, that I am unaccustomed to public speaking; my friends Mr Cyril Maude and Mr Frederick Harrison would give me away at once. I have made speeches in their theatre, and although I fear I repeated myself a good deal, my remarks were often most kindly received, but please do not blame me for this—I was instigated, nay worse, I was secretly paid to say these things, by men whom I do not hesitate to denounce to you as accomplices and accessories before the fact. It is with malicious pleasure that I drag from their obscurity the names of Mr Pinero, Mr Henry Arthur Jones, Mr Sidney Grundy, and Captain Robert Marshall. I bear them no animosity, and would not have mentioned their names but for the fact, that to-night, above all nights, they have basely deserted me, and, like Mr Chamberlain, I believe in retaliation. So, please ladies and gentlemen, deal hardly with my accomplices if you will, but treat me to-night as a first offender. Whatever my faults may be, you have invited me this evening, dear Playgoers, to be your guest at one of your banquets — those "Noctes Cœnæque Deorum," to quote the words of Horace—who (as we archæologists know) was president of the ancient Roman branch of the Playgoers' Club about the year 12 B.C.—that remarkable organisation which did so much for the theatrical life of the time, and has made the Coliseum what it is to-day. I do not allude to the great revival in St. Martin's-lane. In the comparatively few years of your existence, how much have you accomplished? You have set the seal of your approval on the triumph of virtue, and the punishment of villainy and vice; you have curbed the crudities of the comic man, and have all but abolished the demon king; you have espoused the cause of the suffering heroine; you have rescued her from the snowstorm, the friendless garret, and the slow starvation of the property loaf; you have dressed her at Paquin's, and invited her to dinner. But you have done more than this; you have shown the adventuress how wrong she is; you have weaned her from the lurid crimson frock, the desperate décolletage, the crime-laden jewels, and the sinful sabler, and you have taken her, humbled and penitent, to your generous heart. And the villains, those men revelling in every crime that is known to the calender, and a few that are not, what have you not done for them? You have taken those poor criminal brothers by the hand, and, discarding all such antiquated and brutal methods as the egg, the cabbage, the brickbat, and the "boo"—you have by the mere power of moral suasion shown them how to lead a better life. This is a noble work! This is a métier to be proud of, though you, with your natural modesty, will not admit it. But there is an additional reason to-night why we should abate our modesty and indulge in self-glorification. You, dear Playgoers, I understand, are about to enter into your twenty-first year, and I will let you into a little secret—so am I! Do not express amazement; it is true, I assure you. Yes, in a very short time we shall have attained our legal majority, we shall be no longer infants, we must take our places, not only as authors, artists, and playgoers, but as ratepayers and citizens. We can sue and be sued, without the intervention of a "best friend" to advise us not! And we shall be in a position to receive legacies, may they, to speak frankly, be fat and frequent; may we receive them with dignity, and spend them with discretion; and last, but not least, we can make our wills. What a blessed thought! My wish is that we may live long to enjoy them, and add year by year some little trifle, some little codicil, which may make a poor brother or sister happier some day. Now that the hour has come, I say say to you, solemnly and seriously, let us be men—at least as many of us as can be, the rest must be content to remain mere women—much as we may regret it. It is time for me to thank you for your courtesy and your patience. If I have trespassed too much on them listen to the confession of a weak woman, and forgive me. Here, and in the presence of witnesses, and in defiance of my husband, I avow I love you one and all individually, wrong as it may seem to confess it. But, dear Playgoers, I have feared, nay do fear, you collectively. Your compliment this evening has caused me sleepless nights and anxious days. All through dinner I have been suffering the agonies of a new malady, with symptoms similar to stage fright, only much more acute, and accompanied by a total loss of appetite, which my doctor tells me is none other than a form of the dreaded "Tetanus Theatricalis," or "Playgoers' Paralysis." But, after all, whatever my physical symptoms may be, I know in my heart this—that there is no lack of sympathy between you, dear Playgoers, on one side, and we artists on the other; and that there is, and I hope always will be, an entente cordiale between us, that no footlights, fireproof curtains, nor even orchestras can do much to divide.

Following the toast of "The Playgoers' Club," proposed by Miss ELLIS JEFFREYS, came a concert.

ONE of the most notable characters in the musical life of North Wales has passed away in the person of Madame Douglas Adams, of Mold, known throughout the Principality as "Perores Gwalia," or the chief singer of Wales. The lamented death of Madame Douglas Adams rings down the curtain upon a strenuous and eventful life. The daughter of a former operatic artiste and stage-manager, she was trained for grand opera under Sainton Dolby, was prima donna in several operatic productions, and was for some time a member of the Carl Rosa combination. During her twenty-six years' residence in Mold the deceased built up an extensive connection as teacher of music, and, in addition to her private practice, she was music teacher at various educational establishments. She accomplished great things by way of fostering a love of grand opera in the surrounding districts of Mold and Chester, and in recent years produced in their entirety, and with distinct success, Faust, The Bohemian Girl, Maritana, and Martha.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

THE Coliseum, in spite of all efforts, could not be opened on Wednesday. The scenery, which had to be very specially adjusted to the machinery which works it, was hardly running smoothly enough, and Mr Stoll, therefore, in view of the four performances a day that he intends to give—with only one hour interval between them—determined to postpone the opening till to-day. The first performance will begin, as advertised, at twelve o'clock.

AT the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday, in reply to a question by Sir Algernon West, Mr Greenwood said he was pleased to say that the owners of the Coliseum had endeavoured to meet the wishes of the Council in every respect, and there was no reason to doubt but that all their requirements would be met, so that the building would be ready for opening on Saturday.

MR HORACE EDWARD MOSS, who is retiring from the managing directorship of the Moss's Empires, gained his early knowledge of the world of entertainment in association with his father, Mr James Moss, who belonged to an old Lancashire family, and was, practically speaking, brought up in the profession. When his father toured with a concert party young Moss was the accompanist, and sang a humorous song at the piano. Subsequently the elder Mr Moss became the proprietor of the Lorne Music Hall, Greenock, where his son was the manager. When he reached twenty-three Mr Moss acquired his first music hall. It was the Gaiety, in Edinburgh, which had never enjoyed a good reputation. Mr Moss determined on a revolution. He made one pluckly attempt after another to attract the people with a purified entertainment, but in vain. The climax of his misfortunes came when he organised a great New Year's entertainment in 1878. He spent huge sums in advertising, but the result was a dire disappointment. Success, however, eventually came, and he has never looked back since.

MR OSWALD STOLL, the man of the hour, who now controls the fortunes of no less than twenty-nine variety theatres, is always eloquent concerning the excellent business precepts his mother taught him. He did not begin life with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth, and leaving school at fourteen, he began his commercial career. After some years' residence in Liverpool he went to Cardiff, and was one of the first to recognise the value of two performances each evening to the working classes, and he first tried the experiment at the Empire, Cardiff.

HE follows out an interesting practice in regard to his many enterprises. His mother, who has taken the keenest interest in every detail of her son's career, invariably receives the first money paid for bookings at the many establishments with which he has been associated. Mr Stoll was the first person to book a box at the Coliseum for the opening performance, and immediately the money which he paid for the box was sent to his mother.

THE Alhambra Co., Limited, notify that the six months' interest on the remaining £22,100 of Five per Cent. Debenture Bonds, Coupon No. 42, falling due on Jan. 1 next, will be payable on and after that date at the company's bankers, Messrs Barclay and Co., Limited, 1, Pall-mall East.

AN amusing incident occurred at the Holloway Empire on Thursday, while Mr Syd May, the well-known mimic, was doing his turn. Mr May, after giving his imitations of various celebrated music-hall comedians, without any make-up, wound up his turn by appearing in the familiar garb of Mr George Robey. He had no sooner started one of the popular footballer's well-known songs, when loud cries of "Daddy!" from a child in the gallery were heard. The incident set the whole house laughing, but it somewhat disconcerted the singer, who said, "I'm not your dad!" The cries, however, became more persistent, and Mr May added, "I have been attacked by infantry." Perhaps Mr Robey will explain.

MR JOE ELVIN will have a particularly busy Boxing Night. He will produce at the Oxford Fares, Please! and The Brown Bear at the Paragon. As a feature of the former sketch a special tramcar has been constructed, and Mr Elvin will find in the part of the conductor an excellent vehicle for his humour. The author is Mr Wal Pink, who knows exactly how to fit the popular cockney comedian, for whom he has written so many successes. The music is by Mr George Le Brunn, who is also responsible for the incidental accompaniments in The Brown Bear, in the writing of which Mr Wal Pink has collaborated with Mr J. P. Ross. The special scenery is by Mr F. Bull.

"THE DANCING DOLL" will be presented at 10·0 o'clock, on Wednesday next, at the Empire. We have already described the scheme of the new divertissement, in which the adorable Adelina Genée will have a part suitable to her great abilities.

FRED SINCLAIR AND GRACIE WHITEFORD have met with a most flattering reception at the Tivoli this last two weeks, and Mr Adney Payne has offered them a three years' contract for all his halls. Getting Even is considered by press and public one of the cleanest and smartest acts that has visited London for a long time.

MISS LOUISA PEACH, who is at present starring as Henriette, in Lost in Paris, with Mr Henry Furnival's company, was booked to appear at the Chelsea Palace with one of her sketches on Jan. 2, but owing to Mr Furnival's tour going through Christmas Mr Henri Gros has very kindly postponed her engagement.

THE fog prevented Miss Nellie Wilson from performing her duties at the Middlesex on Wednesday night last. So dark and thick was it on that night at Brixton that all traffic was stopped.

MDLLE. MARTHA, the refined and graceful gymnast, at present at the Metropolitan, sails for America on Jan. 7, per the New York liner, from Southampton. She is specially engaged for the Keith tour, and she opens in New York on Jan. 23.

MR ALBERT BRASQUE AND MISS CORA DUNCAN will shortly produce a new and interesting sketch which has been specially written for them by Harry Pleon. The songs and incidental music will be written by well-known authors and composers. The sketch bears the title of A Dressing-room Romance.

MR CHARLES COVERDALE, the droll comedian, is opening at the London Pavilion on Boxing Night in his comedy imitations.

MR SYDNEY LEE, who is one of the cleverest of our young magicians, is about to be united, in Manchester, to a young lady residing in the latter town. The bride is not connected with the profession. The happy event takes place on the 30th inst.

THERE will be no meeting of the committee of the M.H.A.R.A. next week. The offices of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association will be closed on Monday and Tuesday, but will reopen on Wednesday. The 386th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, presiding. The secretary reported that sixty new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,986.

ON Sunday last there was a large gathering at the Jewish Cemetery in Green-lane, Liverpool, when a handsome granite monument was consecrated to the memory of Mr Isaac Fineberg, who for about forty years was proprietor of the Star Music Hall in that city.

MR M. MONTGOMERY, JUN., the acting-manager of the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, had a benefit on Tuesday night, when artistes from all the local places of amusement put in an appearance. The occasion was a great success. Subsequently Mr Montgomery treated all his employés and friends to a charming supper, which was served on the stage. There were about a hundred guests.

MR JAMES CHAPPELL, who now enjoys fairly good health, has recently been banqueted by a few friends in Yarmouth. The date chosen was Dec. 13, the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth, and the pleasant reunion took place at the Queen's Hotel, where Mr J. W. Nightingale, the purveyor, put on an excellent menu. Mr Chappell has long since passed his jubilee on the stage, as he commenced his professional career at eight, making his last bow before the public as clown at Her Majesty's, when that house was under the management of the late W. Harrison. He was at one time manager of the Cambridge, and was for seven years managing director of the Queen's, Poplar. He also had the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, before Mr Morris Abrahams took it over in 1882. He still takes a great interest in the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and his summer variety campaign at "Bloaterville" still shows that he has not lost the art of catering for the masses.

AN interesting ceremony took place at Algie's Hippodrome, Carlisle, on Friday, Dec. 16, during the performance of the Five Royal Zerbinis, who topped the bill. The diminutive comedian and conductor of the troupe, Master Cyril, was publicly presented by Mrs Veitch and Mr C. Algie, with a gold-mounted bâton, in the presence of the Mayor, Lady Mayoress, and Town Councillors, and a packed house, as a mark of esteem, and in consequence of the great success of the troupe during the week. The gift was accompanied by a neat speech from the manager, Mr Albino.

AT the Leicester Palace Theatre on Sunday last a large labour demonstration was held, at which Mr Keir Hardie, M.P., in acknowledging the kindness of Mr Oswald Stoll for the permission afforded to use the building for the purposes of the demonstration of the day, said such kindness was greatly appreciated. Music halls, the hon. gentleman added, were not much in his line, but he had occasionally been to them, and he recognised the large place they occupied in the recreations and amusements of the people. Further, he believed the establishment of the Empire Palaces had tended to raise the tone of music halls, which was a matter at which all could rejoice.

BARNEY ARMSTRONG made his reappearance before the public as a comedian at the Palace, Glasgow, on Monday, and made an instantaneous success. He had a very warm reception, and it was some time before he was allowed to proceed with his first song, the audience cheering again and again. He is engaged to appear at the Pavilion, Glasgow, Christmas week, and opens in town shortly.

MR JAS. ANDERSON, proprietor of the Britannia, Glasgow, has just published a Scotch song entitled "Scotland my ain," the words of which are from the pen of a Canadian Scot, and the melody by Robert Duncan, with an arrangement for the piano by Mr William Milne, conductor of the Britannia orchestra. The song gained the prize in a competition instituted by Mr Anderson when he recently took over the hall, and bids fair to have some measure of popularity, as already several thousand copies have been disposed of.

THE Miles-Stavordale Quintet left Liverpool on Wednesday for New York and the States, on board the White Star Liner Cedric, and open at Proctor's on Jan. 2. This is their third trip across to the land of the dollar. It is almost a record for a purely English turn to make three trips, especially a banjo act; but Americans are ever ready to recognise artistic work, and the quintet play the national instrument in a way not easily excelled even by the Yankee virtuosi.

A MATINÉE, organised by the members of the "Rags Club," which took place on the 16th inst. at the Palace Theatre, Manchester, resulted in the handsome sum of £170 14s. 5d being handed over to the Chronicle Fund for the relief of the unemployed. This is extremely gratifying, and the thanks of the organisers are tendered to the many artistes who so generously helped to make the entertainment so successful, and to the directors and staff of the Palace, who gave their services so willingly.

MR E. C. SWANN, the new manager of the Empire Theatre, Bradford, died on Monday night last at his residence in Great Horton-road, after a short illness. Mr Swann, who was only thirty-one years of age, was for some time in the service of a Leeds accountant, and he received his appointment in Bradford last August on the removal of Mr P. A. Lennon to Richmond, Surrey. Mr Swann had become very popular with the patrons of the theatre and with the proprietors, who recognised in him a very energetic and hard-working manager. It was very largely through his efforts that the recent performance in aid of the funds of the Lifeboat Institution realised such a handsome amount. Mr Swann was not of a very robust constitution, and he contracted a chill which developed into a serious illness. He was apparently making good progress towards recovery, however, and had so far improved that he was down stairs on Sunday, and was looking forward to being at his post on Monday, but his illness took an unexpected turn, and the end came with painful suddenness. Mr Swann has left a widow and one child.

MR AND MRS TERENCE RAMSDALE gave their farewell performance at the Assembly Rooms, Gibraltar, on the 17th inst., under the patronage of the Governor, his Excellency Sir George White, and Lady White. Melody, humour, and dramatic interest were the constituent elements of a refined entertainment, which included classic dances and comic sketches.

THE old Alexandra Hall, Hope-street, Birmingham, has been taken over by a private company, and after being renovated it will open on Monday next as a first-class variety house on the now popular system of two houses nightly under the management of Arthur Turle.

MISS MAGGIE RIMMER, a dainty and chic comedienne and dancer, has proved herself a real Cinderella. She succeeded in getting on the glass slipper exhibited at a Southampton bootmaker's shop, and thus stands a chance of winning a share of the £500 prize offered by a local newspaper. She did the fitting without the aid of the fairy godmother.

MR P. J. DURNEY, better known to the patrons of the Dewsbury Hippodrome as "Paddy," has accepted an offer of an excellent tour through South Africa and the colonies. Mr Durney, by his versatile efforts, has become a warm favourite at this house, and the benefit accorded him on Friday evening was a bumper in all respects.

THE FRASETTIS went on Nov. 14 to the Tivoli, Sydney, where they opened with Mr Harry Rickards. They came on to the Antipodes from the Tivoli, Cape Town, after a most successful engagement with the Hyman management.

MR THOMAS BARRASFORD, the gentleman who has had the courage to transform the Lyceum into a music hall, made his fame as a variety entrepreneur in the provinces before he came to London, and is now connected with a number of enterprises in England, Scotland, and France. He has not yet touched Erin's Isle. He controls the Hippodromes at Brighton, Birmingham, Liverpool, and Glasgow; the Pavilion, Glasgow; the Palace, Glasgow; the Regent, Salford; the Pavilion, Newcastle; the Alhambra, Hull; the Empire, Bristol; the Tivoli, Leeds; the Palace, Manchester; the Grand, Manchester; and the Alhambra, Paris; the last-mentioned Palace being the old Château D'Eau Theatre. Other enterprises are developing, and the Barrasford circuit becomes larger every year.

MR BARRASFORD has arranged his double "two hours'" bill upon varied lines, and there is a strong Continental flavour about it. His company will comprise Mdlle. Van Parys, soprano, from the Grand Opera, Paris, and M. Ansaldi, a tenor; Mdlle. Dasty, a contralto from the Théâtre la Monnaie, Brussels; M. Rey, baritone from the Grand Opera, Nice; La Wilma, a lady artist in sand and smoke; Heloise Titcomb, a South American singer; Phil Ray; Carl Reinsch, in a sporting horse-and-dog act; the Harmony Quartette; Taylor's elephants; the Freydos, athletes and hand-balancers; the Five Purrocopis, jugglers; Permane Brothers, in an acrobatic act; Canadian Banker, in a somersault "loop" act; some animated pictures; and Mr George Leyton, a spirited representative of a recent Lyceum hero, Henry V., in a dramatic sketch, called Enoch Arden. Here is a good blend of novelties and of favourites.

THERE was really a Lyceum Theatre of Varieties as far back as 1841, though the house was not known as such, for soon after Balfe failed in the management of the house in that year came the lion-tamer Carter, who established a wild-beast show in Wellington-street, and he was succeeded by one—Signor Nano, the Gnome Fly—who professed to walk up the walls of the house and march head downwards on the ceiling. These variety entertainments, however, were unable to change the fortunes of the house, as, in 1844, the change in the licensing law brought about by the Theatres Act of 1843, was taken advantage of by the proprietors, who opened the building as the Theatre Royal, Lyceum.

SOON afterwards came the Keeley régime, the only survivor of the company being Mrs Alfred Mellon (then Miss Woolgar). Then Madame Vestris and Charles Mathews ruled the house for a time. In 1856 Charles Dillon made a brilliant reputation and introduced Marie Wilton (Lady Bancroft) to the London public as Henri, in Belphegor. Edmund Falconer and Madame Celeste both had the house in turn before Fechter commenced his management in 1863; and in 1867 Mr E. T. Smith entered into rivalry with the other dramatic houses by putting on Life for Life, with Adelaide Neilson as his principal star. Messrs Mansfield tried opera bouffe in 1870, and Mr H. L. Bateman in 1871 appeared at the head of affairs. In 1872 Henry Irving magnetised the town as Mathias, and the old house had a remarkable career of prosperity, and became the leading theatre in London. We need not recapitulate its recent history; but wish success to its future.

MR JOHN READ will be remembered as an excellent singer of motto and other songs in his day, and for many years held the position of chairman at Collins's. He is advanced in years, and is feeling the pinch of poverty. In a letter to us he says:—"I find it impossible to live, and though I am loth to accept charity, my circumstances compel me to appeal to my brother artistes at this most critical and unfortunate period of my career." Mr Charles Sheard, in a letter in our columns last week, spoke of John Read's case as "pitiful," and immediate monetary assistance is required. John Read in his time wrote several popular songs for the stars of his day, but they have all joined the majority. As a professional he was always highly respected, and his uprightness and sturdy independence made him a favourite with all. His address is 18, Cranleigh-road, South Tottenham. Mr C. H. Sheard, of 196, Shaftesbury-avenue, will be pleased to receive any sums sent on Mr Read's behalf.

AT the council of the Metropolitan Radical Federation meeting at the Shoreditch Liberal and Radical Club on Saturday evening it was unanimously resolved—"That this council is in full agreement with the Rev. Stewart D. Headlam as to the dangerous and mischievous tendency towards Puritanism of the progressive members of the London County Council; that we welcome, and will accord our support, to any effort to infuse a wider and more liberal spirit in the administration of our music halls, theatres, parks, and open spaces."

MR HEADLAM, who made a speech at the meeting, urged that licences should be granted to the music halls which had sprung up in recent years on the ground that by preventing audiences from enjoying reasonable refreshments people were driven to places where only intoxicants were supplied. As showing that people attending variety entertainments did not devote themselves to consuming drink while in the halls he mentioned that a return which he had obtained from the Metropolitan—one of the the old places from which the licence could not be withdrawn—showed that during a fixed period the consumption of intoxicants during a four hours' entertainment was only to the extent of 2¾d. per head.

MISS VESTA TILLEY has just accepted, and will shortly produce, most probably at the Tivoli, an expressly written Brazilian scena of romantic interest, tentatively entitled "Bonita," in which she will enact the rôle of a young English planter in love with a sweet Brazilian belle. Mr John P. Harrington is responsible for the words, and Mr George Le Brun for the music of this forthcoming production, which is a distinct departure from Miss Tilley's usual type of male impersonations.

MR ALFRED BUTT presented his Christmas programme at the Palace on Thursday evening, and among the novelties we find a full-blown pantomime which bears the title Bill Bailey. Yes, we say it with satisfaction that though the wanderer has not returned to his own roof-tree as yet, he has found in Shaftesbury-avenue a temporary resting-place, and is heartily welcome. He is presented by the Follies, six clever people, headed by Mr H. G. Pelissier, who, we suspect, is largely responsible for the genially written pantomime skit. The familiar friends of our childhood, Cinderella, Robinson Crusoe, Dick Whittington, are presented. We have also the traditional baron, the conventional fairy queen, and the gifted cat. Each is amusingly parodied, and an excellent bit of fooling is the grand procession of nations. The artistes include, besides Mr Pelissier, Mr Lewis Sydney, Mr Dan Everard, Miss Gwennie Mars, Miss Ethel Allandale, and Miss Marjorie Napier, who work most energetically and successfully.

ANOTHER fresh item in the Palace bill is a sketch called Jack, which has been written for Mr Arthur Roberts by Mr Chris Davis, the author of The Fighting Parson. The novelty serves as an excellent vehicle for the comedian to display his mimicry in the character of a young man about town, a fashionable physician, and a society lady. The patter is already very amusing, and, of course, it will be added to as occasion serves. Miss Eva Westcott, whose name appears for the first time on the Palace bill, is a young actress who played the part of the boy Jimmy, in The Prince of Pilsen at the Shaftesbury Theatre. She presents An Episode of Modern Life, and displays considerable ability in the monologue.

THE production of Butterflies in Fairyland at the Hippodrome has been postponed by Mr Moss until Tuesday evening next.

THE COUNTESS OF CLANCARTY, who was known to our readers as the beautiful Belle Bilton, has undergone a series of operations for cancer in Paris, and is now being treated by Dr. Doyen's method, from which she has derived immense benefit. It is hoped, indeed, that the distinguished invalid is permanently cured.

THE wishing of "Compliments of the Season" at Christmas and at the New Year by way of special advertisements in The Era is a happy practice on the part of variety agents, and tends to preserve l'entente cordiale between client and agent. It also shows to the managers of variety Empires throughout the whole world the extent of the agents' prosperous businesses, and displays the names of the important artists for whom they act.

THE Royal is to be reconstructed from plans that have been submitted to the Council by Messrs Frank Matcham and Co., and with certain alterations suggested by the Council's architect the structural changes proposed have been accepted. When the old Royal was enlarged in 1887 by Captain Purkiss there was much room cut to waste and valuable space was sacrificed without any compensating advantage in design or comfort.

MISS LILY BURNAND, after a long successful engagement on the Moss tour, has returned to town, and is specially engaged for Christmas week for the following halls:—The Standard, Granville, and Camberwell. After delighting the patrons of these establishments, she will start for the complete tour of the Stoll halls.

CHING LING FOO, the famous Chinese juggler and entertainer, is to appear at the Empire on Jan. 2, at a salary of £250 a-week. Accompanied by ten assistants, he arrived in London on Wednesday. Although he is forty-nine years of age he has never experienced so terrible a meteorological calamity as a London fog, and he is emphatic in his expression of disgust at it.

SO great has been the applications for copies of "Teasing," the song which Mr David Day brought back with him from the United States of America, that the printing of the number has been expedited, and it is now on the market. It is by Cecil Mack and Albert Von Tilzer, and is dedicated to Miss Ellaline Terriss.

MR HARRY TATE'S character of Abanazar, in the Marlborough pantomime of Aladdin, will necessitate him adopting many disguises, and will thus enable him to appear in the impersonations of well-known variety "stars" that helped to make him famous. The ballet music at this house will be from the graceful pen of G. W. Byng, of the Alhambra.

"THE SHAUGHRAUN" is not new to the variety boards, as a version of it was played at the South London under Miss Poole's management in 1890, when the late Jenny Hill appeared in the title-rôle with songs and dances, being supported by, among others, the late Fred Mason. More recently the Boucicault drama in condensed form was seen at the Middlesex, with Mr J. H. Cave as the rollicking Irishman.

MR J. L. SHINE has compressed the play so that it comes well within the limits of a sketch. But there is no injury to the continuity and interest of the story—not an essential character or incident is omitted. Mr Shine calls this playlet Conn, and it is hardly necessary to say that he plays the title-rôle as if to the manner born. Equipped with elaborate and picturesque scenery and proper costumes, Conn will be the Chistmas attraction at the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, thereafter proceeding on tour. Mr Shine has worked up a thrilling fight with his would-be assassins in the scene following the wake.

MISS ANNIE ABBOTT, the "Georgia Magnet," will again be entertaining a London audience on Boxing Day, having been secured for the Chelsea Palace for a six nights' engagement. Miss Abbott's exhibitions of scientific force at the Alhambra seven years since created a great sensation, and there was much controversy in the papers concerning the wonderful little lady's feats.

MISS BELLA FOTHERGILL, professionally known as Bella, of Bella and Bijou, was married at Brixton on Tuesday to Mr William Kellino, of the celebrated troupe of acrobats. The best man was Mr F. W. Wood, proprietor of the City Varieties, Leeds. Miss Bella's dark Irish beauty was well set off by a charming gown of ivory white satin, and she was attended by three bridesmaids—her niece and two sisters of the bridegroom. They wore costumes of a pretty shade of grey, with picture hats to match. The church was filled with friends of the happy couple, who received during the afternoon many telegrams of congratulation. A reception, followed by a déjeuner was held at the Stanley Restaurant, and during the afternoon Mr and Mrs W. Kellino started for Paris, where they are staying at the Hotel du President. Their absence from town will be a short one, as both have to return to fulfil engagements on Monday.

THE bride is the daughter of the late Mr Edwin Frederick Fothergill, who died in January, 1903. She was in her early years associated with her sisters as members of the Fothergill family, who became famous in spectacular scenas. When her sister became the wife of Bijou, who was a member of the same combination, Miss Bella joined him in vocal sketches, and as a duo they are among the most successful artists on the variety stage.

THE Sisters De Vere, two bright comediennes, will appear at Barnard's Greenwich, next week in a dainty song and dance entertainment.

MR HAMILTON HILL has expressed his thanks in a graceful fashion to Mr Tom Costello for granting permission to sing the latter's great success, by Mills and Scott, "Farewell my Little Yo-San."

MESSRS ROSEN AND BLISS, variety agents, have changed their address to 56, Whitcomb-street, Leicester-square, W.C.

AFTER the Christmas holidays Master Trundley, the "Peckham Fat Boy,' will, it is stated, settle down to the quiet life of a pupil at a London County Council school at Peckham. He will sit on a particularly strong seat in front of a specially constructed desk.

MISS VICTORIA MONKS, the popular singer of "Bill Bailey," is introducing two new songs, "There's a Girl Inside" and "I ain't gwine to leave home in the rain," by William Hargreaves. She will not be seen in pantomime this year, owing to her engagements at the Alhambra, Paris, and an impending visit to America.

MADAME NADJI, the mother of Nadji, has been lying seriously ill for two weeks, at her residence, 51, Burton-crescent, W.C., and has been attended by two doctors and a specialist. As soon as she is convalescent, she will be taken to the seaside and then to a hospital or home to undergo an operation.

MR SAM MAYO, who has just finished a five months' tour, is about to attempt a record. He will try to do eight turns next week—namely, at the Bedford and Chelsea Palaces (twice each), Gatti's (Road), Camberwell Palace, Middlesex, and Metropolitan. He has worked six turns on seven occasions, and during one evening only he worked seven.

DR. WALFORD BODIE commenced a short London season at the Empress, Brixton, and Empire, Islington, last Monday, and, as predicted, he has again scored heavily, both places being packed nightly. His wonderful electric experiments and marvellous cures of the paralysed have again caused quite a sensation. He returns on Monday next to the Canterbury and Balham Varieties, where he will introduce several startling experiments in bloodless surgery, for which he has now become quite famous.

THE great Rubie is the latest sensation. This lady claims to be the only lady mesmerist and electrician in the world. She will introduce several new electric and hypnotic novelties, and will make her first appearance at one of the West-end halls. No lady mesmerist has been seen on the boards for years, not since Madame Julie Card, who caused quite a sensation in her time.

THE SALAMBOS, during their recent visit to Perth, Western Australia, gave their entertainment before Governor Bedford, Lady Bedford, Admiral Fenshaw, and their party, who visited the Theatre Royal especially to see them In the course of the evening the Mayor of Perth (Mr Harry Brown) acted as special assistant to the Salambos in their electric novelty, accompanied by Mr Sam Grimwood, Perth's veteran, and the most popular sportsman in Western Australia. The Salambos have played at Melbourne, Perth, Fremantle, and Adelaide. They are now at the Tivoli Theatre, Sydney.

M. WITMARK AND SONS have made an arrangement with Mr C. E. Hamilton, proprietor of the musical piece, Peggy M'Chree, by which the songs, "By the Old Oak Tree" and "Honeymoon Hall" will be exclusively reserved for this production. The latter number will be used in certain pantomimes by permission of Mr Hamilton.

THE clever M'Connell Trio, who have long been great London and provincial favourites, will be among the attractions at the opening of the Manchester Hippodrome. They are making a feature of the song "Good-night, beloved, good-night," in which they will be assisted by a magnificent choir of trained voices, the choir being called "the Hippodrome Choristers."

MISS VERONICA BRADY has made a pronounced hit with two of Witmark's popular songs, "Good bye, little girl, good-bye" and "I'll be your dew-drop, Rosy," at His Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen. The local Press are unanimous in stating that these are the genuine hits of the pantomime.

MISS RACHEL LOWE will introduce her latest song, "The naughty little mouse," as Aladdin at the Kennington Theatre. As a singer of novelty songs Miss Lowe has no equal, and her new number promises to be on a par with her other pronounced successes.

THE Albert and Edmunds Troupe will be seen this year in pantomime at the West London Theatre, where they will play principal parts in the Messrs Bailey's production of Babes in the Wood. Miss Nita Clavering will be Maid Marian and Miss Maude Nelson Robin Hood. The pantomime has been written by W. Scott Phipp.

MR WORLAND S. WHEELER, who is the secretary and treasurer of the Paragon, was married on Saturday to Miss Godden, a young lady very well known to the habitués of the East-end hall. Mr Wheeler, who was at one time a journalist, wisely relinquished that profession for his present post some four years since.

THE funeral of the late Mr Albert Layton, proprietor of the Old Queen's Head, Stockwell-road, S.W., took place on Dec. 21 at Bow Cemetery. Mr Layton, who had been a silent sufferer for many weeks, passed away in a spirit of perfect resignation, the immediate cause of death being Bright's disease. The old stagers in the profession will feel the loss of the "old time comic" more keenly than the younger generation. Some of the artistes with whom Mr Layton had appeared were Harry Randall, Slade Murray, and George Chirgwin.

THE floral emblems of regard were many, and included a large number of professional names. Amongst these were wreaths from Mrs Layton and family, Nellie Wilson (Mrs Layton's sister) and Harry Phillips. Millie Tempest, Dorothy Royal. Mr and Mrs Newton, Mr and Mrs Warwick, Mr and Mrs Simpson Charwood, and Mr Isaacs. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, many attended the final rites.

MR HAROLD ARNOLD has been appointed advertising manager of the Lyceum.

NEARLY 400 workmen are engaged in finishing the Lyceum, which will be opened as a music-hall on Monday. This week its two great tiers have been tested, 800 men from the ranks of the unemployed being marshalled on the lower steps of each of the tiers. For the few minutes' employment each man received a shilling.

HERBERT CAMPBELL MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—A memorial to the late Mr Herbert Campbell in the shape of a bust, either in marble or bronze, is to be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, the scene of so many of his triumphs. Mr Harry Randall has kindly consented to act as president and Mr Edward Ledger, of The Era, as treasurer to the fund.

It is the intention of the committee to engage an artist of repute to execute this work to the memory of the above-mentioned generous and genial comedian. The committee will esteem it a great favour if his old friends and admirers will assist in making this memorial a success. All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in The Era.

Yours faithfully, FRANK HEATH, (Secretary).

AT the Empire Palace, Birmingham, the programme this week is of the usual high standard. The Rossow Midgets in their athletic display are well to the fore, and the Two Butterflies and the Three Georges are decidedly clever. Daisy Mayer is encored for her smart songs. The Four Schutzenlieserl'ns render their vocal selections with effect. Emma Don and company, in their scena; Geoffreys and Benson; Harry Hayton and J. H. Milburn, comedians; and Joly, with his cornet selection, complete the bill.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE EMPIRE.

One of the most popular turns at the Empire just now is undoubtedly that of Herbert Lloyd. In its sheer unadulterated absurdity it is irresistible, and description can give but a poor idea of its eccentric extravagance. Lloyd comes in on a "travestie" of a motor-car, elaborately constructed, and sending out real steam from behind. Some of his fooleries are so simple in idea that it is only the innate drollery of the artist that makes them so comical. Laughter loud and hearty is, however, certainly created by Lloyd's tricks, which are genuinely funny. Perhaps the most ridiculous item of his entertainment is his caricature of a facial mimic. His "impersonations" are, of course, intentionally inadequate, and when he finds one of them does not "take" he falls back, frantically, on an embodiment of Napoleon. Lloyd wears a great number of shirt-fronts of various colours and patterns; and he tears them out savagely and casts them on the boards in heaps. This "mimicry of a mimic" sends the gravest in the audience into helpless cachinnations. Corty, Robinson, and Little John are a trio of ring and trapeze artists, the lady extending herself horizontally between two rings, while her taller companion stands upon her body. At intervals, Little John, a merry dwarf, takes part in the proceedings. A most melodious turn is done by the Australian Lady Quartet of vocalists, whose medley of English airs is most enjoyable. The Three Braggs are acrobats of enterprise and originality, who do some feats which, if not unique, are quite uncommon; and their exploits must be seen to be appreciated, as there is no phraseology by which achievements of such a startling sort can be described to the "lay" reader. Whistling Tom Browne repeats the tuneful performance which has made him so popular; and the Yullan Family do some neat "shoulder to shoulder" business. The Luken Brothers, four male gymnasts of real merit, are seen to great advantage on the high trapeze; and Mr Charles Aldrich gives his well-known entertainment of quick changes, absurd "business," and Chinese juggling, his chase and final capture of the erratic necktie being as screamingly absurd as ever, and still "going" extremely well. Mr Aldrich's passages from one dramatic character to another are done in the time it takes to raise and lower the lights, and are wonderfully smart and neat. He has introduced some minor novelties into his mock conjuring business, which is decidedly improved. Ludwig Amann, a master of the art of facial mimicry, has added a few up-to-date impersonations to his list, including those of Russian and Japanese commanders. His other reproductions of celebrities are as excellent as ever. The Milliner Duchess continues to attract.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

Powers of attraction of an abnormal kind are possessed by Dr. Walford Bodie, and wherever he goes houses overflow. He created a sensation in a neighbouring borough a few months back, and from his welcome at Brixton on Monday it was evident that old admirers as well as new were present in force to witness his marvellous demonstrations of hypnotism allied with electricity, and to applaud his labours in the cure of a dreadful affliction. Three cases were presented to the Doctor on Monday, one being that of a girl aged seventeen, who had been paralysed three and a-half years, having been discharged from three hospitals as hopeless and incurable. As in most cases, the hospital authorities had advised that the tendons connecting the foot be cut, but Dr. Bodie by a simple process which he calls "bloodless surgery" severed with a twist the adhesions which kept the foot rigid, and after applying the electric current the use of both arm and leg was restored. The two subsequent cases were children, both of whom had been given up by three hospitals. They surrendered themselves cheerfully to the famous healer, and soon the withered limbs, which a few moments before had been hanging limp and useless, were freely employed in walking off the stage and in carrying the irons which had for so long encumbered them. Dr. Bodie bears the honours which are showered upon him modestly. He might, he said, take up a practice in the West-end, where he could make a fortune by the exercise of his art, but he had no desire to accumulate vast wealth; his chief reward was found in alleviating the ills of suffering humanity and in bringing happiness to many a home. Dr. Bodie was strong in his denunciation of those who, in a base endeavour to copy his methods, had brought on the stage manufactured cases, but a more audacious or more heinous imposition he could not conceive. That the cases which he treated were all genuine could be proved by the vast accumulation of leg-irons and surgical instruments which numerous patients had presented to him, and for which, through the exercise of his power, they had no further use. Frequent and hearty cheers accompanied Dr. Bodie's demonstrations, at the end of which a little boy whom the Doctor had cured on his last visit to London stepped forward to certify to his healing powers, a testimony which the Doctor declared gave him more pleasure than a cheque for £1,000. At the close of the séance, the Doctor turned his attention to his comic subjects, who never fail in their duty of putting the audience into uncontrollable fits of mirth. The ordinary programme contains the name of Mr George D'Albert, but he was an absentee on Monday, Miss Peggy Pryde supplying a welcome substitute. By means of her insidious drollery in "It wants a bit of doing" she awakens the comic perceptions of the dullest among the audience, and in her song of "Gay Paree" her cockney "French" is inexpressibly funny, adding much to the sum total of laughter which this talented comedienne has created. Messrs Tray and Rich, who are representatives of both black and white comedy have some choice lies to tell in the course of their entertainment, and competition in "tall stories" becomes very keen, some smart singing and dancing being also much relished. A refined and dainty style greatly aids Miss Eileen Douglas in her songs, "Maudie went no farther" and "She taught him a thing or two, too," the words of which are delivered so distinctly and with such point as to gain every effect, while a skirt dance forms a pleasing addition to a graceful turn. Mr Harry Bancroft sings with powerful voice and hearty sentiment of two faithful comrades in "Side by Side," a subsequent song affording an opportunity for his comic abilities, of which he makes the most. Miss Queenie Lawrence graces the boards in her lilt of "Sweet Janet from Dundee," being equally captivating in "Have you seen my girl?" and Miss Alexandra Edwin finds many appreciative listeners for her ballads, of which "The Star of Bethlehem" forms a seasonable item. A warm welcome is in store for Mr Tom Costello, who sings with all his wonted dramatic feeling "Good-bye, my little Yo San," the members of the audience coming loyally to his aid in the chorus, while the popular comedian's appearance as a lady with up-to-date notions of dress, and many confidences on the aids to beauty, begets merriment unceasing. Other contributors to the bill, ably overseered by Mr Nelson Francis, are Miss Ethel Loftus, Mr Paul Mill, and Mr J. C. Crawley, the evening terminating with an interesting series of pictures on Ruffell's Bioscope.

At the Hippodrome, Birmingham, this week, Charles Morritt, magician, is paying a return visit and doing some marvellous tricks. That quaint comedian Alf Gibson is very amusing. Flora Lumiere in her act, "The Human Butterfly," is effective. George Martinengo has a fine baritone voice, and is decidedly clever on the 'cello. Addie Dorina in her character impersonations; the Greggsons in a comedy sketch; Mountford and Walsh, Lew Wells, and Edward and Nettie Masse contribute to an excellent programme.

THE LYCEUM THEATRE.

Visitors to the old Lyceum Theatre will certainly be surprised when they enter the new building which has been designed upon the same site by Mr Bertie Crewe, the eminent theatrical architect. Although in the former erection the auditorium was comparatively small, the extent of the site was very large, containing as it did some 28,000 sq. ft., or about three-quarters of an acre. Mr Crewe's newly-designed Lyceum is of such a size that, according to the strictest requirements of the London County Council, there are no less than nineteen exit staircases from the auditorium, representing 4,750 persons, and it would be easily possible to accommodate an audience of 5,000.

The old elevation and portico in Wellington-street, such a well-known landmark in the West-end, has been retained, and has been treated in cream, and gold which throws up the massive columns and elaborate pediment. The whole of this has been outlined in electric glow lamps some 1,000 in number, which, with the brilliant flame arcs, will make a most important feature in the Strand.

From Wellington-street one enters the spacious vestibule with marble mosaic floor, and richly decorated and pannelled walls, and ceiling. From this the foyer is reached by a magnificient solid inlaid marble mosaic stair 22ft. wide, divided by massive brass handrails, and beaten brass panels. A special feature of the entrance hall is the double box-office, on each side of the stair, of which one office will be reserved for stalls and boxes and the other for circle, thus avoiding any crush or confusion in the booking, and ensuring the quickness necessary in a house where two performances are given nightly. The entrance doors and doors throughout the building are probably the most elaborate specimens of carved mahogany ever put into a place of amusement. They, together with all barriers, orchestra rail, bar counters, and cabinets, have been designed by Mr Crewe strictly in Louis XV. style, which is the style adopted throughout the building.

The foyer is another magnificent apartment 42ft. in length, treated in a similar manner to the entrance hall, and from thence easy corridors and broad staircases lead to the stalls and circle. At the back of the circle is a superb lounge some 50ft. in length, which, fitted up with couches, arm-chairs, and occasional tables, will form a most agreeable retreat.

The auditorium is one of the largest ever designed, being 100ft. in depth from curtain line to back wall, with a clear width of 92ft. The two circles are carried without any columns whatever, except one flies is over 50ft. Special contrivances have been designed for working the scenery with a minimum of hand labour, and the most extensive and weighty sets can be dealt with in the least possible space of time.

The comfort of the artists have been specially studied, as besides about thirty spacious dressing-rooms a billiard room has been provided for the gentlemen, and a lounge fitted with writing tables, arm chairs, &c., for the ladies, thus giving both sexes a pleasant retreat between the two performances.

The entire building has been carried out according to the strictest regulations of the London County Council, and everything that skill and long experience can teach for the absolute safety of the public and the performers has been introduced. Everything in the building is fire-resisting, even the framework of the gallery seats being in mahogany. The lavatory accommodation is ample, and the sanitary arrangements of the most modern description.

There will be two performances nightly at the Lyceum, one at 6 30 and one at 9 0, and Mr Barrasford, the able managing director, has provided a most novel and remarkable programme for the opening, which will take place on Boxing Day, Dec. 26. The prices are extraordinarily low for such a beautiful place of entertainment, being 3s. in the stalls, 2s. in the circle, 1s. in the pit, and 6d. in the gallery. It only remains to say that in holding capacity the Lyceum is easily the first in London and probably in the kingdom, and with Mr Barrasford at the head of affairs its success should be assured.

It may be interesting on such a large and well-known building to publish the names of the contractors who have been engaged on the work, and it is certainly a great feather in all their respective caps that the whole of this gigantic undertaking has been carried out in six months. The general contractors and cabinet work has been done by Messrs J. P. Parkinson and Sons, of Blackpool and Newcastle, whose representative, Mr William Parkinson, has been in residence on the works. The constructional steel work by Messrs Heenan and Froude, of Manchester; plumbing, Messrs W. Hendry and Sons, of Glasgow; fibrous plaster decorations, seating, draperies, and carpets by Messrs S. J. Waring and Sons, Oxford-street; electric lighting by the National Electric Construction Company, London, and the fittings by the General Electric Company, London. Mosaic staircases and paving by Messrs Diespeker, Limited, London; Plenum heating and ventilation by Messrs R. Dawson and Co., of Stalybridge; fireproof curtain and hydrants by Messrs E. Oldroyd and Co., Leeds; steel stage

MANAGING-DIRECTOR, MR. THOMAS BARRASFORD. ARCHITECT, MR. BERTIE CREWE.

5ft. from each wall, which do not interfere with the view from any seat in the house. The ground floor is divided into stalls and pit, there being fourteen rows of the former and sixteen rows of the latter. There are ten private boxes, approached by separate staircases, each box being no less than 12ft. in width, a distinct improvement on the small and cramped private boxes at so many other places of amusement. The circle and gallery are certainly the largest ever erected. In the circle there are no less than fourteen rows of seats, with spacious promenades at the back and sides finished with alabaster balustradings. At the back of the circle is the cinématograph chamber of fire-proof construction, which has been incorporated in the building and forms part of the decoration. There are seventeen rows of seats in the gallery, and the size of the auditorium can be computed from the fact that this part of the house alone can accommodate 1,500.

As before stated, the decorations have been carried out in Louis XV. style. The circle fronts are decorated in cream and pink enriched with gold. Beautifully modelled cupids rest upon it holding electric lamps in their hands. The box façades are specially rich, and over them is a decorated frieze from which springs a series of semi-vaultings which in turn carry the coved ceiling, the whole being completed by the movable roof; the recesses in the vaultings and spaces in the coves are filled with oil paintings of beautiful design and execution. The proscenium frame has alabaster columns and an elaborate segmental head, above which are two female figures of heroic size supporting a most elaborate shield.

The electric fittings have been specially designed in strict accordance with the style of the building, and are of brass water-gilt. The stalls and circle are carpeted in Wilton velvet pile, and fitted with luxurious velvet tip-up fauteuils, and even in the gallery the seats are comfortably upholstered. The seats, draperies, and hangings are all in bright red, and the carpets in harmonious shades of green.

The building is heated on the newest Plenum system, the warm air being driven in at the back of every part of the house and extracted on the stage, thus ensuring freedom from draught. It is so arranged that an even temperature can be kept in winter and summer, either heaters or coolers being used to treat the air according to circumstances.

The stage is one of the largest and most complete in the kingdom, being about 60ft. deep by 100ft. in width. The floor of the stage is all in teak, and the framework and provisions for traps, bridges, and cuts all being in steel. The grid is some 60ft. above the stage, and the width between the steel by Messrs R. Moreland and Sons, London; ornamental tiling by Messrs Craven, Dunhill, and Co.; painted glass by Messrs Chas. Evans and Co.; sanitary fittings by Messrs Twyfords, Limited; ornamental brass handrailing, &c., by Messrs Bolton and Fane; and the panic bolts have been supplied by Messrs Tom Jones, Lock, and Co. The whole work has been carried out under Mr Crewe by his able and experienced clerk of the works, Mr Geo. Sheen.

AT the Opera House, Middlesbrough, will be produced on Monday next the pantomime, Cinderella, by Mr Humphrey E Brammell. The company includes Miss Marie Loftus as Prince Peerless. It is three or four years since Miss Loftus was last in Middlesbrough, and her appearance at the Opera will, no doubt, be a great attraction. She will be supported by Miss Alice Digby, Messrs Lawrence Barclay, Tom Bass, Victor Travers, and George Hestor.

Miss Edith Finlay and company, warm favourites at the QUEEN'S, POPLAR, will be seen in Holly Leaves; or, The Crime of a Christmas Eve. The Morgante Troupe, Three Sisters Ernest, Lady Mansell's Juveniles, Ida Brophy, Two Whites, Ben Nevis, Edie King, De Vere and Kenwick, the Holland Comedy company, J. H. Crew, Ruffell's Bioscope, Musical Koones, the Lannons, and Tom Leamore will supply the incidentals.

The EMPRESS, BRIXTON, presents a most seasonable attraction in Fred Karno's company in Mumming Birds, and a capital entertainment will be submitted by Harry Lauder, Chas. Mildare, Alec Kennedy, Joe O'Gorman, Dolly Harmer, Emma Don and company, Sisters Wingrove, Stella Stanley, Boswell's Circus, the Bob Hanlon Troupe, the Selkirks, and Julian Ross.

The ROYAL ALBERT MUSIC HALL, conducted with spirit and enterprise by Mr Charles Relf, still acknowledges the genial sway of the chairman; and Mr Walter Leaver, with his hammer in his hand, will announce on Boxing Night the following attraction:—Brien M'Cullough and company, in Two Runaway Girls; Miss Flo Penley, E. J. Sheldon, Peggy Fame, Harry Wright, Nellie Gannon, F. W. Wilkinson, Lily Hope, Will Burton, and De Voy, Hurst, and Fredericks.

ADVERTISERS and SUBSCRIBERS who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "THE ERA sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers not later than the Tuesday in each Week.

CHRISTMAS AT THE MUSIC HALLS.

Music hall entertainments grow in grace and in the knowledge of the public appreciation of the upward trend that is observable in them; and if this Yuletide brings in its train greater responsibilities than ever we note everywhere that variety caterers have their finger on the public pulse, and are striving to give in their entertainments the real recreation and genuine amusement demanded by the millions of London's workers. For the first time in the annals of our metropolitan amusements we have a most important palace in the West-end appealing to its patrons on the two houses a-night plan. This is the Lyceum Theatre of Varieties, which may be said to put the corner stone to Mr Tom Barrasford's enterprise by providing him with a London house for his circuit, which extends as far as Paris, where he has been running the Alhambra so successfully. A new departure of even greater moment is the Coliseum, Mr Oswald Stoll's magnificent house in St. Martin's-lane, which opens to-day, after a couple of postponement. For the rest it will be found that the managers of the central and suburban houses fully realise the necessity for special efforts at Christmastide, and from Bloomsbury to Battersea, from Chelsea to Camberwell, in spite of the depletion of the ranks of variety for the insistent demands of pantomime, there will be fun and frolic on every side. A glance at the appended list will give some slight idea of the excellent preparations that have been made for the Yuletide festival.

We have already given a summary of the Coliseum attractions, and Mr Alfred Butt presented his Christmas bill on Thursday evening to a very appreciative audience at the PALACE. The novelties at the ALHAMBRA and EMPIRE will come later. Both present the attractive ballets that have drawn appreciative audiences for some time past. The older Leicester-square house has a capital divertissement in All the Year Round, and international goodwill is reflected in the joyousness of The Entente Cordiale. The Milliner Duchess is a ballet that has by no means exhausted its attractiveness at the variety house, of which Mr George Edwardes is the presiding genius. To the new ballet that is promised shortly, viz., The Dancing Doll, we have already drawn attention, and the variety company has many excellent turns, among them being Charles T. Aldrich.

At the OXFORD Miss Louie Freear heads the list, and Vesta Tilley will also appear in a new scena calculated to display her great histrionic abilities. Joe Elvin, who always comes to the Oxford at Yuletide, will be seen in a new sketch, Fares, Please. Bransby Williams, Gus Elen, Vesta Victoria, Joe O'Gorman, Norman French, Ray Wallace, Amy Clevere, Tom Leamore, Fanny Wentworth, Jack Camp, Will H. Fox, Lily Langtry, the Five Whiteleys, Lottie Lennox, Talberto and Douglas, and the Max Trevally-Harley Troupe complete a fine holiday company.

Miss Vesta Tilley, Miss Louie Freear, Miss Vesta Victoria, Mr Bransby Williams, Mr Tom Leamore, and Miss Ray Wallace also grace the TIVOLI bill. Other attractions are Mr Will Evans, Clarke and Hamilton, Dolly Harmer, Whit Cunliffe, Miss Radie Furman, the Royal Six, George and Gusti Edler, the Julians, and the Harvey Boys.

The LYCEUM company includes Mdlle. Van Parys, soprano, from the Grand Opera, Paris; M. Ansaldi, tenor, from the Grand Opera, Paris; Mdlle. Dasty, contralto, from the Théâtre La Monnaie, Brussels; M. Rey, baritone, from the Grand Opera, Nice; La Wilma, the lady artist in sand and smoke; Phil Ray, comic; George Leyton, in Enoch Arden, a new scena by Harrington and Scott; Heloise Titcomb, vocalist; Carl Reinsch, sporting act with horses and dogs; the Harmony Four; Taylor's Elephants; the Freydos, athletes and hand-balancers; the Five Parrocopis, jugglers; Permane Bros., in their eccentric acrobatic act; Canadian Banker, aerial somersault loop on bicycle; and animated pictures. There are to be two performances nightly at 6·30 and 9 0

At the LONDON PAVILION Scotland will be represented by Harry Lauder, England by Phil Ray, and America by Will English. The comic element will also have capital exponents in Chas. Pastor, Chris. Richards, Chas. Coverdale, and Nat Travers. Miss Edith Housley and company will be seen in an original incident entitled Her Chance; and other turns will include Arthur Prince, Nina Martino, Sisters Wingrove, Bertha Pertina, Alice Pierce, Alma Gray, Marie Wilton, Alethea, Patty Frank Troupe, Ergotti and King Luis, Massona, and Bros. Artois.

Mr Joe Elvin and Co., in Paying the Bill, will be one of the chief attractions at the METROPOLITAN, where Mr Jack Edgar has secured an excellent holiday crowd, which includes the twin-formed Bohemian Sisters (Rosa and Josepha), Sam Mayo, Percival, Alma Gray, Belle Davies and Piccaninnies, Phil Ray, Will English, Sisters Desmond, Tom White's Arabs, Dutch Daly, Lillie Langtry, Lily Lassah, The Carlisles, The Smythons, in The Lie Alarm Harry Anderson, and Athas and Collins.

At the ROYAL, HOLBORN, Mr H. Ketteman relies on the following strong list:—F. Eustace and company, in Our Curate; Fred Keston, G. W. Foster, Sibb and Sibb, Black and White Zouaves, Hector and Paulus, Will Driscoll, Ruffell's Bioscope, Les Sprays, Sadie Seymour, the Wedburns, and Bonnie Goodwin and Piccaninnies.

The MIDDLESEX will present John Lawson and company in A Bride for a Living. Arthur Reece, Eight Lancashire Lads, Silent Tait, the Wyffs, Sisters Hall, Sam Mayo, Marie Pownall, the New Bioscope, Wal Pink and company in The Prize Baby, Stella Stanley, the Two Bees, Howard and Collinson, Walker and Lake, Lily Foy, Claxton and Fenn, Rosie Royce, Menva, Violet Mills, Harry Luck, Frank Bernard and company in Hello!

At the BEDFORD Mr B. P. Lucas relies on the following list:—Arthur Reece, Frank Coyne, Reed and Glenney, Frank Hardie and company, the Ashers, Amy Sullivan, Sam Mayo, George Foyle, Belle and Pearl, Mignon Tremaine, and Ara, Zebra, and Vera.

The EUSTON appeals to a wide constituency with Fred Karno and company, in Mumming Birds; James Fawn, the Royal Six, Ella Lane, Dan Conroy, Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, Eileen Douglas, Nelson's Newsboys, Leo Tell, and Fyne and Hurley.

At the CHELSEA PALACE audiences will find Will Evans's building of a chicken house no mere carpenter's scene; and wonderment will be created by Annie Abbott, the little Georgia magnet. Other attractions are Victoria Monks, Alma Gray, the Smythsons company, in The Lie Alarm, Peggy Pryde, George D'Albert, Gus Barra, Sam Mayo, and J. W. Hall.

Mr T. S Dickie's Christmas holiday company at the STANDARD will include Mr George Marriott, in Ye Chiming Bells; Lily Burnand, Marie Collins, the Gladenbecks, Signor and Madame Borelli, Lady Mansell's Juveniles, Judge's parrots, Will Cornish, Ryder Slone, Primavesi, Three Sisters Chester, Smiler Lee, Arthur Verne, Harry Luck, and Cissy Heath.

At the GRANVILLE, WALHAM-GREEN, Mr Jesse Sparrow has engaged the following artistes:—Prof. Inman Hockinge, the American hypnotist; Norman French, Nina Martino, the Borellis, Edie Gray and coons, Captain Slingsby, Maggie Rimmer, Silent Tait, My Landlord (sketch), Harry Andersen, G. H. Elliott, Martine and Son, the Edisonograph, Brothers Artois, Bert Weston, Francis, Harry Leybourne, and Lily Burnand.

At the HAMMERSMITH PALACE Mr Coe will have Will Evans in an "attempt" to play a pantomime, Sable Fern, Kisbey, Arthur Prince, Lily Langtry, Lee and Bentley, Athas and Collins, Lord, Murray, Lord, Olga and Ivan, Caledonian Boys, Winnie Derson, the Gladenbecks, the Edisonograph, Jack Pleasants, the Osranis, and Vesta Victoria. There will be reduced prices to all parts at Boxing Day matinée.

The Christmas entertainment at the CANTERBURY will include, amongst its contributors, the interesting Dr. Walford Bodie, Ray Wallace, Whit Cunliffe, Bransby Williams, Terry and Lambert, Arthur Lloyd and company, the Caledonian Boys, Radie Firman, Leo Tell, Lottie Lennox, Conway and Leland, Signor and Madame Borelli, and Victoria Monks.

At the PARAGON a new and original musical concoction, The Brown Bear, will be enacted by Joe Elvin, and Ethel Arden and George Abel will be seen once more in Three of a Kind. The variety turns will comprise the Caledonian Boys, Tom Leamore, Clark and Hamilton, Five Juliens, Will H. Fox, Ian Colquhoun, Will Evans, Jules Keller, Fanny Wentworth, Walter Stanley, and Maggie Walsh.

Mr Frank Weeks' SOUTH LONDON Christmas bill will have a pantomime played by Harry Pleon, and Steely and Dowton, J. H. Kavanagh, Ryan and Hall, Valoni (juggler), Mezzetti and Mora, Edie King, Ara, Zebra, and Vora, Connie Williams, Two Errolls, Tom White's Arabs, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope will be among the attractions.

Mr Lennox Barry's first Yuletide bill at the BATTERSEA EMPIRE contains the following list:—The Eugene Family, Ivy Lorene, Clivette, Marion Hood, Walter Stockwell, Phil Sinclair, Maizie Stewart, Lavers and Lake, exhibition of photos., and Edie Gray and coons.

There is a strong corps of old favourites at GATTI'S (ROAD), and those crowding the "family resort" will be happy in the entertainment supplied by Tom Costello, Katie Lawrence, Wal Pink and company, May Evans, the Three Missouris, Sisters Caselli, Sam Mayo, Paul Hesse Trio, Three Sisters Chester, Ida Brophy, the Lannons, Annie Laurie, Dan Elmer, and the Mutograph.

John Lawson and company, in A Bride for a Living, will be seen at the CAMBERWELL PALACE. The variety will be supplied by Sam Mayo, Austin Rudd, Sisters Geretti, the Strolling Players, Athas and Collins, Percival, Ergotti and King Luis Troupe, Harvey Boys, Virginia Piccaninnies, Harry Leybourne; Hiawatha Wed, by the Two Bees; Martin and Son, Sisters Clive, Outlaw Trio, Con and Conrad, Will Farrell, Tony and Flo Vernon, Howard and Collinson, the Edisonograph, Talberto and Douglas, and Lily Burnand.

At the STRATFORD EMPIRE there will be the one and only Marie Lloyd at the head of the programme, which includes the Brothers Wille, Newhouse and Ward, Morcashani, M'Gregors, Duncan's Scotch Collies. There will be a morning performance on Boxing Day.

The HOLLOWAY EMPIRE attractions are Happy Fanny Fields, the Bros. Horne, O'Gust, Laurie's Kindergarten, Alfonso Trio, Harriett Vernon, Hall Earle, the Bohemians, Chas. Deane, and Ethel Ra-Leslie.

The NEW CROSS EMPIRE presents Bella and Bijou, Sisters Klos, Clown Zerthos, Five Delevines, Alexandra Dagmar, Cabby and Shirker, Syd May, Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, Ike Scott and Son, and Ada Cerito.

The HACKNEY EMPIRE will have a sketch from A. C. Lilly and company, and the turns include Starr and Leslie, Walter Bellonini, Fred Karno Troupe, Fred Poplar, Harry Bedford, Prof. Dunning, Kahn and Kahn, and Kitty Wager.

Audiences at the SHEPHERD'S-BUSH EMPIRE will have much to laugh at in a sketch by Mark Melford and company, and there will be plenty of entertainment to be derived from the efforts of Burke, Moller, and Teller, Burke, Andras, and Frisco, Lizzie B. Raymond, the Levinos, John Alexander and company, Szarvasi-Ferencz Troupe, the Alaskas, Crown Ferreros, and the Picquays.

Mr Harry Bawn's scheme of amusement at the GRAND, CLAPHAM, has for its principal attractions Harry Lauder, Sable Fern, Violet Choice, Austin Rudd, Dandy George and his Dog Rosie, Mdlle. Jenny Mills, Ruffell's Bioscope, Harry Freeman, Arden and Abel.

Mr W. Spearman, at the ISLINGTON EMPIRE, will fill the holiday-makers with delight on the presentation of the following turns:—Lew Lake and company, in The Bloomsbury Burglars; Baker and Balfe, Tom Dunmore, Cliff Ryland, Stavordale Quintet, Bob Hanlon Troupe, Jack Camp, Jessie Albini, Maggie Walsh, and Belle Davis.

The DUCHESS PALACE, BALHAM, will have a very wonderful attraction in Dr. Walford Bodie, a demonstrator of bloodless surgery. Other turns include Ethel Loftus, Harry Bancroft, Five Bandurrias, the Katos, A. B. Houghton, Fred Callane Trio, and Tom Costello.

At the WALTHAMSTOW PALACE Mr Arthur J. Barclay will present twice nightly the fairy pantomime Cinderella. The variety turns listed are Ginnett's Remounts, the Mayvilles, the Escaladors, British Quartet, Orpheus, and Gladys Mavius.

Mr Eustace Jay at the PALACE THEATRE, CROYDON, will be served by the Arthur Saxon Trio, Dora Clifford, Jack Thornbury, Dora Martini, Ada Victor, Mark Leslie, Excelsior Duettists, Chris Wren, Clorinda Thurtell, Dora Lyric, J. P. Lloyd, R. W. Bentley, Blanche Holt, the Lulaine Darrell Troupe, and the Brown and Kelly Combination.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(COPYRIGHT.)

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

FIRST of all, "A Merry Christmas to all ye Merrie, Merrie Men of ye World of Shows!" There are those in this sad-eyed old world of ours who whisper suspicion and doubt about the rightness of fun and merriment—good people all, no doubt; but somehow they fear merriment, and sigh and say "Alas! and alack! sorrow must needs come. Don't," say they, "be gay or lighte-me-minded, or the shock when sorrow comes will be so great that you won't be able to bear it." Now, this is a queer philosophy, and "I hae me doots about it." Happiness is for all God's creatures. To be merry and gay is the normal mood and mode; to be sad and "dour" is the abnormal. So again we say to all "A Merry, Jolly, Bright, Christmas."

THE Rev. T. Horne, the honorary organiser of the Showmen's Guild, writes to say:—"I am glad to bear a message of glad tidings this Christmas—to cheer and encourage the whole showman world. The committee, in accordance with the established custom, deputed to me the honour and duty of asking our esteemed President, Lord George Sanger, to continue his most important work as President of the Guild."

THE worthy president sent the following generous and highly characteristic reply to the Rev. T. Horne:—

My Dear Chaplain,—Many thanks for your very kind and interesting letter. I am very much pleased to hear of your new appointment. I am sure it must be gratifying to all who know you and your work; and I hope it will be advantageous to yourself in every way. I shall endeavour to attend the meeting at the Royal Agricultural Hall, when we hold our annual gathering, and with my usual donation. With the season's compliments.

I remain respectfully yours,
GEORGE SANGER, President.

Park Farm, East Finchley, N.W., Dec. 18, 1904.

THE "usual donation" is Lord George's modest way of intimating that for the fifth year in succession he has come to the help of his weaker and poorer brethren of the road with the munificent donation of £100, an admirable way of encouraging the members of the Guild to follow his most excellent lead.

WILL all committee men send in their members' money at once? See urgent advertisement.

PLEASE make a note that until the committee provide otherwise, the address of the office of the Guild will be Herbert-street, Hoxton, London, N.; or, Guild Secretary, care of The Era Offices, Wellington-street, London, W.C. Send to London after this notice, and not to Manchester. This will obviate delay in reply. All communications respecting business—Parliamentary, press, or public propaganda work—should be addressed to the office, 48, Herbert-street, Hoxton, N.

OUR American cousins very justly pride themselves on being "smart and spry." They call it "hustling the work along." The Motherland is held in cheap but kindly esteem as being "too slow for anything." Yet we can still demonstrate that the Old Country is as smart and as spry when need arises as her much-too-much-praised daughter, the U.S.A. Talking to that ever-young organiser of the World's Fair, Mr T. Read, in grave, matter-of-fact tones he told us: "Not quite a week ago this vast hall was crowded with all kinds of animal life—the great Cattle Show. A chaos of impedimenta, living and dead, had to be moved away. Yet we did it; and, as you see, now we are really waiting for our big opening day." Of course, like all great organisers, Mr Read has the gift of inspiring others, and gathering about him the best assistant managers and co-workers. First amongst these must come Mr Read, jun., who is, of course, his father's right-hand man. Then we have Mr Forster, the able and courteous lieutenant and secretary of the Read management—a valuable auxiliary.

AS we passed down the right-hand side of the immense area we noted in our rapid first survey the excellent shows of Messrs Taylor, Chittock, Cottrell, John Hastings, two ground booths, and a side show of mystery, "The Lost Duchess." At the extreme end of the open space (we entered at the Liverpool-road entrance) were the concerns of Harry Hughes, Frank Turner's shooter, and Wm. Storey's fine art.

ON the other side of the building, were shows by Simpson, Mrs Chas. Bailey, and three entresol shows, illusions of an up-to-date character, under Frank Turner's banner. We found concerns of Frank Turner in almost every corner of the fair—Frank Turner, the man of many enterprises, and an artist to his finger tips. Turner's artistry is seen all over the place—electric fishponds, jungles, automatic machines, and, as aforesaid, shows of modern mystery.

AT the great entrance the outside show has been thoroughly renovated. Thousands of coloured lights give a brilliant effect to the exclusive arcade entrance. Illustrated by special cartoon posters of the endless chain of novelties, variety turns, and show exhibits, it is a genuine all-day show, with a constant round of novelties.

THE principal object in the Grand Arcade Promenade to the fair is the Christmas tree, huge in dimension, and all gloriously decked with toys and gifts enough to turn even old Father Christmas green with jealousy. Messrs T. and T. E. Read are veritable Sancti Clausi. Again, the ubiquitous Frank Turner has novelties right and left—automatic machines, electric fish ponds, &c.

THE overhead galleries constitute an almost separate and distinct fair ground. Here are side shows, throwing games, novelty stalls, coker shies, et hoc genus. Here, too, is Louis Kalisch in control of the Empress Ball-room, a dream of beauty, fair woman and gallant squires of dames. Here may the votaries of Terpsichore "trip it, trip it, on the light fantastic toe." Here, from the heights above, we looked down upon the great central open space. In its accustomed place of honour, the exact centre, is Messrs Robert Fossett and Son's circus arena.

THE name of Fossett is a synonym for excellence. Horsemanship, clowning, and feats of expert skill and derring do will be the delight of countless thousands. A special turn will be the great troupe of Bedouin Arabs, the Risleys of the desert. High above the arena, and constituting a special free sight, Menotti will perform on the "taut wire." All the well-known special features of the Menotti répertoire will be exhibited daily at 3 45 and 9 45 (free). Also the aerial sextet, the Herbert Troupe will still further enterprise with unique acts of skill in mid-air.

A GREAT novelty is provided by the lessees for their patrons—the Canadian slope; or, "slipping the slips," the only one in the British Isles, a highly diverting mechanical contrivance, whereon you may experience marvellous sensations of motion, combining the features of a skyward switchback and the juvenile audacity of sliding down the bannister. We predict that all London will crowd to enjoy the very latest mechanical novelty, "Slipping the Slip." Amongst the new side shows is the marvellous optical illusion, "The Topsy-Turvy Swing Coach," introduced by Mr Claude Lowe. Bailey's switchback gondolas and big wheel, with Messrs Read's Channel tunnel railway are amongst the big items.

WOMBWELL'S MENAGERIE had not arrived, but would be on their pitch at the week end, and ready for the grand opening performance to-day, Christmas Eve.

WE do not doubt that Messrs Read, their capital staff, and the various entertainers under their banner will reap a satisfactory return for the excellent work they essay every year for the delight and recreation of the people of London.

WE are glad to dissipate any doubt as to the profits arising from the annual ball for showpeople, which marks the yearly pilgrimage of the provincial showman and his wife to London at the end of the season. There is no margin of profit at all; the 3s. 6d. charged for the supper and ball is the net cost absolutely. The committee constitutes a guarantee to make up losses—not a rare event, but there is no balance to allocate. Hence London is not on the same lines as Bolton.

MR ROBT. PIKE, market superintendent, Bolton, writes to say that the ball is fixed for Wednesday, Jan. 4, under distinguished local patronage. Tickets for dinner and ball, 5s., may be obtained at The Era office, or direct from Mr Pike. All profits to the Guild Fund, as in previous years.

SUBSCRIPTIONS to Guild Funds.—Isaac Richards, 10s. 6d.

FOSSETT'S Hippodrome has opened at Rugby for a short season, and is doing excellent business. The entertainment is good all round, and special mention must be made of Mdlle. Fossett, in her act, who shows herself to be a most daring and accomplished equestrienne, and Mr Thomas Fossett is also most successful in his express jockey act, being one of the fastest trick riders known. Other items on the programme are Mr Charles Beckett on the horizontal bars; Mdlle. Emmie in a graceful and dashing performance; Leonzy, who ties himself into an almost impossible knot; Topsy, the performing elephant, who displays remarkable intelligence; and the two well-trained midget ponies. Mons. Otto, hand-balancer, is very good, and the Brothers Smarte as the clowns cause much amusement.

MR P. COLLINS opened his annual Christmas fair in Monument-road, Birmingham, on the 16th inst., with his gondolas and superb living picture show and numerous other attractions.

P. COLLINS, LIMITED, opened last week on the market-place, Bilston. In addition to his splendid machines there were Johnstone's show and the usual Emmas, cocoanut sheets, shooting galleries, and ring boards.

MR HARRY STRICKLAND opens Saturday, Jan. 1, with his grand Christmas carnival and fancy fair on Pitcheroft, Worcester, consisting of H. Strickland's galloping horses and other attractions.

AT Llandilo (Carmarthenshire) Police-court on Saturday last George Danter, the well-known caterer for amusements at fairs, was charged with using a locomotive improperly on the highway. A superintendent explained that the defendant had a licence for Glamorganshire, for which he had paid the sum of £10, but before he could use it in Carmarthenshire it should be endorsed, and a charge of 2s. 6d. a day paid. The defendant, who said it was an oversight on his part not to have got the licence endorsed, was fined 10s. and costs 8s.

HANCOCK'S WINTER GARDENS, Plymouth, are attracting crowds this week, a capital entertainment comprising living pictures, a circus (in which the star turn is Andrew Wheeler, a skilful horseman), and contributions by Funny Sammy, Louise Fawcett, and Moig and St. Cleer.

ACCORDING to reports contained in the South African newspapers, Messrs E. H. Bostock and Wombwell's travelling mammoth circus company, under the excellent management of Captain Taylor, are doing immense business, and patronised by the military, civic, and other influential bodies, crowds visiting the show. The parade is quite a feature, the performances continually being changed, and much enthusiasm expressed at the efforts of the performers. They include Diavolo, Hinton and Frank Wootton, football cyclists; Miss Rose Montero, equestrienne; the Frantz Troupe of acrobats; Miss Leo Clare and Mons. Ernest, in their double equestrian act; the Lukauhima Troupe of acrobats; the Paster Brothers, musical entertainers; Signor Bertani, ladderite; Tom Verr, in his skating turn; the Three Zaraes, in a sketch, Mashing the Barmaid; Happy Jackies, with banjo song and entrées; and Jacko, the man monkey. The menagerie, containing an immense collection, and the side shows are also attractive, Professor Hohenardell, the German lion tamer, being a great attraction.

AT Algie's Hippodrome, Carlisle, exceptionally good programmes are the rule. Mdlle. Fillis, whose feats on a globe are wonderful, and Mr Frank Hope, an exceptionally expert trick cyclist, have been appearing lately. The Zerbinis have given a pretty and tuneful musical act. Mr Rowland Hill is a really humorous "turn," and the burlesque conjurors, Henriot and Sanvion, the acrobatic clog dancer Esme, the Ver Vains Troupe of whistlers and dancers, and Osmond, an acrobatic "table and chair expert," are responsible for interesting contributions. Mr Algie has been helping most materially the fund for providing the poor with Christmas dinners at their own homes.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In reference to your "Showman" column in The Era this week, I beg to say that the only shows in the Isle of Wight are Mr Geo. Baker's Hippodrome at Newport and my World's Fair and Carnival at Ryde. I am the sole proprietor of the World's Fair and Carnival at Queen-street, Portsmouth, which opened last Saturday for four weeks. My Christmas fair and bazaar in High-street, Ryde, is a great success.

Yours faithfully, TOM NORMAN.

World's Fair and Carnival,
33, Queen-street, Portsmouth, Dec. 19.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I think that all showmen should join with me in wishing "Long life and success" to the Rev. Mr Horne, for the able manner in which he has stood by us, and has worked night and day for the Guild. I think it is a shame and disgrace to the community of showpeople that this gentleman should have to plead, and beg—if I may so term it—for money to keep such a union as the Guild afloat. I should like to meet at any place, and any time, with delegates from the three or four societies of stall-holders, to try to work out some plan to supply money for Parliamentary and other Guild work. Yours faithfully, T. BURGIN.

INFORMATION relating to Shows and Fairs, suitable for this column, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, "The Showman World."

MR ARTHUR CARLTON'S pantomime Aladdin, with 150 female artists and new and expensive dresses, is being looked forward to with great expectation in Ealing, and will open on Boxing Day afternoon.

AT the Bordesley Palace, Birmingham, this week The Belle of the Orient is being presented by Mr Joe Peterman's burlesque company. The piece is well acted throughout, and the scenery and dresses are above the average. Peppo's Monkeys are very amusing, as also are Bernar's Marionettes. Robertus and Wilfredo are experts with the ball; Florrie Robina has a good coon song; and Lyane and Gehs are clever contortionists.

THE LATE MRS. BOSTOCK.

On Wednesday, the 14th inst., there passed out of the ranks of the famous Wombwell family one who was held in high esteem among her friends and others with whom she had come in contact during a memorable career, namely, Mrs Emma Bostock (née Wombwell), who died at the residence—Rose-lane, Norwich—of her only daughter, Mrs Fannie Wombwell Fitt, the esteemed wife of Mr F. W. Fitt, part proprietor of the Norwich Hippodrome, and a councillor of the city of Norwich. The deceased lady had suffered for some time past with a painful malady, and died after a slight operation had been performed at the age of seventy. As many will remember, she was a direct descendant of the famous Wombwell family, whose head, Mr George Wombwell, established his celebrated menagerie in the year 1805. She was the daughter of the late Mr Wombwell, and inherited the menagerie, which she carried on so successfully for many years, retiring about seventeen years since with an ample fortune, and then settled in London. About ten years since she came to Norwich, where her daughter, Mrs Fannie W. Fitt, resided, and since then the deceased has formed many friends and acquaintances, who deeply regret her death. On her retirement she distributed the greater part of her fortune among her four children—Mr James W. Bostock, who is at present travelling in America; Mr Edward H. Bostock, the other of the proprietors of the Norwich Hippodrome, as also the owner of a large establishment in South Africa, rivalling Messrs Barnum and Bailey's show, and of the Wombwell's Menageries Nos. 1 and 2, now touring in this country; Mr Frank C. Bostock, now the proprietor of the Hipprodrome, Paris, and also a "Carnival Midway" in America and Color Island, and Mrs Fannie W. Fitt, and, to her delight be it said, they are all doing well. The deceased, it has been observed, bore a remarkable resemblance to her late Majesty Queen Victoria. Twice during her travels she received commands from her late Majesty to appear with the collection, the one now known as the Royal Menagerie No. 1, in the Quadrangle at Windsor Castle, to which the deceased responded, and after the inspection by the Royal party, the young lion cubs were introduced to the Royal Family in the drawing-room. Needless to add, Her Majesty afterwards sumptuously entertained Mrs Bostock and the whole staff.

The funeral obsequies, which were of a quiet nature, took place on Friday, the 17th inst., at St. Mark's, Lakenham, Norwich, in the presence of a large number of friends and neighbours. The first part of the ceremony was conducted inside the church, which is of fine architectural beauty, by the Rev. John Huxley, M.A., who impressively read the service. The mourners were Mr and Mrs E. H. Bostock, Mr and Mrs Frank C. Bostock, Mr and Mrs F. W. Fitt, Mr Charles Wombwell, Mr Geo. Bostock, Miss Doris Fitt, Mr and Mrs F. Bostock, Mr and Mrs S. W. Fitt, Mr Arbuckle, and Mr Thompson. Among those present were Mr Fred Morgan, manager of the Theatre Royal; Mr J. W. Browne (The Era), and many others. Floral contributions were sent by Mr and Mrs James C. Bostock and children, Mr and Mrs E. H. Bostock and children, Mr and Mrs Frank C. Bostock and children, Mr and Mrs F. W. Fitt, Miss Doris Fitt, Mr Chas. Wombwell, Mr and Mrs F. Bostock, Mr and Mrs J. W. Bowles, Mr and Mrs S. W. Fitt, Miss Boyes, Mr and Mrs W. Cross, Mr and Mrs N. C. Fitt, Mr and Mrs Parkington, Harriet, Jessie, and

THE LATE EMMA BOSTOCK.

Nurse; the staff of Mr F. W. Fitt; the artistes and staff of the Hippodrome, Norwich; the staff of Mr E. H. Bostock's No. 1 Royal Menagerie; the same from No. 2 Menagerie; the controllers of the Hippodrome, Paris; the staff of the Hippodrome, Paris; Mr Rei, and Mrs Collins.

The coffin, which was of highly polished oak with brass fittings, had the following inscription engraved on the plate:—

EMMA BOSTOCK,
Born July 23, 1834.
Died, Dec. 14, 1904.

Mr J. F. Smith, the undertaker, carried out his duties in an admirable manner, the hearse and carriages being supplied by Messrs Wigg and Son.

The churchyard of St. Marks has long been closed, but the privilege of interment of the deceased was granted in deference to her expressed wish, and her grave is within sight of her former residence. We tender our sympathies to the bereaved relatives.

A FEW MEMORIES OF THE PAST.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—My good friend, "Lion," who refers to a previous letter of mine on the subject of missing the "good old shows," sends a welcome contribution relative to circuses and menageries past and present in your last issue.

Going over some old ground, it may interest some of your readers to know Hengler's used to tent and so did Cooke's. I remember, "in the days of my youth," being much frightened by the firing of blank cartridge and other noises at the latter's representation of the Battle of the Alma.

I remember Howe's and Cushing's big tent well. The wallings were flags of all nations, and the draw was a representation of a Spanish bull fight. Then again James Myers travelled with a big show. His method of shifting from town to town was by a powerful traction engine, called Robert the Devil, but it was not a success, sticking in the mud at one time and breaking down on its own account at another. He had the Madigans (his wife, Mrs Rose Myers, was of that ilk), the celebrated John Cooper, the lion tamer (I hope still alive), and others. Myers got out of his depth at North Woolwich Gardens, and disposed of his plant and went in a smaller way on the continent. It was said at the time the four splendid carriage horses and state carriage that brought and fetched the artists from the arena were presented to him by the French Emperor (Louis Napoleon.) Myer's band chariot was very large, with Dragon-like appearance and glass mirrors, and most handsome. Another old show was Powell, Foottit and Clarke's great allied circus. I must not forget Crockett, of Sanger's, a man with a big beard for a performer, originally a cornet player in the band. Then there was Hutchinson and Tayleure's Circus; the second member of the firm was also a musician before he was part or whole proprietor. I saw the show at Woodbridge, Suffolk, many years ago, where I think the then Mr Tayleure, a tall gentleman, hailed from. Although not strictly circus artistes, Tom Sayers, pugilist, ran a circus for a short time; so did Jem Mace, another fistic champion; and, I may add, one more celebrity, John C. Heenan, after his fight with Sayers, gave an exhibition of boxing with Howes and Cushing's, on tour.

STORIES OF SHOWMAN LIFE.

(COPYRIGHT.)

By the REV. T. HORNE
(Hon. Chaplain Showmen's Guild).

GEORGE WOMBWELL, JUN.
TOLD BY THE AGENT.

"Showfolk, my dear sir, are just ordinary human beings.

"It is true that ours is an extraordinary craft, that we draw our best showmen from all ranks and conditions of life; we have had our gentlemen showmen, gentlemen by birth and education, yet showmen by choice or the pressure of circumstance.

"The greatest of poets in the ancient days was Homer, who travelled from town to town peddling or reciting his wares of verse. The greatest poet of all Christendom was the travelling 'mummer,' Will Shakespeare, who might have been a merchant of its ancient liberty, but chose to strut and swagger for a while with strolling players, until the great London town settled and established him in his true vocation.

"However extraordinary our trade and vocation may seem to be to the layman, to us, the initiate, life's much the same as it is with our patrons and friends, the lovers of shows and fairs. Shakespeare aptly philosophises on life thus—

There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough hew them as we will.

"Story after story could be told of show life to prove this true.

"There's hardly a family of any moment, take the best of them, sir, that does not illustrate my point. I often sum up it in this way, sir—'there's a lot of human nature in man.'

So study human nature as well as creeds and books,
Find your sermon writ in stone or rippled out in brooks.

"To illustrate my contention, sir, I'll tell you a very sad Christmas story, 'The Vanishing of young George Wombwell.'

"'The only son of his father, born with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth; bred and reared in plenty and in luxury; educated to be a gentleman, with the world of shows for his kingdom by right of birth; yet he was a failure, and, sad to say, no one knows the real end of young George Wombwell.

"'At twenty-two years of age his father sent him forth with the finest wild beast show of its day—the 'No. 16 Concern,' so called from the number of its waggons. The Nos. 1 and 2 shows, old Wombwell's, and the concern of Wombwell's niece (afterwards Mrs Edmonds) only had the approved number of waggon loads of beasts—thirteen—six on either side and the elephant waggon at the back. There were, of course, in addition two waggons joined together at the front to make the outside parade and entrance, bandstand, and paintings display.

"'Well, sir, the story is a sad one. Young George spent and lost money faster than the old man could make it. No. 1 and No. 2 were coining money, but even a mint of money could not supply the leakage of No. 16.

"'Repeatedly old George had to take the young man's show out of pawn, and held back for rent was a bigger calamity in days of road-travel than it is now in these times of rapid movement and quick release.

"'Only fit to be a gentleman' was the reluctant verdict of his best friends.

"The end came at last, and No. 16 was broken up. Young George was a gentleman at large, just hanging about his father's concern whilst the older man did all the work of control and management, and many and bitter were the quarrels between father and son.

"'Besides the open and palpable failures, there were other sins of commission as well as of omission.

"'George Wombwell, junior, had just one redeeming qualification, he was a born musician, and played the cornet divinely.

"'His father would have forgiven him a lot, even if he had stuck to that and taken the leadership of the band. But, no, he was too much of the gentleman for that, and besides, it meant real work and real perseverance, two things he much disliked.

"'To come quickly to the heart of my story.

"'Old man George died, at a good old age, full of honour and well-to-do.

"'In the will the wisdom of George Wombwell was shown. No. 1 show was willed absolutely to 'Mother' Wombwell, No. 2 to his niece, soon to become Mrs Barney Edmonds.

"'To young George was assigned, through a London firm of solicitors, one pound a-week, so long as he kept away from the show, or only came near it on his mother's invitation.

"'Well, sir, pride prevented the young man taking his wise father's thoughtful provision. There was a sad quarrel between mother and son, and with her consent he took £500 and sailed for America.

"'Stories came back of his death, never really confirmed, yet accepted as the end of a broken failure of life. But, sir, it was not the end. I was the last to see and hear of George Wombwell the younger, and thirty odd years after "Mother" Wombwell's death.

"'It was the first year of holding a Christmas fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall. I was running my dog and monkey circus there as a side show.

"'I was off the hooks a bit owing to a touch of gout, and hearing of a famous medico who could cure it, I went to his consulting-rooms, near Islington Town Hall.

"'It was Christmas Eve, and all Upper-street was alive with people shopping or enjoying the sights, when slowly, but surely, I felt myself in mind working back to the grand old days of boyhood, when as a lad I played the drum in the Wombwell band.

"'But, why—why had this unbidden train of thought carried me away from the palpable present to the dim and misty past?

"'Then came the answer, and I gazed around me in amazement for the cause of so weird an effect. I was under the spell of plaintive music, memory-rousing, memory-penetrating music.

"'Following the sound, I found the musician, a poor, miserably-clad kerbstone minstrel, with battered old cornopean; but, oh, the divine music he sounded from it.

"'The melody was 'Ben Bolt.'

"'Only one man in the world could play that tune so perfectly, so full of the poetry of it, as well as its haunting melody; and that man was George Wombwell the younger.

"'I was so sure of this that I was not a bit surprised to see in the person of the broken-down player upon the cornopean in very fact and misery George Wombwell, jun.

"'I went up to him and said, 'George.'

"'The player paled visibly, and said, bitterly, 'How know you my name?'

"'Could I forget it? We were boys together. You remember Bob Chitters, son of the head horsekeeper of the old show?'

"'Do I remember? Good God! man, can I ever forget it? Isn't memory my curse? Go! go! leave me to forget. Leave me to my well-deserved fate. I don't know you. I don't want to know you. So go away and let me earn a bite and sup for Christmas.'

"'Dumbfounded, I did as he wished, and went away full of sad thoughts. Then it flashed upon me—Why not, for his own good, play the spy and follow him to his lodgings? then help him against his will if force were necessary.

"'I returned, but he was gone, and no trace could I obtain; he went away as soon as my back was turned, and where he went, without a clue, I could not trace.

"'He passed out into the shadows of that Christmas Eve, and never again did I hear of or see young George Wombwell."

ANOTHER HIT
THE QUEEN OF CHORUS SINGERS,
MISS LIL HAWTHORNE.

TESSIE.
TESSIE.
TESSIE.

Leicester Daily Mercury, Dec. 6, 1904, says:—
. . . And in response to an encore, unanimous and hearty, she sang "Tessie," in the chorus of which was represented some original effects, much to the amusement of the house. She was warmly called on to come back, and had to bow her thanks many times, and finally repeat the chorus before the house would let her go.

The Original Singer of

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, BIRMINGHAM,
Principal Comedian.
Result of first issue as follows:—
Birmingham Post.—Mr Bert Gilbert is at the head of the comedians, his part as Baron Blobber affording him a grand opportunity of providing plenty of fun, and no doubt as the business develops he will take every advantage of the openings. His humour is characteristic, and he raises many a hearty laugh when it is least expected by his asides and by-play. He has two good songs, "All the girls are loverly-overly" and "Rip Van Winkle," the latter a topical ditty which provokes a smile at the mention of tariff reform and the trams.
Birmingham Daily Mail.—Mr Bert Gilbert was funny in a way not unpleasantly reminiscent of the late Mr Dan Leno at his best in "The Shopwalker." The principal comedian, Mr Bert Gilbert, no one doubts will be a great success. He is one of the few of our "natural" comedians—a man who can be funny under all circumstances and in all situations because he cannot help himself. Some of his "business" on Saturday night was exceedingly entertaining.
"How did I get this medal?" All coms. as above.

THEATRE ROYAL, GLASGOW.

AN EMPHATIC SUCCESS

THEATRE ROYAL, GLASGOW.

"In engaging MISS ANNIE PURCELL, the management may be congratulated on securing a capital artiste." — Glasgow Evening Times.

"MISS ANNIE PURCELL as 'Ganem' is principal boy, and her singing and dancing add greatly to the attractions of the entertainment."—The Scotsman.

"MISS ANNIE PURCELL, who is principal boy, was already favourably known in Glasgow on account of her appearance in musical comedy. She sustains worthily the requirements of the position filled in earlier years by some of the foremost burlesque actresses of the time."—Glasgow Observer.

"In MISS ANNIE PURCELL there is one of the most popular principal boys who have ever graced the boards at the Theatre Royal. She has a remarkably sweet voice trained to perfection, and earned a reputation in the city when she came with the 'Country Girl' and 'School Girl.' Her rendition of the 'Airship' song, with its novel setting, was the grand success of the evening, while her singing of 'Navahoe' and 'My Troubadour' was most effective."—Glasgow Citizen.

"In MISS ANNIE PURCELL, who is well known to the playgoers of Glasgow, 'Ganem,' Ali Baba's son, has an ideal exponent. To the bright and dashing manner that one looks for in a principal boy she adds the further charm of a voice of no mean order."—Glasgow Herald.

"Among the ladies first place is naturally taken by MISS ANNIE PURCELL as 'Ganem.' A very attractive and spirited 'Ganem' she is, and her songs, particularly 'Navaho' and 'The Swallow and the Airship,' were vociferously applauded and chorused by last night's audience."—Glasgow News.

"One cannot but admire the discretion of Mr. Wyndham in his choice of MISS ANNIE PURCELL as principal boy. Her charming presence heightens the enjoyment of her excellent singing and graceful acting."—Glasgow Daily Record.

"JACK AND THE BEANSTALK" AT ST. HELENS.

Messrs Haddon and Loader produced their first pantomime at the Theatre Royal, St. Helens, on Saturday evening. The subject is that of Jack and the Beanstalk, and from the first scene to the last the success of the production was never for one moment in doubt, the reception given to it by the audience being wildly enthusiastic. From every point of view it is an improvement on any pantomime ever seen at this theatre, and this is saying a good deal. It is full of fun, full of beauty, full of colour, and devoid of the smallest vestige of vulgarity. Messrs Haddon and Loader have wisely introduced an aerial ballet (Mr Vaughan Neale's patent), which adds to the success. The book is from the pen of Mr M'Leod Loader, and is a lucid, easily followed story, which proves of entrancing interest to the juvenile portion of the audience. The incidental music has been composed by Mr George Burton, and does that gentleman the greatest credit. Much eulogy must also be accorded to the experienced and capable conductor, Mr Arthur Meredyth, who is responsible for the overture and special numbers. Of the scenery it is impossible to speak in too high terms of praise. Scene one, The Village of Mirthville, is from the brush of Mr George Harris. This is a splendid set, showing a wide extent of country. The next two scenes are Happy Valley and On the Road to the Market, and are the works of Mr William Charles. Scene four, The Market, by Mr Harris, is a very pretty set. Scene five is Dame Trotter's Cottage, and changing to grand tableaux, The Magic Beanstalk, brings the first part to a conclusion. The second part opens in Giantsland Poppy Field, where is introduced Mr Vaughan Neale's Aerial Ballet. Scene seven is Entrance to Castle Grim; scene eight, The Giant's Kitchen. In this scene Mr George Harrie gives a marvellous star trap performance. Scene nine is The Foot of the Beanstalk; then comes Jack's Palatial Home. This is the work of Mr George Harris, and is a triumph of scenic art. Scene eleven is a cloth, The Armoury, and gives place to the final scene, The Hall of Crystal Light (William Charles), forming a worthy setting for the brilliant ensemble with which the performance closes. The company engaged is a strong one. Miss Bessie Shelley as Jack makes a bright and energetic principal boy, full of life and go, and sings and dances through every scene with untiring effect. Her songs are given with good effect, the most popular being "Little White Girl," in which she is assisted by a remarkably pretty little girl, Miss Essie Platt; "Bluebell," sung in armour costume, with a chorus of about twenty ladies in armour dress, and the Cameron glee singers as standard bearers; and "Bull and Bush." As principal girl we have Miss Pattie Bella, a great favourite here, and a sprightly little Dora she is, with a roguish smile and a taking manner, a clever singer and a neat dancer. Her principal songs are "Anona," "In the Navy," and "The Country Girl." Mr Jay Laurier as Silly Billy is a host in himself. He gets hold of the audience on his first entrance, and causes screams of laughter all the time he is on the stage. Mr Reg. Bolton as Squire Musty works with a will all through. He is possessed of a good telling voice, gives his dialogue with full appreciation of the points therein, and sings several catchy ditties. Mr Harry Harrop makes up particularly well as Dame Trotter, and has plenty of opportunities to evoke laughter. Messrs Kydd and Kydd as Dip and Dap, the squire's flunkeys, are successful in their comic methods, and gain plenty of applause in their speciality turns. Miss Sybil Viney makes a bold and handsome Charlie Bright, and Nancy Smart is presented with vivaciousness and charm by Miss Cissy Trent. In her speciality dancing she is enthusiastically applauded. Miss Evelyn Robson's shapely figure and fine presence fit her admirably for the rôle of Discordia. The Giant has a capital representative in Mr W. S. Stevenson; the Cameron Glee Singers are heartily encored for their singing, and the Continental Trio of dancers (Misses Belshaw, Carmichael, and Verin), win loud applause. Miss Minnie Walsh makes an attractive Fairy Queen, and others well placed are Miss Alice Hammond, herald; Miss Dolly Douglas, usher; and Mr George Harrie as the cow. The chorus is comely and shapely, and well up to their work. The beautiful costumes and armour are by Messrs Hugo Baruch, August et Cie, and Madame Freear; mechanical effects by Mr John Bradley, properties by Mr Larkey, and electrical effects by Mr Knowles. Mr M'Leod Loader has been ably assisted in the production by Mr W. S. Stevenson, who will stage-manage the pantomime on tour. The front of the house is looked after in a courteous and business-like manner by Mr Jack Haddon.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT CARDIFF.

There was a packed Bank Holiday audience at the Theatre Royal on Monday afternoon, when Mr Robert Redford's pantomime season commenced. Dick Whittington is the subject chosen for this year, and is, as usual, produced by Mr Milton Bode. Mr Bode's reputation for pantomime production has been firmly established in Cardiff for years, and he has this year equalled, if not surpassed his previous efforts to place before Cardiffians a really elaborate and entertaining performance. We have several old favourites with us again, Mr Arthur E. Godfrey and Miss Minnie Duncan being two clever artistes who are always received with delight by patrons of the Royal. The pantomime is rich in smart comedians and clever artistes. Miss Madeline Rees, a fine dashing principal boy, possesses a handsome stage appearance, which, together with her exceptional ability and pleasing voice, will undoubtedly make her an immense favourite. Miss Minnie Duncan is a captivating Alice. A great share of the work falls upon Miss Duncan, and right well does she acquit herself. One of her songs, "Mary had a little lamb," is very tastefully rendered, and will probably become extremely popular. Two very pleasing impersonations are given by Miss Florence A. White and Miss Janet H. Reynolds, who as Tommy Trott and May respectively gain unstinted applause from the audience. Mr Bob Hutt as Alderman Fitzwarren is, without doubt, a valuable acquisition to the production. To say that his antics are really funny is sufficient praise in itself, while his song "Why?" is one of the best of the pantomime. No less successful in providing abundance of mirth is Mr Arthur E. Godfrey, who, as Idle Jack, seems already at home in the character. He causes the audience to fairly collapse with laughter. With Mr Fred Dark in his really amusing delineation of Matilda, the inevitable dame of the piece, and Messrs Alfred Lester and Clifford Morgan as Captain Scupper and Bill Oakum of the good ship Saucy Sarah, it is needless to add that—from the mirth-providing point of view—the success of the production is assured. In the Fairy Queen a new departure has been taken, a pretty and clever little actress of tender years appearing in the rôle. Dainty Lillian Graham is the little lady in question, and she gives a capital portrayal, her wonderful toe-dancing being a considerable attraction. Miss Nelly Lauraine makes an exceptionally good Empress Fatima. Mouser, Dick's cat, is safely entrusted to Mr Tom Gilmore. No expense has evidently been spared in the mounting, the Palace and Highgate-hill scenes being very elaborately and magnificently designed. The costumes also have been executed with extreme lavishness, the dresses of the chorus in scene five being dazzling. Mr J. Hickory Wood is, as usual, the author, and Mr Frank Seddon is responsible for the catchy music. The entire pantomime has been produced under the stage-management of Mr E. R. Beamont, personally supervised by Mr Milton Bode.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.

NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Z. Andrews.—The attraction at this theatre this week is Mr J. H. Morton's company in The Rajah of Ranjanpore. Mr Alvin Sawyer is very amusing as Horatio Chicks; the same remark applies to Miss Marion Walker as Eliza; Mr Harry Cornwall is good as Mr Stubbs; Mr Arthur Reed makes the most of his opportunities as Captain Hertage; and the hero, Ernest Travers is admirably acted by Mr Charles E. Sinny. Mr Gus Hall is good as Ted Perkins; Mr Bert Harrow keeps the house in good humour as Thistles; and Miss Nell Ascott is charming as Primrose.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—The Golden Ladder is the attraction here. The Rev. Frank Thornhill is a careful study by Mr Harry Cullenford. Sam Peckaby is well played by Mr F. Hill. Mr J. Milne Taylor must be complimented on his performance of Michael Severn. Jim Dixon is cleverly depicted by Mr E. Christopher. Miss Conyers Radcliffe submits an excellent rendering of Lilliant Grant. Miss Nellie Graham is good as Mrs Peckaby. Miss Fanny Morse is happily placed as Mrs Dixon.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr J. Mill; Manager, Mr T. Moyes.—The American millionaires, Ford and Hanson; Rem Lang, society entertainer; Charlie Cowen, eccentric comedian; Miss Lillian Hodgkinson, the singing mill girl; H. E. H. High, comedian and speciality artiste; Linn, the original singing newsboy; Miss Mabel Comely, serio; Will Percival, clog dancer; and the Four Arizonas complete a very attractive bill.

ALTRINCHAM.

NEW PAVILION OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs Budd, Howe, and Taylor; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Gilman.—The holiday-makers have been well catered for, the bill this week including Mozzelto, a clever boy juggler; Percy Farrimond, a collier singer; Vardon, ventriloquist; the Bradleys, trick cyclists; Joe Phillips, comedian; and Miss Barwick and Charlie Cass, comedians. Friday evening was set apart for the benefit of Mr Harry Taylor, an extra array of talent appearing.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor, Mr Charles Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr L. Campkin.—For the Christmas week another good list of artistes has been secured. Heading the bill is De Henau, who paints pictures with his toes. He manipulates the pencil with wonderful dexterity. A name which looms large on the bills, too, is the gentleman equilibrist, Lava. His daring and dexterous balancing are astonishing, and he holds his spectators spellbound. Something novel is shown by Adelina with her troupe of performing cockatoos. Julian Mack is a capital comedian, and the Bros. Esdale in refined humour win admiration. J. A. Wilson is a versatile negro comedian and dancer. The Sisters Marion sing some songs in high-class style; and Steel and Lang may be classed as really comical eccentrics and dancers. Some amusing pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech.—The star performers here include the Scottish Meisters, who are a real treat. Another big draw is Carl Mysto, the monarch of manacles. Ada Seale, who recently worked in the mill of Messrs Howarth at Salford, is a vocal wonder. Rice, Rose and Davis have an amusing comedy act in Ferguson's Dog. Victor Newman, in his dramatic monologue, gives some clever character sketches from Chas. Dickens, being assisted by Mr Arthur Henry. His dramatic impersonation "Peter the Miser" is very realistic. The Aeronauts in their grotesque speciality are highly humorous and diverting. Other clever artistes, in their varied specialities, are Amatel and Lule, comedians; Rivington and Gordon, in high-class comedy duologues; the Three Romas, as gladiatorial marvels; and Emmie White, refined comedienne and dancer. Cinématographic pictures are still a prime feature.

ATTERCLIFFE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr Claude Seaton.—After being closed for one week for the installation of heating apparatus, this place of amusement reopened on Boxing Day with Messrs Preston and Doherty's company with The Rich and Poor of London. The company, under the direction of Mr Sidney C. Cranston and Mr Sidney Dench, is a strong and capable one. Mr Andrew Money as Mark Stanley is a distinct success; Mr Robert Hall could not be better placed as Dr. Leonard Morton; Dan'l Drake finds an able exponent in Mr Tom Bowman; Mr Sidney C. Cranston as Gussy Lamb and Mr Sidney Dench as Spider Jack are most acceptable in their respective parts, their humour and songs being much appreciated; Miss Dora Dench is good as May Braithwaite; so also is Miss Marie Ramey as Ruby Redgrave. Miss Dora Pass renders good service as Polly Philpot; Miss Lilly Woods and Miss A. M'Farlane act well the respective parts of Auntie Scrimp and Seadrift; and Dixie, a street waif, with songs, is well impersonated by Master Bert Dench.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr W. Massey Baker.—An excellent combination of variety and talent marks the holiday bill-of-fare at this popular house, and, judging by the packed houses nightly, it is heartily appreciated. Topping the bill are the Five Bon-Bons, who in their pantomime trap scene A Hot Time for One cause roars of laughter by their comic business. Mdlle. Pollo Jerome gives a clever and smart performance on the trapeze. The Garden Troupe receive hearty and well-deserved applause for their international dances. Miss Renee Walon, comedienne and dancer; Walter Lester, comedian, Weston and May (Fred and Julie), in a musical comedy act; Arthur Richards, actor-vocalist; and the Brothers Dance, comedy instrumentalists, all contribute excellent turns.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—Messrs George Edwardes and Chas. Frohman's company is appearing here this week in the comedy Are You a Mason? The Amos Bloodgood of Mr Harry Ashford was excellent, and the same may be said of the Frank Perry of Mr Arthur Claremont. Mr Anthony Fawcett appeared to great advantage in the dual-rôle of George Fisher and the Frenchwoman, Fanchon Armytage. His impersonation of the latter character was most amusing. Mr Frank Ridley's Hamilton Travers, the broken-down actor, was a capital character sketch; Mr Valentine O'Connor played the part of Ernest Morrison with appropriate earnestness; Miss Harriet Trench was admirable in the part of Mrs Bloodgood; and the Mrs Eva Perry of Miss Violet Graham could not have been better. The other ladies in the comedy—Annie, Lulu, Mrs Hilton, Lottie, and Fanchon Armytage were excellently played by Miss Beagle, Miss Isla Glynn, Miss Mabel Younge, Miss Edith Fife, and Miss Gertrude Spencer respectively. Are You a Mason? was preceded by a smart little comedietta, Hushed Up.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Messrs E. H. Knight and George Denham's company is appearing here this week with The Grip of Iron. Mr Fred Powell assumes the principal rôle as Jagon, alias Simmonet the Strangler, and puts a wonderful amount of dramatic force into his interpretation of the part. Mr J. Wilton-Richards puts all the necessary callousness into his rendition of Lorentz De Ribas; Paul Blanchard is ably sustained by Mr George Denham; Mr Harry Agar Lyons cleverly depicts the business-like detective, Alphonse De Coucou; whilst Mr John Brittain acts Dodot, a detective of the old school, in a decidedly humorous manner. As the lawyer, Robert De Belfort, Mr J. E. Stevenson takes advantage of every opportunity afforded him; and M. De Beaudin is fittingly portrayed by Mr John Coghlan. Mr Charles Conway contributes a droll rendering of Loustalot, the Smiler. Miss Nellie Navarro gives evidence of her ability as Sophie Blanchard; Miss Georgie De Lara gives a successful embodiment of Cora; and Marie Guerin is cleverly represented by Miss Hilda Baynton.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—Messrs Griffen and Drake's pantomime of Dick Whittington and His Cat opened here on Bank Holiday for two weeks. It proved a great success on the first night. The company engaged is a very strong one. Miss Lily Jackson is a model Dick; Mr Jack Simpson is the active necessary feline; Alice is pleasingly played by Miss Emmie Hands; Mr Mark Lane makes a great hit as Martha Muggins; Alderman Fitzwarren is admirably depicted by Mr Ben Ford; and Mr Will Dennis is of great assistance as Idle Jack. The latest songs are excellently sung by the principals, and the specialities deserve special mention. Mdlle. Luba De Sarema submits a sensational act with a mountain bull, two ponies, eight dogs, and a bucking donkey. The Yorkshire Mill Lasses, the Sisters Brenton, the Sisters Grosvenor, and Messrs Jason and White also do well. The thirty local children engaged are to be congratulated on their cleverness in the different scenes.

BARNSTAPLE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Harry Ashton.—Dick Whittington is the pantomime here this year, and on Monday and the two following nights Miss Kitty Irving's company played before large audiences. Miss Marie Liston, who possesses a very sweet voice, created a favourable impression as Dick Whittington. Miss Gracie Perry made a bewitching Alice, rendering her songs with delightful effect. Admirable support came from Messrs Bernard Lauri and F. E. Ellis as Idle Jack and Susan Sopps respectively, who caused immense fun with their drollery, Mr Freddy Ellis emphasised the overbearing proclivities of the Captain, and Alderman Fitzwarren found an able exponent in pomposity in Mr Joe Perry. Those contributing turns were Lauri and Ellis, chapeaugraphists of no mean ability; Mons. Jullan, a clever contortionist; the Sisters Cousins, who executed some really smart dances; the Happy Perrys, in their novel musical mélange; and Hellis and Liston, Transatlantic comedy drolls. The piece is under the direction of Mr S. J. Liddicoat.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long. —After a lapse of a couple of seasons the management has wisely returned to pantomime, the choice of subject being the good old-fashioned story of Goody Two Shoes, which has not in our recollection been treated before locally. The production is under the direction of Mr Peter Davey, of the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, who deserves cordial recognition for the bright and refined manner in which the "annual" is put on. The book, from the pen of Mr Hugh P. Pinnock, is certainly entertaining; the music, comprising many of the most popular airs of the day, is selected and arranged by Mr Corelli Windeatt and Mr J. H. Russell—the former gentleman conducting the orchestra during the run; and the pleasing and elaborate scenery from the brush of Mr George Miller is much admired. The costumes, in many instances very beautiful, are designed by Mr Herbert Norris and Mrs Peter Davey, and carried out by Messrs L. and H. Nathan. The stage-management is entrusted to Mr Harry Turner jun., whose heavy labours were duly recognised and rewarded by the smoothness at the performances on Boxing Day. Heading the comedians is that great local favourite Mr Harry Buss, who fairly revels in the character of Dame Durden, and keeps the house alive. Quite another method of fun-making is the quiet, crisp comedy of Mr F. G. Thurstans as Earl Godiva, a creation full of good points. His "Letter" song is sure to go, as it allows of up-to-date verses being added at will. Mr Will Gane assists in keeping the ball rolling as Peeping Tom, and is a comedian of no little ability. Mr Arthur Learto is capable as Marcodison, his interlude with his trained terrier being one of the hits of the show. The principal boy is Miss Nell Richardson as Crispin, who has a pleasing presence and acts with becoming restraint. She has a good voice, and renders her songs with excellent results, gaining a well-merited encore for "The scent of the clover," a most tuneful and effective contribution. A charming Goody is found in Miss Jessica Deane, who is the fortunate possessor of a melodious and cultivated voice, which is heard to particular advantage in the taking waltz-retrain ballad composed by Mr Corelli Windeatt. Miss May Hart is well to the front as the Chevalier, delivering her lines and rendering her songs with plenty of animation and go, her biggest success being the popular "Yo San," which quickly caught the ear and fancy of the audience. A chic actress and dancer is Miss Eva Bevington as Margot, her coon song and dance meeting with great success. The chorus is capital; they have plenty to do, and carry their task through with energy and excellent precision, nor must the orchestra be forgotten for the way they perform the instrumental accompaniments. The general manager for Mr Peter Davey is Mr Victor Erskine.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—Huge holiday crowds are twice nightly attracted here to enjoy the good turns submitted. In the forefront come Mr J. G. Grahame, jun., and Miss Zerlina Harrington, assisted by Mr A. Bradshaw, in their new dramatic episode A Daughter of Pleasure, which they enact with true histrionic talent and complete success. The Sisters Maginel-Mullini return to give their smart musical act of cornet, saxophone, bugle, and drum playing. One of the most popular artistes is Will Crackles, comedian, dancer, and patterer, who has not been seen locally for many years. The Franks Brothers, midget conjurors, are most entertaining; the Two Jagos, speciality artistes, are warmly welcomed; Percy Hannan is a young baritone vocalist who gains many admirers; Florence Gwynne, in her musical scena, The Stage-Struck Servant, is well received; and Will Bacchus, actor-vocalist, wins hearty applause.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—The Fatal Wedding occupies the boards here this week. Mr F. S. Humber gives a clever delineation of Howard Wilson; Robert Curtis is ably represented by Mr Oliver Rodgers; as Toto, the French butler, and O'Reilly, the policeman, Messrs Chas. Kenny and Victor Widdicomb keep the audience in roars of laughter; Miss Gertrude Harrison is excellent as Cora Williams; Miss Nora Hoffe as Mabel Wilson imparts much pathos to her acting; Miss Harriett Clifton is amusing as Bridgit; and Miss Marjorie Lawrence contributes to the success as Jessie.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—The star turn here is supplied by Chas. Matthews, whose wonderful jumping was greatly admired. Williams and Brown, favourite comedians, have some most amusing patter. Mons. Slippere is a blind vocalist and pianist of exceptional merit; the Ackbars are a pair of clever gymnasts; Francis and Melli are very successful in their musical novelty act; and Marie Gibson is a pleasing singer.

ZALVA'S HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Geo. Zalva.—The ever-popular Doodles gives some new comicalities here; Woolford's Circus of dogs and ponies is very entertaining; the Testo Bros. are expert acrobats; Miss Vander, the lady juggler, is exceedingly clever; Verity Vezzy has some excellent trained dog violinists; Rappo and Ella give a fine equilibristic turn; and the Glenroy Troupe of Scottish dancers are responsible for a most enjoyable performance.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—On Monday night Mr John Restall's company occupied the boards here in the pantomime Cinderella, by J. L. Barry. Mr Harry Lyston's deep bass voice was well suited to the part of the evil genius, Talicio. Miss Madaline Stone-Humphries submitted a satisfactory rendering of Sunshine, the fairy godmother. A good interpretation of Prince Charming was submitted by Miss Annie Craig. Miss M. Macdonald made a vivacious Dandini. Miss Ada Lindlay possessed a sweet voice which was heard to advantage in the title-rôle. Cinderella's twin sisters were humorously represented by Mr Clem Myers and Mr Dan Idle. Mr C. Clark caused great amusement as the page, Billy Burton. Excruciatingly funny were Messrs Stern and Stern in their clever impersonations of Sloshem and Biffem respectively.

BELFAST.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John P. Beardmore.—Mr Warden has provided a capital bill for the holidays at this beautiful theatre, the chief attraction being provided by Paul Martinetti and his clever company, who produce their celebrated play without words entitled A Duel in the Snow, which has been enormously successful. The Five Sisters Amelia appear to great advantage in their smart musical act. M'Askell is aptly described as a comic talking conjuror; and Kopski, the classical pianist, creates immense enthusiasm by his performance. Miss Kate Cutler is the happy possessor of a nice soprano voice, which she knows how to use; and others appearing are Miss Clarice Netta, vocalist; and Mr Fred Roden, comedian and dancer.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—The programme here is of the most varied description, headed by Vasco, "The Mad Musician," whose manipulation of nearly a score of musical instruments has been enthusiastically received. The Coloured Meisters make a big hit with their tuneful rendering of glees, and Mr Jimmy Shields, the one-legged comedian and an old favourite here, gains great approval for his comic songs. Collins and Rice are an entertaining duo, and Mr Tom Stuart's mimicry is certainly wonderfully realistic, his character sketches being marvellous. Mr Charles Cardow is a first-class comedian, and a good reception has been deservedly extended to Alexandra and Bertie in their novel aerial act "Apres les Bal." Miss Mabel Hind, comedienne, and Miss Sybil St. Elmo, balladist, are also on the programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—The holiday bill here is certainly a good one, and the chief attraction is provided by the Edgar Forrest comedy company, who create much laughter with their most amusing sketch entitled Cupid's Ingenuity. Ben Hur upholds his reputation as an athlete, his feats of strength being nothing short of marvellous. The comedy acrobatism of the Three Henriques is decidedly clever, and the clog dancing of Mr Geo. Mackintosh is exceedingly smart. A novel act has been provided by Penstone who is assisted by Mdlle. De Vernet, and that really droll comedian, Mr Marcus Boyle, has taken even better than ever. Unita and Paul surprise all by their startling aerial act, and others on the programme are Miss Ada Whitton, a male impersonator par excellence, and Miss Jenny Love, national vocalist, who takes well.

IMPERIAL HIPPODROME AND CIRCUS. — Proprietors, Messrs Carter and Bosco; General Manager, Mr Irving Bosco; Assistant-Manager, Mr Geo. Dobler.—The chief attraction at this popular place of amusement is the aquatic equestrian production entitled Siberia, in which nearly one hundred performers take part. This exciting spectacle, consisting of diving feats of horses and dash-for-life scene, has created a tremendous sensation. During the course of this unique production, in scene one, Messrs Chivers and De Monti, skaters, appear and furnish a performance of striking ability, while in scene two the celebrated Russian dancers and singers evoke the loudest enthusiasm with their turn. Siberia, which is in five scenes, is certainly one of the greatest novelties ever presented by Messrs Carter and Bosco, and to ensure success a capital company take part, including Mr Stelling, Mr H. Sloan, Mr H. Metcalfe, Mr Casselo, Mr W. Hutton, Mr B. Borrillo, Mr Burgess, Mr H. Chivers, Mr C. Cooke, Mr Irving Bosco, Mr S. Steckles, Miss Sturgess, Miss H. Pilling, Miss Sloan, &c. To enhance the programme other turns are provided by the Dorian Trio, gymnastic ring performers; Princess Annie, the dashing and accomplished equestrienne; Bros. Dixon, musical eccentrics; Clown Burgess, in a new act; and the celebrated Sloan Family of equestrians. Undoubtedly Messrs Carter, Bosco, and Dobler may be congratulated on the immense success of the equestrian spectacle Siberia, which is likely to enjoy a good run.

ULSTER HALL.—Proprietors, Belfast Corporation.—Our Army and Navy Animated Photo. company opened here on Monday with a fine selection of living pictures relative to scenes in the Far East, local pictures of much interest, &c., the entire exhibition being vastly entertaining. The variety programme is contributed to by the following:—Mystery Gauze, Indian female impersonator; Brothers Wilson, musical grotesques; Madame West, soprano; Carlotti, the clever juggler, &c. Captain Wilson acts efficiently as lecturer, and Mr W. Bamton is the courteous manager.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—On Christmas Eve Mr Howard Hinton's company inaugurated a fortnight's engagement with Dick Whittington, a production which reflects great credit upon all concerned. Miss Kitty Phelps is a sprightly and vivacious Dick, and a handsome stage presence assists in making the impersonation a most successful one. She receives capital support from Miss Daisy Clements, a bewitching Alice, and the two work in unionism with telling effect. The company is rich in comedians, including as it does Mr Harry Rennior as Idle Jack, Mr Mount Stephens as the Alderman, Mr Steve Cook as Betsy Mary Ann, and Mr Tom R. Seymour as Captain Bunting. Mr Harry Cardoe is a good representative of the Cat; Miss Leonard is deserving of all praise as Sir Rowland; and the Sisters Bronson are also well to the fore. The specialities also include the Bowery Boys. The Fairy Godmother is cleverly enacted by Miss Grace Clements, and the scenic effects by Mr James Cooke are elaborate.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell. — Mr Will Hebden and an efficient combination are here with A Day in Paddy's Market, which appears to be hugely enjoyed by the popular parts of the house, the numerous touches of low comedy being hailed with enthusiasm. Mr Hebden is ably assisted by Miss May Martin, Mr L. Maitland, Mr Charles Lyndon, Mr Charles Locke, &c.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke. — Mr Clarke has secured the services of an excellent company, the premier position being filled by Mr Fred Karno's comedians, who are repeating previous successes here in His Majesty's Guests. Barton and Franklin, Scottish vocal entertainers, are deservedly favourites, and the Langdons, song illustrators; Mr Frank Seeley, character comedian; Miss Amy Donna, comedienne; Mr Gus Hindell, descriptive and character vocalist; and an excellent display of animated pictures by the Bioscope go to make up a very attractive entertainment.

BIRMINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr Philip Rodway.—Crowded houses have crowned the managerial efforts at every performance, and praise for the new building runs high. Praise also for the pantomime continues to pour in from all quarters, and there is every indication that The Babes in the Wood has come to stay for a considerable time. Spectacle and humour, beauty and talent, have wrought their spell, whereat all are to be congratulated, including Messrs Bert Gilbert, J. F. M'Yardley, Fred Walton, Fred Farren, Henry Wright, Daley Cooper, and Mesdames Lily Iris, Gladys Ward, Maidie Andrews, Phyllis Dare, and Mabel Lait, together with the Eight of Hearts.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnson.—The Forty Thieves, produced on Christmas Eve, is dealt with in another column.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr Victor Turner.—Mr J. W. Turner, eschewing pantomime for the time being, is delighting his patrons with selections from his extensive and famous répertoire. Boxing Day was ushered in with The Bohemian Girl (matinée), while in the evening Mr J. W. Turner himself appeared as Don Cæsar, in Maritana. This lifelong study was received with loud cheering, and Miss Alice Boaden's singing as Maritana awakened considerable enthusiasm. Mr John Ridding as Don José, Mr Sidney Clifford as Charles II., Mr Richard Cummings as the Marquis, Miss Maud Esdale as the Marchioness, and Miss Jessie Dennis as Lazarillo added to the charm of the performance. The Daughter of the Regiment served well at a matinée on Tuesday, and in the evening The Bohemian Girl was repeated, with Mr F. J. Hargrave as Thaddeus. In this Miss Constance Bellamy was successful as Arline, while Miss Beatrice Hill as the Gipsy Queen, Miss Maude Esdale as Buda, Mr Sydney Clifford as Devilshoof, and Mr Tom Griffiths as the Count were all excellent. The Lily of Killarney, The Rose of Castile, Faust, and Satanella have also engaged Mr Turner's forces.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—Dick Whittington, produced on Boxing Day, is fully noticed in another column.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth, and the title thereof, had stimulated curiosity to a nice point, and large audiences have attended the play in consequence. Miss Beatrice Homer acts the title-rôle in the best possible taste, and Mr Stanley Bedwell combines all the virtues as Jack Merriman. Mr Leyton Cancellor as Hubert Gold wins the execrations of the "gods." Miss Beatrice Bevan fills the rôle of Rose Courteney in an able manner. Mr Stuart Roberts acts cleverly as Antonio Luchessi, and Mr Geo. Henry shines as Tom Redvers. Mr Tubby Edlin as Jasper Herrick, Mr Fred De Vere as Raggles, Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown, and Miss Margaret Watson as Morita also do good work.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The Life that Kills, played by Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company, has enthralled the audiences here, Mr Fred Moule essaying the villain's rôle, Kendal Croat, with much distinction. The villainess, Brenda Croat, is well represented by Miss Cathleen Cavanagh, and Miss Marie Menzies gains sympathy and admiration as Laurie Linden, the dressmaker-heroine. Mr A. G. Smith-Neil as Capt. Montague, Mr. Francis Serle in his clever personation of the rector, and Mr Morris Maud in his well-drawn character of Valentine Telford gain due recognition; and the comic characters of Miss Lucy Murray and Messrs A. Hall Menzies and Wilton Drury are appreciated to the full.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—The Voice of the People; or, Work Girls of Birmingham, which has been tried here this week with unbounded success, has a strong local flavour which proves irresistible. The Town Hall, Aston Cross, and their environs are among the scenic attractions, and a sweater's den is also represented. Mr J. F. Preston has a fine part in Barry Phelps, the "cosmopolite," which he plays to the utmost advantage. Mr Ernest R. Allen as the Rev. Walter Meredith earns hearty good will; Miss Hilda Shirley is applauded for her excellent portrayal of the heroine; Mr W. Atherstone as Steve Morris and Mr Arthur Hartley as the sweater also act in fine spirit; and Mr Syd Sylvester, Mr C. H. Pullen, and Miss Gertrude Godart do excellent justice to their parts.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—An excellent Christmas programme is submitted this week. The most prominent item is Staley's Novelty Transformation Company, who give a neat and artistic entertainment. Charles R. Sweet is highly appreciated for his musical abilities. The long programme also includes Sinclair and Parr, Austin and Cowan, Lily Tiso, Maxwell and Francis, Johnny Dwyer, Barton Howard, and the Baldwin Brothers.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—The Hadji Abdullah Troupe are some of the finest Arab tumblers we have seen, their display being most skilful. The Mountebanks have a good pot-pourri act. The Brothers Philipi are decidedly amusing in their sketch Shunting; the Leonards as vocalists and dancers are versatile; Charles Vandyke's Troupe, in their sketch Sensations; and the Brothers Kroney, comedians, cause plenty of laughter. Florence Hill, Walter Emerson, Walter Gurney, and the Sisters Pine are also in the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Sensational motoring is attracting packed houses this week. Staig's motor cycles are racing in mid-air looping the aerial circle, causing intense excitement, while an expert gymnastic act is given by the Bennecelli Troupe. Harry Leybourne, the Falcons, and Reilly and Taylor provide many opportunities for laughter. Some daring balancing feats are introduced by Sulima Matrapa. Nancy St. John, comedienne; the Sisters Carina, in their refined musical act; Alix Lukos, and J. H. Scotland meet with success.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr Edward Foster.—Mendel, the blind pianist, is causing quite a furore here, his compositions being rendered in a marvellous manner. Burg, Haud, and Wise are most eccentric acrobatic comedians. Morris and Morris cause continual laughter by their songs and patter. Some smart juggling is presented by Wisper, who also has some amusing sayings. The dramatic episode V.C. is watched with intensity, as is also the trick cycling of the Tourbillons. Other prominent turns are the Sisters Neilson, Harry Zetter, Leona Dare, and Beattie Bloom.

CURZON HALL.—Manager, Mr W. Stirling.—The Harry H. Hamilton's Excursions are paying their annual visit here, and opened to packed houses. In addition to their renowned picture show the following artistes add largely to the success of the programme:—Kessanley's Troupe of terriers; Hoppitt, Tony, and Terry, with their coster circus; Walter Thompson and Helen Andrews, in their speciality; while Chas. E. White is a capable cicerone.

BLACKPOOL.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Dick Whittington is the title of a very meritorious production here this week by a company under the management of Mr John Tiller. Miss Grace Graham appears in the title-rôle, and her singing and dancing give the utmost delight. Alice has a really charming exponent in Miss Fanny Harris. A very popular and clever comedian, Mr Dan Thomas, plays Eliza, the cook, and scores a big success. Another clever comedian is Mr Bob Selvidge, who as Jack Idle assists very materially in the fun making, and Mr Harry D. Lyndon is well placed as Alderman Fitzwarren. Mr Barrie Gilmore as the cat, Miss Edna Morgan as the Emperor of Morocco, Miss Gracie Woodleigh as Princess Kulekah, Mr Will Mackay as Sammy, and Mr J. G. Aitken as Horatio are also good. Specialities are introduced by the Diamond Quartet of Dancers, the Excelsior Troupe, and Tiller's Pony Ballet Troupe. The staging and dresses do not discredit the Tiller reputation.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Miss Daisy Le Roy's Sinbad the Sailor company has possession here this week, and is successful in courting public favour. Sinbad is in the hands of Miss Edna Cragge, and Winbad the Whaler has a very smart exponent in Miss Dorothy Whyatt, who contributes a very taking coon song. Miss Marie Weston, who plays Fitnah, is notable for her clever pedestal dancing; whilst Miss Hilda De Grey, who appears as the Good Fairy, wins approbation for her singing. Mr K. Wallace, a clever ventriloquist and chapeauist, assumes the rôle of Captain O'Smith, the smuggler and wrecker, his coadjutors being in the capable hands of Messrs George Welch and Frank Daleno. Mr George Asat is a comical Mrs Sinbad. Mr Bert Brookes as Tinbad supplies plenty of fun. Mr George Bendo, the Old Man of the Sea, shines as a contortionist. The Geisha Quartet of dancers give a special turn.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—A very strong bill is provided here this week. Carl Hertz's "Demon Kettle," exhibited by Dr. Irve Haymar, is a very attractive item. Then comes Harry Edson, with his wonderful dog, Doc; Ada Colley, the gifted Australian vocalist; Will M'Ivor, the South African tenor; Albert Voyce's company, in the vocal scena, Jack Sheppard; the Four Skadias, Swedish gymnasts; Violi, musical specialist; Gilbert Gerard, a very able animal and instrumental mimic; Mary Ray and Frank Hatter, in the amusing American comedy act, "The Quack Doctor;" and Atroy, juggler and hoop manipulator. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope rounds off a splendid evening's programme.

BLACKBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr Reginald Yorke.—Mr Louis Calvert's company, in the interesting play Sunday, is the Christmas attraction here. Miss Jean Stirling Mackinlay plays the title-rôle in a charming manner. Mr J. Edward Pearce is a manly Colonel Brinthorpe. The four members of the camp, Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky, are successfully impersonated by Messrs Fred Powell, John H. Manley, T. Norman Walter, and Whitford Kane respectively. Mr Charles B. Vaughan appears as Arthur Brinthorpe, and Mr Ernest A. Douglas as Tom Oxley. The part of a nun is played by Miss Olive Adair, and that of Mrs Naresby by Miss Elisabeth Watson.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Page.—This week Napoleon the Great is being played by Mr Frank M. Thorne's company. As Napoleon Mr Hugh Montgomery is highly successful. Mr Frank M. Thorne is humorous in the part of Pierre Pomponnet. Miss Chrissie Dunbar is excellent as Marie Walesha, and Miss Maud Russell as Leonie Marbœuf and Miss Marie Harcourt as Marcelle Choupin are both good.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr F. Macnaghten; Genral Manager, Mr Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Drury.—Mr Macnaghten produced his annual pantomime, entitled Aladdin, on Boxing Day, when it met with instant success. The book has been written by Mr J. H. Wolfe, and the plot adheres closely to the traditional liner. Miss Meg Hamilton makes a sprightly Aladdin. Plenty of fun is provided by Mr Fred Lawrence as the Widow Twankay, Mr Walter Purvis as Abanazar, Mr Frank Lilliput as Bill Bailey, and Messrs Ritchie and Hewett as Ping and Pong. Miss Polly Prim is pleasing as the Princess. Miss Lily Brammar is attractive as Pekoe. Mr Gilbert Rogers appears as the Emperor of China, and is well supported by Mr Jack Heath as Gin Sling, the Grand Vizier. The music is very bright and well-arranged by Mr Chas. Hamlin. The incidental dances are arranged by Miss Ivy Lane. The scenery has been well-designed and painted, and the stage-management is in the capable hands of Mr Harry Drury. The pantomime has been produced by Mr Frederick Baugh.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr Mouillot's company commenced a new tour of A Runaway Girl here on Monday. Several new numbers have been interpolated in the piece, and the production, with its new dresses and scenery, is a credit to all concerned. The rôle of Brother Tamarind is a great success in the hands of Mr Henry Latimer. Mr Archie Croft is very good as Guy Stanley, and Mr Clifton Yates makes an eminently effective Leonello. Mr Alec Shinney impersonates Lord Coodle and Mr Jake Fern Mr Creel. Mr Howard Cridland's rendering of Flipper proves a great hit, and causes roars of laughter. Miss Amy Edmonds is excellent as Alice, the maid, as also is Miss Kate Vivian as Lady Coodle, and Miss Marie Shields is admirable as Carmenita, while Miss Ethel Netherton is as charming as ever in her old rôle of Winifred Grey.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA.—Proprietors, the Broughton Theatres Syndicate, Ltd.; Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr James W. Haworth; Manager and Secretary, Mr James M. Hardie, jun.—Mr Henry Swinerd's company is drawing full houses this week with Dare-Devil Dorothy, under the direction of Mr J. W. Cordiner. Miss Marjorie Cecil is successful in her charming acting of the title-rôle. Captain Geo. Fielding and Captain Edward Dudley are respectively well played by Mr Cecil W. Parke and Mr Henry C. Ward. Mr Arthur Verne is very good as Silas Crump and Featherstone Haugh is well presented by Mr Wilfred Carr. Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith, Miss Lillie Blake as Rosy Anne, Miss Mabel Blake as Polly, and Miss Kathleen Garnon as Ruth Montrose give good support. The fourth act lends itself to the introduction of variety business, and entertaining specialities are given. Miss Nellie Harcourt and Mr Arthur Verne introduce a cake-walk with about a dozen children; and the Sisters Blake and Miss Kathleen Garnon give acceptable turns. The scenery and staging are very good.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller. —Mr E. Oswald Brooks's company is here for the week with the musical comedy A Girl from Bond-street. In the title-rôle Miss Marie Vere acquits herself with distinction, Miss Doris Regan is well placed as Lottie Harvey, and Miss Ethel Russell is natural as Lady Fielding. Miss Maud Beard as Mrs Harvey, in conjunction with Mr Edward De Vere as Mickey Mulvarney, is responsible for much genuine fun. Mr Campbell Goldsmid (the Earl of Seacombe), Mr George Watts (Sir George Fielding), and Mr F. R. Heaton (

BRADFORD.

EMPIRE. — Moss' Empires, Limited; Manager, Mr J. J. Kelly. — On last Saturday, Mr Peter Eland produced his pantomime Little Red Riding Hood, a cleverly localised version of the legend of the nursery, and the book, of which he is the author, is an excellent example of Mr Eland's characteristic wit and humour. The story, in more or less orthodox fashion, is closely followed, and Mr Eland has unquestionably succeeded in providing a bright and wholesome entertainment, the main element in which is fun. There are local hits of a humorous character in abundance, capital songs and music of the catchy order; the scenic effects are excellent, particularly the view of the late exhibition, and there some very pretty and effective costumes. The initial performance passed off admirably, and Miss Dollie Hook, the principal boy, who is the Robin Oak Apple of the story, scored a success with a bright and animated effort. For a lot of the genuine fun Mr Flockton Foster is responsible as Sir Seely Chump. There is much excellent comedy in Master Lennie Ankers' assumption of the part of Policeman A. K. 9. Bluebell is charmingly played by Miss Rita Vincent, who possesses a fine voice, and she is capital in a coon song; Miss Mabel Manley makes a winsome heroine of the story; Mr Charles Howarth plays John William with a Simple Simon sort of humour which is diverting; Miss Annie Swires is a pretty Fairy; in the rôle of the Widow Bailey Mr George Royal is entertaining; Mr W. Raynor as the Wolf contributes some good baritone songs. There is an efficient chorus, and the remaining parts in the cast are acceptably filled. On Monday an excellent programme was provided for the holidays. The Jackson Family of clever musicians are paying a welcome return visit with their enjoyable entertainment; and the Knick Knacks in excellent comedy and dancing, and Charles Lilburn, comedian, are contributing good turns; the Cavillinis with their amusing "Bull Fight" burlesque and smart parodies are very entertaining; and Florrie Robins, comedienne, gives an attractive turn. A very clever peformance is that of the Aurora Troupe of Acrobatic Cyclists; and the Three Georgis are amusing comic acrobats. Brown and Robinson contribute good vocalism; Tambo and Tambo are very clever in manipulating tambourines; and Charles Coborn reappears with all his old success as a comedian of the old school.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr J. W. Berry. —In a capital programme here this week Dinah Morris and her Piccanninies submit an attractive turn in well varied songs and dances; and the Paragon Trio contribute good vocalism; the Athlones give a fine exhibition of physical culture, which commands admiration; the top-boot dancing and duets by Read and Write are good; as "surprise artists and Continental novelty performers," Martinetti and Grossi submit a capital entertainment; mimicry and vocalism by Lily Sharplin are excellent features; specialities in music and dancing by Edwards and Espinoso are cleverly introduced; the triple-bar act by the Walonells is clever and amusing; and the Four Burnells contribute a lot of fun with their farcical comedy Over the Garden Wall.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr George Dance's company opened a fortnight's engagement here on Monday with Veronique, and have been doing splendid business. The comic opera was superbly dressed and staged and its performances have evoked enthusiastic applause. Miss Ruth Lincoln sang and acted with charming style as Hélène de Solanges; Mr Scott Russell achieved distinct success as Florestan De Valiancourt; Mr Leslie Holland was very amusing as Coquenard; Mr Ivan Berlyn made a humorous Loustot; Mr Tom Shelford was highly successful as Seraphin; and Miss Maud Boyd acquitted herself admirably as Madame Coquenard. The remaining characters were ably sustained.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Bernhardt; Acting-Manager, Mr H. De Groot.—The Christmas fairy play, The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, and a Spelling Bee, was produced here last Saturday evening by Mr Arthur St. George. The play has been specially written by Meta Fanny Bowman, with lyrics by Holman Quin; the special music is by Miss Jessie Franklin, while the incidental music has been composed, orchestrated, and arranged by Mr J. W. Slatter. The dresses are by Benjamin and Co., London; the wigs by Gustave, and the scenery by Sidney Baker. The opening scene shows the Old Woman in her shoe, surrounded by her many children. The little ones, with bowls of broth in their hands, sing a song entitled "Broth," and also contribute some pleasing choruses. In the scene the King's Palace the King's daughter is in a trance and under the spell of the witch Thunderlass. To break the spell the magic word "Rojestvensky"—the name of the Russian commander—must be correctly spelt. The Court Jester dislocates his jaw in trying to master the spelling, and all attempts by the courtiers end in failure. Little Bee, the old woman's favourite child, has also been bewitched by Thunderlass, but Fairy Godsend comes to the rescue of the little one. She turns her into a Spelling Bee, who not only spells the hard word, but releases the Princess from the influence of the old witch. In the closing scene, early in the morning, Father Christmas pays his customary visit, and loads the children with presents. The part of the heroine, Beatrice (Little Bee), is charmingly undertaken by Miss Decima Brooke, whose neat dancing and pleasing singing make her a great favourite. Mr Arthur St. George gives an amusing representation of Mistress Shoe (the old woman); and Mr J. G. Forde makes a capital Sir Balfy Goff. Miss Jennie Franklin as the Queen, and Miss Nora Villiers as the Princess merit praise; and Miss Kitty Wren as Fairy Godsend and Miss Vera Villiers as Thunderlass are very effective. Mr Darby's King, Mr Fred Beck's Jester, Mr Louis Charles' Father Christmas are able impersonations; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained. Mr Arthur Hill, who has been specially engaged, appears in the Palace scene in a series of clever sketches as the Living Liliputian. The duties of musical director are in the hands of Mr J. W. Slatter. Mr H. Bernhardt may be cordially congratulated upon the success of his Christmas fairy play.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—The Vivians, in a musical travesty; Mabel La Blanche, burlesque artiste; Willie Benn, eccentric pianist; Flo Melville, burlesque artiste; Percy Honri, in song, story, and concertina solos; Preston and Balmain, in illustrated songs and duets; the Brothers Doran, American comedy gymnasts; Park's Eton Boys, vocalists; Booker and Narbie, in their scene, The Interviewer; Albert Wyndham and company, in the Shakespearian episode, Prince Arthur; or, the Days of King John; and the Alhambra pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—The Six Yiulians, Risley acrobats; Josephine Casaboni, in a series of graceful dances; the Sandor Trio, herculean gymnasts; Miss Nellie Ganthony, in musical and emotional sketches; R. Judge's eccentric acrobats and trick leapers; Charles Baron and his burlesque menagerie; the Brothers Permane, comedy acrobats; the Densmores, in the pantomimic sketch, Early Morning in the Kitchen; Reddick Anderson, tenor vocalist; John Lloyd, singing collier; and animated pictures.

WEST PIER. — Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—By arrangement with Messrs Murray King and Clark, A. and S. Gatti, and Charles Frohman, Bluebell in Fairyland, which had a long run at the Vaudeville Theatre, London, is placed on the boards here as the Christmas bill-of-fare. The opening performance, last Saturday afternoon, proved very enjoyable, and the charming piece will, no doubt, have a long and prosperous run. The dances have been arranged by Walter Cranch; the costumes, designed by Mr Wilhelm, have been executed by Madame Murray, Miss Fisher, Mrs Arthur Patrick, Mr Clarkson, Morris Angel and Sons, and Mr H. M. Rayne; the properties are by Mr Elliott and Mr Skelly; the wigs by Mr W. Clarkson; and the electrical effects by Mr G. Sheppard. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr I. S. Dunlop. The piece was produced under the direction of Mr Trevor Lowe, the duties of assistant stage-manager being in the hands of Mr Joseph Hart. Mr Seymour Hicks's fascinating extravaganza and Mr Walter Slaughter's exquisite music were warmly appreciated. Miss Rosalie Jacobi made a winsome Bluebell, and delighted the audience with her dancing, refined acting and tasteful vocalisation. Mr Walter Cranch achieved great success in his impersonations of Dickey, the London crossing-sweeper, and the Sleepy King; Mr H. Langdon Bruce and Mr Grahame Herington, as the two schoolboys, Blib and Blob, were very droll and entertaining; Mr Lionel Glenister as Wm. Joplin, and also as the Reigning King, showed able work; Mr Alfred Glyde as Peter (the Cat), was very satisfactory; Miss Dorothy Green danced delightfully as the Will-o'-the-Wisp; Mr Joseph Hart was a capital Yellow Dwarf; Miss Jean Verner as the Reigning Queen and the Water Lily was seen to advantage; and Miss Madge Langton's Bluebell's Good Fairy also deserves commendation. The minor characters were ably sustained, the choruses were prettily sung, and the dances were well rendered.

COLISEUM.—Licensee and Director of Entertainments, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—The following are here this week:—Vera Patey, comedienne and burlesque artiste; Philip Sefton, actor-vocalist; the Two Balzens, Japanese jugglers, balancers, and top-spinners; Charles Pond, in his "Glimpses of Life;" Maude Courtney, the American girl, in song and story; Ambrose Thorne, light comedian; and Coliseum Pictures. A Christmas flavour is given to the programme by the introduction of Fred W. Newman's good old-fashioned harlequinade, which is admirably sustained by Mr Fred W. Newman (clown), Harry Sparks (pantaloon), Charles Vernon (harlequin), Frank Thomas (policeman), James Pattison (swell), and Fanny Finley (columbine). The clown's visit to Shadowland is also entertaining. On the termination of each performance the stage is occupied by the Coliseum monster illuminated Christmas-tree, from which each child in the audience receives a toy.

BRISTOL.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr F. J. V. Welchman.—There were two performances here on Boxing Day, the leading attraction for the week being Ahrensmeyer, described as "the cowboy hypnotist." His performance and experiments create considerable interest. Nadji, dancer, contortionist, and handbalancer, presents a clever and pleasing turn; Charles Collette, comedian, is always popular at Bristol; Miss Lilith Leyton and Mr J. J. Bentham have a funny sketch, The Order of the Bath; Spry and Monti do a smart humorous turn; the Michalinis appear in a good equilibristic and juggling act; Cliff and Kean, comedy artistes and speciality dancers, are clever in their line; Guy Ryder, vocalist and whistler, pleases; and Kit Keer, a copper-coloured comedian, is successful. The performance concludes with some good animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—George M. Schilling, American athlete, who is walking round the world for a wager, is appearing here, and gives an interesting description of various adventures en route. Mr and Mrs 'Gene Hughes have an amusing sketch, A Matrimonial Substitute; Leo Dryden obtains applause for his songs; Mdlle. Marvelle's performing birds are well trained; Miss Addie Douna appears in a humorous sketch, How She Did It; Henry Abdy's troupe of animals do some clever feats; the Laares Troupe contribute some smart tumbling, &c.; Lew Wells has a novel musical act; Miss Lily Flexmore, comedienne and legmania dancer, is much appreciated; and Edward and Nettie Masse are responsible for some good comedy juggling. Animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL.—Mr Charles W. Poole's Myriorama is here for a short season. The up-to date attraction is a series of panoramic views, illustrating "Modern Warfare on Land and Sea"—from St. Petersburg to Mukden with the Russians, and from Tokio to Liao-yang with the Japanese. There are numerous other panoramic pictures, excellent animated pictures of various subjects, a good variety entertainment, and a fine band under the direction of Lieut. G. Howard.

BRIDLINGTON.

SPA THEATRE.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr Henry Hague.—A variety and pantomime company opened here on Monday evening in the bijou pantomime Little Red Riding Hood, in which Miss Doris Mydleton took the title-role. Mr Cecil Webb was the Baron, and his humorous songs and those of Mr Jack Blades as Little Flossie and Mr Harry Brady as the Beadle went well. Miss Dolly Bell was a capital Prince, and her dancing was excellent. Miss Maitland as the Fairy and Miss Lillie Webb as Miss Muffitt were also in the cast, and Mr Harry Raymond and Mr Sydney Forth were Simple Simon and the Wolf.

BURY (LANCS).

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE LIMITED. —General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Messrs G. Mitchells and J. Belton's company is presenting The Conscript here this week. The drama is illustrative of life in Russia. Mr George Mitchell as Karl, the Conscript, gives a remarkably clever portrayal, and is well assisted by Miss Mary Dawson as Nadia. The scenery is good.

OLYMPIA CIRCUS OF VARIETIES. — General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—The good programme provided here includes the Ross Clyde comedy company, in a funny sketch entitled I Must Have It; T. W. Royal, the winner of the Lancashire Clog Dancing Championship; Lanos and Montes, comedy acrobats; Les Uniques, gymnasts; the Blamphins, in a Nigger act; and Mdau Clifton and Fred Horsfall, vocalists.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. Broadhead.—A good bill is again being presented here, and grand business is being done at the reduced prices. Madge Gray, dialect comedienne; Britma, juggler; Louis A. Murray, vocalist; Millie Harris, vocalist; Jack and Evelyn, sand dancers; Sadie Dane, a coloured lady, in coon songs; Eric Graham, comedian; Le Warren, ventriloquist; the Goldinis, expert carpet spinners; and Freans, comedians and dancers, all contribute.

CAMBRIDGE

NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr W. H. Hallatt and company opened on Monday with Two Little Sailor Boys. Miss Blanche Steel as the adventuress, Lola Grey, gave a capital study of the part; Miss Mabel Soudamore as Lucy Wilson was also successful; Miss Dorothy Lennox as Mary Primrose made a sprightly maid; Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Francis were particularly effective as the two boys, Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke; Mr William Sams was a good Commander Noel Tregarthen; Mr Leonard Booker was satisfactory as Lieut. Richard Redstone; as were Mr W. H. Hallatt, Capt. Tom Yorke; Mr Tom E. Sinclair, and Mr Oscar Power.

GUILDHALL. — Dr. Seaton's animated photographs and concert party are giving a capital entertainment here. In addition to the photographs, which are well worth witnessing, the programme contains the following well-known artists, viz:—Miss Marian Williams, Professor Carton, Mr William Kingsley; while a number of tricks are performed by Dr. Seaton.

CARDIFF.

KING'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—At War with Women is the piece occupying the boards this week. The play, which is by the lessee, is presented by his company. All the artists render substantial help, and are individually responsible for first-rate impersonations. Miss Lizzie Montague's delineation of Auriel Romanoff stands out as the work of an accomplished actress, and Miss Montague deserves exceptional praise for a portrayal which in no small degree makes the piece such a success. The staging is a distinct feature, and the costumes are much above the average.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—A programme which the management has rightly conjectured will compete with the irresistible attraction of the pantomime has been given here this week. At the head of the bill is a grand Christmas production entitled "The Mistletoe Bough," shown with other interesting subjects on the American Bioscope. Grais' baboon prodigies give a good turn, in which a daring young baboon cycles the loop. The Jees present their ever-acceptable Musical Smithy; Alburtus and Bartram give a clever club-juggling performance; and the Resuas Trio display their ability as acrobats and equilibrists. Other excellent turns are the Max Welson Quartet of famous European rope-performers; the Brothers Pueblo, cake-walkers and sand dancers; Alice Maydue, character comedienne; the Llewelyns, Australian operatic vocalists; and Milner Verren, tenor vocalist.

CARLISLE.

ALGIE'S HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Mrs P. E. Veitch; Manager, Mr C. Algie.—Miss Frederica's wonderful performing terriers and pony are again here. A smart acrobatic display by Tom, Dick, and Harry is well received; and the Itrams, gymnasts, jugglers, and equilibrists, do some wonderful business. A popular turn is contributed by the Sisters Adrienne, who quickly dance, sing, and whistle their way into favour. Salmon, the well-known trick cyclist, is still right at the top of his form. Sill and Silcott, in an amusing extravaganza, Left Luggage; Mr C. E. Ernest, double-voiced vocalist; and Rick and Laurel, smart comedians and agile dancers, contribute turns which add to the success of an all-round excellent entertainment.

NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Mr Hugh Dempsey's "Stars of the Night" company opened here on Monday. A capital programme was submitted, including the Five Woodbines, musical eccentrics and acrobats; Proctorie, the king of irons; Mdlle. Walla Sanger, in illustrated songs and serpentine dance; Mdlle. Zara, thought-reader; Professor Rudolph, in the comic sketch The Academy; Sisters Ely, duettists; Leo Selwyn, illusionist; Dock Watson, coloured comedian; Miss Annie Revande, descriptive vocalist; and Mr Hugh Dempsey, who scored a complete triumph with his Irish comedy songs and Hungarian top-boot dance.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr Geo. G. Ridley.—Capital audiences are assembling here to witness the first local production of The Darling of the Gods, the company being toured by Mr J. Bannister Howard. The leading characters of Zakkuri, Kara, Yo-San, and Rosy Sky are admirably interpreted by Mr D Lewin Mannering, Mr Alfred Goddard, Miss Inez Bensusan, and Miss Edith Anton Laing respectively, each being heartily recalled during the evening. The general staging of the play is excellent.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr L. B. Barnard.—Mr Barnard's holiday bill-of-fare includes Leonard Mortimer and popular company, in The Britishers; Fred Elton, comedian; Lacey's Erascope, with animated pictures; Myra Stansfield, a smart comedienne; the Three Sisters Leigh, vocalists and dancers; Larry Lewis, eccentric comedian; Carr and Lewis, comedy artistes; and the Andreassen Brothers in the scena, The Naval Officers' Sports on Board.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr Frank E Donne.—Spot, coon artiste, tops the bill here, and with his party of cake-walkers causes roars of laughter in his travesty "The Cake-walk Craze;" unbounded applause is gained by the clever dancer who styles herself My Fancy; the Borghetti Troupe are undoubtedly smart acrobats; the Edisonograph has a fine picture entitled "Whirling the Worlds;" Harry Nation pleases with comic ditties, and others appearing are Lillie Le Breton, gymnast; Alice Coates, comedienne; and Arthur Stacey, comedian and dancer.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—An excellent programme is being submitted here this week. Mr Will Onda's sketch company heads the bill, and is responsible for two really funny pantomime sketches; Madame Alençon displays considerable talent in a mystic entertainment; Gillon presents a clever ventriloquial sketch; R. C. Note is responsible for good work as the swell comedian; Bendella is an admirable contortionist; Dave Hallie as a humourist is appreciated; and Eva Reed is a decidedly smart top-boot dancer. The Bioscope concludes an enjoyable entertainment.

CLYDEBANK.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Wilson.—The attraction here this week is the drama The Convent Bell, presented by Mr Howell Webb's company. The hero, Philip Vautier, is successfully delineated by Mr Stanley Carlton, the heavy part of Henri Cassella is acted in a manner that calls for special mention by Oliver Birrell. Miss Trissie Humphrys as the much-wronged Christine Valgrave, gives a careful reading, and is worthy of high praise. Miss Ruby Maude is a delightful Marguerite Courier. Mr Howell Webb makes much out of Pickle Podds, a sailor. Jean, a page, is smartly played by Mr Teddy Miles, and Miss Florrie Manderville is a vivacious Susette.

COATBRIDGE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—On Monday evening Mr Fountaine, the popular manager, who has now been here for close upon seven years, took his second benefit. Mr Chas. Majilton and company supplied the attraction with The Plumber. The following artistes also provided specialities:—The Sisters Brownie; Miss Maddie Majilton, in her favourite "Annie Laurie's my sweetheart's name;" Mr Adam White, the local strong man and physical culturist; Mr Tom Gibson, Scotch comedian; Mr J. Sydney Marley, elocutionist and humourist; Miss Kate Fallon, soprano vocalist; the Two Harringtons, handkerchief and flag mystifiers; and Mr John Watson, versatile comedian.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—An attractive holiday programme is provided here this week in a visit of Mr Gore Ouseley's company in the musical comedy The Lady's Maid. Miss Geraldine Bruce proves very successful as Miss Zaza Marmosette; Mr Carr Shirley plays Joseph Biffin with great credit; Mr Stenson Liddard is capable as Lieutenant Charlie Marchmont, the same remark applying to Mr Harold Eden as Hon. Augustus Puphpayst. Mr W. Pringle is happily placed as Samuel Spriggs, and Miss Maggie Bowman is amusing as Jane Taylor. Miss Pauline Hague acquits herself creditably as Miss Alison Grey, as heiress. The musical numbers are numerous and well rendered.

COLCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr F. Graham Macdona.—An immense success was scored by Mr Charles Macdona's company in Three Little Maids on Boxing Night. The singing, especially in the case of the ladies, was exceptionally good. Miss Vera Vallis, Miss Nellie Groves, and Miss Mabel Lavelle were delightful as the three maids, and Madame Lena Norina was a stately Lady St. Mallory. Storms of applause greeted the dancing and contortions of Mr Gus Oxley as Cupid, and he was ably seconded by Miss Laura Wright's thoroughly characteristic Gretchen, the Dutch tea girl. M. Jules Charmettes played the part of a French attaché with considerable force, and also contributed a clever 'cello solo. The Lord Cheyne of Mr Arthur Longley was admirable.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company opened here on Monday in The Little Minister. Miss Nita Faydon as Lady Babbie acted with much grace and humour. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as Narmy Webster filled the part capitally; Mr Lewis Edgard as Rev. Gavin Dishart was very successful; Mr George A Brandram as the Earl of Rintoul made a dignified, yet firm, father; Mr A. Kightley as Captain Halliwell filled the part admirably; Mr John Nesbitt, Mr Harry L. Carle, Mr Walter Maxwell, and Mr Herbert Chown were the Elders, and made a capital quartet; Mr Ean M'Donald as Rob Dow gave an excellent portrayal. Quality Street, by the same author, was produced here for the first time on Thursday evening, Miss Florence Jackson taking the part of Phœbe Throssell.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Henry Kemble. —Among the best turns here is Cee-Mee Troupe of aerial gymnasts; Minnie Scott is a comedienne and dancer who pleases; Harry Calvo also scores in his songs; Brothers Les Bois are a clever pair; Mary Winsome, male impersonator; David O'Leary, dancer; Grant and Allen, comedians, are much applauded; and Tate and Tate are good comedy acrobats.

CREWE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—The Christmas attraction here this week is provided by Mr James Hare's company in the melo-farce called The Golden Chance, and also the domestic drama entitled Woman's Redemption. The first was presented on Monday to a packed house. Mr J. Hare in the character of Hubert Zac played with great intelligence. Mr H. M. King gave a satisfactory rendering of Stephen Clinton. The comic element was entrusted to Mr Bert Atherton, who in the character of Sam Brown was humorous, being well supported by Miss Jenny Hallworth as Susan. Miss Agatha Halford made a pathetic Lydia Hastings. Miss Irene Clifford in the part of Mother Hawk and Vira Zac showed to advantage. Tuesday night was devoted to Woman's Redemption, and there was again a good house.

CROOK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Wallace Davidson.—As a special holiday attraction Miss Olga Audre and Messrs Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company opened here on Boxing night with the stirring drama When a Man Hates. As Pietro Danelli Mr Arthur Hinton is remarkably good, and Miss Leila Lillwood gives a realistic performance as the adventuress, Olga Gwynne. Mr Marcus Wynton submits a manly delineation of Lawrence Hastings, and Miss Marion Forrester is a sweet and pathetic Letty. The character of Sir Rupert Treharne is in the able hands of Mr Ploens Gains, Mr Travis Green is a clever Paul. Mr Tom Taylor (Peter) and Miss Marie E. Robertson (Dolly) are very funny.

CROYDON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Mr George Dance's company opened here on Christmas Eve in The Cingalee. There is a full chorus of fine voices, beautiful costumes, pretty scenery, and an augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr Edward H. Whitehall. Miss Madge Temple has a pleasing voice, and gives an artistic performance as Lady Patricia Vane. Miss Mabel Sealby is an enchanting Peggy Sabine, and her dancing is applauded; Miss Ethel Negretti is bewitching and bright as Nonoya, and sings her numbers sweetly; Miss Trissie March is an agreeable Angy Loftus; Misses Poppy Wilkinson, Kate Leicester, Iris Grosvenor, and Minnie Muir are charming little tea girls; and Miss Gladys Grey (Miss Pinkerton), Miss Ada Borne (Fräulein Weiner), Miss Vera Bolset (Mdlle. Chic), and Miss Mordaunt (Signorina Tasso) all look nice. Mr Francis Ludlow is sincere and attentive in the rôle of Harry Vereker; Mr F. W. Pattrick provokes hilarity with his well-thought-out portrayal of Boobhamba; Mr F. W. Ford is great as Sir Peter Loftus; Mr Vincent Erne introduces excellent business as Myamgah; Mr George Mudie, jun., submits an acceptable impersonation of Bobby Warren; and Mr Lauri De Frece gives a lively and comical rendering of Chambhuddy Ram which causes many a hearty laugh. Adequate assistance is also given by Messrs Walter F. Bates, Stanley Nix, Morn Taylor, and E. V. Carter as Willy Wilson, Freddy Lowther, Dick Bosanquet, and Jack Clinton.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—The holiday programme at this cosy house is a gigantic one, and includes:—The Arthur Saxon Trio, in their feats of strength; Miss Dora Clifford, comedienne and dancer; Mr Jack Thornbury, ventriloquist; Miss Dora Martini, lady gymnast; Miss Ada Victor, comedienne; Mr Mark Leslie, coon impersonator; the Excelsior duettists and vocalists; Miss Dora Lyric, vocalist; Mr Chris Wren, comedian; Miss Clorinda Thurtell, the Spanish Princess; Mr J. P. Lloyd, vocalist; Mr R. W. Bentley, comedian; Miss Blanche Holt, burlesque actress; the Lulaine Darrell Troupe, in an interesting act; the Brown and Kelly combination in sketch, The Lay Figure; or, Why Jones Left Home; and Mr Fred S. Partridge's orchestra.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Chapman.—Variety entertainments continue to exercise a potent infatuation, the one this week being a triumph of the series. Juno Salmo, the golden Mephisto, is a study, and a good impression is created by Mollie Doon, comedienne and dancer, while Herbert Madden, vocal comedian, furnishes a liberal turn. Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte, in their comedy sketch, Saucy Maud, evoke unstinted humour and applause, and a clever and unique exhibition comes from Oswald, equilibrist and staircase performer. Miss Gertrude Wesley, who was recognised as Miss Meacock, a local artiste, is a valuable adjunct to the combination, pathos, warmth, and fine technique characterising her harp solos. Edie Endon is distinctly smart as a danseuse, and withal entertaining in her vocal contributions. Mr A. Dodds, also a local musician, appears with a selection of the latest gramaphone records. One of the best appreciated items is Prince Ishmael's illusionist and necromancy display.

DUBLIN.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong. —The Moody-Manners Opera Company (Limited), with a powerful combination, commenced its annual Christmas season here on Boxing Day, the opening performance at the matinee being the popular Il Trovatore. Madame De Vere gave a charming and artistic rendition of Leonora. Mr John Child, who was in grand form, appeared in his popular rôle of Manrico, and gave a very fine performance. As the Count Di Luna Mr F. H. Erle distinguished himself; and Miss Toni Selter's portrayal of Azucena was excellent. Miss D. M'Carthy gave every satisfaction as Inez, and the Ferrando of Mr G. Renshaw was particularly good. In the evening The Lith of Killarney was presented. Madame Fanny Moody as Eily O'Connor was most heartily welcomed, her brilliant voice being heard with great effect in the several numbers. Mr Joseph O'Mara also had a flattering reception on his appearance as Myles-na-Coppaleen. He was in capital voice, and sang his music in artistic style. Mr William Dever was most successful as Danny Mann, and the part of Hardress Cregan was creditably taken by Mr Wilson Pembroke. Both operas were admirably conducted by Herr Richard Eckhold. Carmen, Mignon, La Traviata, The Daughter of the Regiment, Faust, and The Bohemian Girl are also in the répertoire.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—The principal feature here this week is Herman Melot, the famous conjuror. Gallagher and Hild are capital comedy artists, and Florry Cooper is a clever juvenile vocalist. Hugh Stanton and company in their sketch For Reform make a decided hit; Walter Munroe, comedian, is as popular as ever; Doody and Wright, Australian comiques, are exceedingly good; and Bijou Russell has a host of admirers. Fanny Robina, who remains from last week, is very popular; Pia Carczzi, harp virtuoso, is well received; and the Empire pictures are up to date.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—Barton and Ashley, who top the bill here this week, are highly amusing in their sketch Canal Boat Sal; Adrim and Oram are good as eccentric comedians, and Daisy Alymer is a chic comedienne and dancer; Hart and Rudd, comedians, score a success; as do also the Four M.P.'s in their musical mélange. Ted Heaton and Sacha are much appreciated for their swimming act; Harry Bent is a smart comedian; Carlotta Lunn is a pleasing comedienne, and Billy Moran a capital comic. The Bioscope pictures are also interesting.

PORT ARTHUR.

The Proprietors of FUO shipped to this now historic town a large quantity of their Mouth-Wash, just previous to the outbreak of hostilities. A cynic has suggested that this may have something to do with the tenacity with which the Russians are holding on to the town and its contents, and also the determination of the Japs to obtain control of the Port.

FUO is a delicious and refreshing teeth-beautifier and mouth-sweetener.

DARLINGTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manageress, Mrs T. W. S. Jennings.—The attraction here this week is the drama Wep-Ton-No-Mah, by the company of the Indian actress Miss Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, who herself plays the title-rôle in a manner which catches on at once. The part of Colonel Stockton is finely embodied by Mr C. W. Charles; as Spanish Joe Mr Richard Thorne does well; as Nellie, the colonel's daughter, Miss Minnie Goepel is seen to advantage; the comic element is in the capable hands of Miss J. Hart as Matilda, Mr Guy D. Hackney as Sam, and Mr Dan Ryan as Garry, a humorous Irishman. A special feature is the appearance of two fine Indian ponies.

DARWEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. L. Ormsby. — Mr Charles Frohman's company is appearing here this week in Sherlock Holmes. The title-rôle is in the capable hands of Mr H. A. Saintsbury, who gives a very fine impersonation. Dr. Watson is cleverly enacted by Mr Lawrence Leyton; and the callous Professor Moriarty is portrayed with telling effect by Mr W. F. Stirling. The part of James Larrabee is capitally embodied by Mr Leslie Carter; Mr Pelham Rayner is very good as Sidney Prince, as is also Mr Marc M'Dermott as John Forman. Miss Vera Longden assumes the rôle of Alice Faulkner in an admirable manner; and Miss Maud Linden makes the most of her opportunities as Madge Larrabee. Miss Rosalie Notrelle as Terese and Mr Gissing Walters as the Count Von Stahlberg also deserve mention.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—A large and enthusiastic audience welcomed the production of Mr E. Graham Falcon's pantomime, The Forty Thieves. The play is mounted and staged magnificently, the dresses are lovely, and the whole performance goes with verve and swing, which reflects the highest credit both on the stage-manager and the producer. Mr W. Cyrus contributes a large amount of fun with his highly amusing impersonation of Ali Baba. Miss Frances Manners as Abdallah has all the vivacity and dash associated with successful principal boys, and renders her songs in capital style. Miss Amy Randolph is equally good, and in the part of Ganem finds ample opportunities for the display of her undoubted talent. Miss Cissie Harcourt is pleasing as Morgiana, making the most of a somewhat ineffective part. Hassarac, as played by Mr Willie Kloof, is a most mirth-provoking character, and he is ably seconded by Mr B. Albert as Mustapha. Mr George Dix is clever as the donkey. Mr Hyam Good as Cassim Baba plays with excellent effect, and Mr Arthur B. Carlton as Cogia Baba comes in for a good share of applause. Miss Rosa Charles is a graceful Zobedie, and her coon song brought down the house. The principal characters are supplemented by a strong chorus, and some clever specialities are introduced, the most prominent being the Raynor Trio of acrobats, Cyrus and Maude, musical experts; and Hyam Good, in his burlesque drama.

DUDLEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—Mr A. E. Smith's pantomime The Babes in the Wood met with an enthusiastic reception on Monday from a packed house. Miss Lily Coleman made a graceful Fairy, and sang in capital voice; Mr J. H. Mathews, with a good baritone voice, was seen and heard to advantage as the Demon King. Miss Edith Wallis as Robin Hood was singularly successful, especially with her topical song "It takes a lot of washing out." Miss Beatie Howard was dainty and demure as Maid Marian; Mr Arthur Slater was thoroughly at home as the Bad Baron, being a whistler and mimic of the highest order; Mr Charles Gladwell worked very hard as the Dame, and caused roars of laughter; the Babes were prettily embodied by the Misses Lily White and Cora Pleon, and these sang together sweetly; and Mr Bod Padley and Mr F. Wheatcroft as Weary Willie and Tired Tim kept the audience in a continual roar. The Edna Trio of speciality dancers are exceptionally clever, and received well-merited applause, another good speciality turn being the Colleys, contortionists, table and staircase performers. The pantomime was well staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—A Christmas programme is provided this week, and on Monday night both houses overflowed. The bill includes Terras Bros., in acrobatic pastime; Forrest and King, in an acrobatic dancing speciality act; "Mr E." with up-to-date jokes; the Evalos, in a new comic juggling and gymnastic mélange; Alexandra Edwin, soprano vocalist; Slade Murray, actor vocalist; Tom Packer, comedian; and Daisy Morrell, burlesque artiste. Thursday and Friday in last week were set apart for the benefit of Miss Violet Friend, who annually gives the whole of the proceeds to the Empire Christmas dinner fund for the poor of the district, and the result of these benefits is highly gratifying to Miss Friend, and also of great assistance to the many poor families in the neighbourhood.

DUNDEE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Sandon Perkins.—Mr F. R. Benson and company are located here. Hamlet was produced on Monday, and Mr Benson as the Prince of Denmark gave a most excellent portrayal of the many-sided character. Mrs Benson as Ophelia submitted a very creditable performance; in the mad scene her acting was superb. Mr Cyril Keighley scored as Laertes; Mr Clarence Derwent made a delightful Horatio; Mr Geo. R. Weir was admirable as the grave-digger; and Mr Arthur Whitby was a most impressive ghost.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Rose.—The Three Laurels submit a clever acrobatic act "on the ping-pong table;" Mr Phil Herman scores a decided success with his clever songs; Gilroy and Gloss are capital sand dancers; Roden does some clever tricks on a cycle; and Mdlle. Magna appears in a beautiful statuary act; the Lady Comedy Quartet sing well; and a funny act is given by George and Edwards. Will Harvey and Harry Bennet complete the bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Will Percival.—A novelty is presented here this week in the appearance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West, reproduced on the cinématograph. Victor Ritter, musical clown; and Professor Montague, ventriloquist, add to the success of the programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Dobell Lyle.—The pantomime, Aladdin, continues in its course of success. Much new business is still being added, and with all the artists familiar with their parts, the whole show goes with a delightful swing.

EBBW VALE.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—After an interval of a fortnight, during which time the theatre has been closed for certain alterations, Mr Clifton Alderson's company opened with the popular military play A Soldier and a Man. Mr Alderson was particularly successful in the part of Harold Sinclair, and Mr F. K. Aylliff did well as Jake Harding. The scenery was effective.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—The delightful pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, is making grand headway here, the volume of business since the opening fully confirming our chronicle of success. There were two overflowing houses on Monday morning and evening, and anything better than the attendance for the remainder of the week no manager could desire.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—Mr George Edwardes provides the Christmas fare at this theatre as heretofore, and, in presenting The Cingalee, has given us an entertainment ently suited to the season. As a pronounced London success the play had a hearty welcome on Monday from a brilliant and crowded audience, and illustrated with beautifully painted scenery, costly and charming dresses, and supported by a numerically strong company, it should draw many thousands to this favourite resort during the holidays. The book, which is well designed, fulfils its purpose admirably, the sparkling music of Mr Lionel Monkton captures the ear, and extra numbers of a particularly attractive character result in prolonged applause and many well-merited encores. At the same time the splendour of the production was quickly recognised by Mr Edwardes' patrons; it is being talked about on all sides, and the painstaking care and high artistic taste expended on the mounting will no doubt have its due reward. The principal character is assigned to Miss Octavia Barry, a lady already high in favour here, and her spirited acting and tuneful singing as Nanoya certainly added much to her popularity. Lady Patricia Vereker was played with charming piquancy and rare refinement by Miss Lily Elsie, whose high vocal gifts made her singing a pleasure to listen to. Miss Maudie Marsland secured a notable success as Peggy Sabine, and enlivened the evening with some capital songs and dancing, receiving a plentiful share of the encores. The four native teagirls who take prominent part in the action were brightly rendered by Misses Claire Marsden, Claire Predelle, Kathleen Severn, and Doris Lester, while Miss May Gould danced with bewitching grace as Miss Pinkerton. Other attendant ladies were satisfactorily represented by Misses Mabel Hirst, Evelyn Fortescue, Mabel Allen, and Rhoda Gordon. Mr Leonard Mackay was admirably suited as Harry Vereker, and scored all along the line as hero, singer, and actor. His "Pearl of Sweet Ceylon" and "My dear little Cingalee" were absolute gems of vocalisation. Mr Colin Coop, another first-rate singer, provided plenty of amusement as Boobhamba, and that well-equipped and doubly droll comedian Mr W. J. Manning appeared as Sir Peter Loftus, a humorous creation that in his hands was irresistibly funny. Mr E. Statham Staples introduced something both novel and original in eccentric comedy as Chambuddy Ram, and carried through a heavy and exacting part with an ability and success that were apparent and complete. Mr Harold Thorley made a forcible impression and sang nicely as Bobby Warren, and Mr Willie Warde, jun., made a clever appearance as Myamgah. There was a dance carnival in the second act, in which the corps de ballet greatly distinguished themselves, the Rubies making a sensation in the Devil dance.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Mr G. W. Hunter, one of the stars of the old Gaiety in the early days of Mr Moss's management, had a hearty welcome at this house on Monday, when his diverting songs and still more diverting stories caused genuine amusement among visitors who have been particularly numerous all the week. Mdlle. Diane De Fontenoy introduced her attractive speciality, "An Artist's Model" with renewed success, and again skilfully delineated the various historical personages represented. The staging and appointments were of a costly and luxurious character. Alexander performed a number of cycling tricks that created quite a furore; and Mr Frank Harwood's descriptive songs, which were effectively delivered, went well. Miss Lucy Weston, who looked a dream in her exquisite costumes, rendered two smart songs in dainty fashion, and the imitation of prominent music hall artistes given by Miss Rose Archer, who accompanied herself on the piano, were all neatly and effectively done. Lilian Warren's illustrated songs were very enjoyable, and Miss Amber Austa's quaint coon songs and remarkably clever step dancing were received with enthusiastic applause. M. Eugene Marrder, the gold cavalier, remains with his wonderful horse and dogs, and Mr Will Haines, vocal comedian, and the Victorias, vocalists and dancers, complete the company.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore.—Cinderella is playing here to crowded houses, the production now going capitally from start to finish. On Monday two performances were given, one thousand two hundred children attending the matinée on invitation of the manager, a pleasant incident of the occasion being the presentation of a beautiful basket of flowers to Miss May Marton, the charming Cinderella of the pantomime, from the boys and girls of St. Giles's Cathedral Schools.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—Holiday fare at this house consists of a series of well-known dramas, given under the direction of Mr Auguste W. B. Kingston, whose répertoire company appeared on Monday in the Irish play Rollicking Barney. The principal characters were effectively sustained by Messrs Kingston, Donaldson, and Egan, the latter a comedian of droll powers, while Miss Madge F. Young made a fine appearance as the heroine. On Tuesday Jack Sheppard was given, on Wednesday Poor Jo, on Friday Lured to Ruin, and on Saturday Maria Martin, a lurid melodrama that is seldom played now-a-days.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr John Henry Cooke.—"Aqua-Wreck" is carrying all before it here, and so great has been the demand for seats that two performances daily have had to be given all the week. The equestrian and variety programme is first-class, and forms an interesting introduction to the entertainment.

WAVERLEY MARKET.—Mr Moss's character for modesty and diffidence is well known all the world over, and it seems he will be showing a more retiring disposition than ever as the present year closes. However, his career as an amusement provider on a gigantic scale is in no wise affected by this, and in presenting his twentieth Edinburgh Carnival he has certainly put his best foot forward. The vast building has been transformed into a veritable fairyland, and a round of amusements is provided that would satisfy the most critical. The decorations by Messrs Evanston and Elliott, Limited, are in the best possible taste, and reflect highly on the enterprise of this well-known firm, while the electric lighting by Messrs King and Co., and the gas illuminations by Messrs Barton and Sons, are as brilliant and effective as ever. The big line on the bill is provided by Herr Julius Seeth's cage of twenty-three forest-bred lions, introduced on this occasion by M. George Thielbar, who gives a wonderful performance. Another fine show is that of the Lukushima troupe of equilibrists, which includes Otora San Lukushima, Japan's premier lady artist, while the grand display by Apollo, the famous Scottish athlete and writer on kindred subjects, is hailed with enthusiastic cheering by his admirers. Ivan Tschesnoff's ponies, dogs, and pigeons show remarkable training, and the clever skating act of Les Vicentinas, who possess a skating dog, is skilfully executed. The Rossow Midgets are well-known Lilliputian acrobats, boxers, and comedians; and the Three Donals, gymnasts, and the Seddons, jugglers, each give enjoyable turns. A very interesting show is that of Robertus and Alfredo, who manipulate small indiarubber balls with astonishing dexterity; and the Cole de Losse, comedians, also provide some capital fun. This stage performance, which takes over three hours (with slight intervals) to accomplish, goes with praiseworthy smoothness, under the able management of Mr Hyram Travers, jun.; while Lieut. H. G. Amer's splendid military band, after an overture and selection, discourses some very pleasant music during the various performances. Prof. Fred Harcourt is the star of the side showmen, with an amusing mystery; while the sensational kettle draws immense crowds of visitors. Mdlle. Lucie, the heaviest girl in the world; Octavia, the beautiful snake-charmer; the Mysterious Countess X., the two-headed lady; the Marvellous Howards, and Gus Hart's Submarine are some of the many extra attractions of this wonderful carnival.

PROVINCIAL PANTOMIMES.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT LIVERPOOL.

That Mr Robert Arthur's ninth annual pantomime at the Royal Court will prove a great success there is no reason to doubt. The book is fresh, the music delightful, the dresses and accessories just from the hands of the makers, and the business clean and smart. In addition there is elaborate scenery, the beautiful colours of which are enhanced by the skilful manipulation of lights, and by a chorus of over a hundred. The pantomime consists of two acts, comprising eleven scenes. To the accompaniment of sprightly music the rise of the curtain discloses the Belfrey of Bow Church, with a party of smocked-men ringing the bells and singing a swinging chorus. Here the Demon Rat announces his intention of injuring Alice, daughter of Alderman Fitzwarren, a universal provider and a director of the Anti-rat Crusade, but, as is customary, the Spirit and Fairies of the Chimes appear in time to intervene. We are soon taken to Covent-garden Market, a magnificent set. The fun is started by Fitzwarren's apprentice (the Hon. Johnnie Pennicake), son of a reduced duke, and his cook, who create uproarious laughter. The inevitable motor car is used, and a vegetable ballet, well arranged and well managed, is introduced. Whittington and his Cat, with the Princess of Morocco, take part in the hilarity, and the merriment is fast and furious. Eventually Whittington is disgraced and driven out of the place, a fine ensemble and chorus closing the scene. Hampstead Heath, with a distant view of London, is next shown, and here the break of dawn is heralded by a flying ballet of fairies. The picture is a delightful one. Merriment is again uppermost in the Hotel Mogadore, and the first act concludes with a view of Wapping Old Stairs, where a vessel bound for the East is awaiting to take away all the principal persons concerned. Act two introduces a gorgeous "set," The Emperor of Morocco's Palace, the background, cunningly devised, showing a lovely starlit blue sky and waving palms—a clever piece of stage craft. A quick change finds the darkened palace swarming with the rats, the uncouth-looking creatures, with their blinking electric-lighted eyes, moving about to the accompaniment of an effective chorus. The pantomime concludes with a transformation and musical mélange, the scene being Whitehall Gardens. Miss Hetty King as Dick Whittington speedily found favour with her audience. Vivacious and sprightly, she quite suited her part, her sand-dancing earning for her encores, and her singing of "When a fellow is twenty-one" and "Bluebell" being warmly applauded. As her companion, Miss Fanny Dango was a neat Alice, with a captivating manner and a musical voice, the latter being heard to advantage in the coon song "The Queen of Dixie Land." Miss Amy Height had the rôle of the Princess of Morocco, and played with her accustomed tact and spirit; and Mr George Gicardo moved very gracefully as the Cat. Mr Walter Groves had many opportunities for displaying his powers, and used them on every available occasion. Attired as Mrs Dessicated-Edwards he provoked merriment each time he appeared on the stage. There was scarcely a single "gag" thrown out by him which could be charged with staleness. His sayings were reeled off in strings, and the laughter that followed was incessant. Mr Horace Mills may claim to have provided much of the fun with his part of the Apprentice, The Alderman could scarcely be in better hands than those of Mr Edward Lewis, his attempts to escape from "Bill Bailey's home," which followed him even to Morocco, being very diverting. His song, "What do you want to talk about it for?" was exceedingly comic. Those two excellent comedians Alexandre and Hughes were the Emperor and Vizier, and raised much laughter. Mr Fred Storey, as usual, proved admirable in the rôle of the Demon Rat, and other principals were Miss Peggy Primrose as the housemaid; Mr E. W. Avery, Captain of the Margarine; Mr Philip Howley as Farmer Hayseed; Mr Miller Anderson, the Merry Monarch; and Miss Mabel Mainwaring, the Spirit of the Chimes. The Belle Troupe were the principal dancers.

All concerned in the production are to be congratulated upon the success of this year's effort. Mr Frank Dix wrote the book; the music was provided by Messrs J. O. Shepherd and Julien A. Wilson; Messrs Stafford Hall, W. P. Warren, and J. F. Hogg painted the scenery; the costumes were after the designs of Comelli; the ballets were arranged by Miss Madge Martin; and the lyrics written by Mr Frank Dix. The production was under the personal direction of Mr Robert Arthur, assisted by his able manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.

"ALADDIN" AT LIVERPOOL.

From a spectacular point of view Aladdin at the Liverpool Shakespeare ranks high. In several instances, indeed, it would be difficult to improve upon the lovely pictures that are unfolded, and to a critic's sharp eye there is every evidence that the most careful attention has been paid to those minor details which go to make a harmonious whole. The management may be assured that the gorgeous work they have brought to Liverpool will be fully appreciated. Indications of this fact were shown on Christmas Eve when a vast audience filled the handsome theatre, which, by the way, was delightfully decorated with seasonable plants, &c., while on Boxing Night and the evenings following the capacity of the building was tested to its utmost. Of story there is little, the old lines in respect to the wonderful lamp being followed closely, yet they are so utilised as to allow of the introduction of some excellent effects. Demon's Caverns, gloomy and filled with strange forms and startling sounds, sun-lighted Chinese streets and towns, goods stores, where fun prevails, imposing and brilliantly-adorned Oriental palaces—all follow in succession, being neatly interwoven so as to afford the most striking contrasts. The accessories and dresses can only be described as superb, and are practically beyond improvement, while the army of young ladies engaged in the several ballets and tableaux is bewildering in the matter of numbers. The ensemble they present on the vast stage of the Shakespeare is certainly very fine. Then, again, the incidental music provided by an augmented and large orchestra is especially good, while many popular songs are introduced. Notwithstanding the preponderance of rich pictures and elaborate sets, which occupy some time in showing in all their beauty, some considerable portion of the evening is devoted to fun of a rollicking kind. This is especially so in the opening of the second act where Widow Twankey's shop is visited by foreign customers. The incidents that take place therein are the most humorous in the pantomime, and a good half-hour's continuous laughter is provided. Included in the best-known songs are "You can't stop the sun from shining," "Oh, the Irish," "So Did Eve," "Bluebell," and "She's a white little girl." A capital all-round company of principals have been engaged. Foremost is Miss Carrie Moore, whose Aladdin is a sweet and vivacious impersonation; while possessed of an excellent voice, she renders several songs that earn for her cordial recognition. To Miss Maggie Moore falls a lot of responsibility, which she meets in a most satisfactory manner. Her Biddy is a delightful sample of an aggressive Irishwoman, and her every appearance on the stage is the signal for uproarious laughter. Miss Billie Burke proves a dainty Princess, and plays with taste and reserve, while Miss Rosie Begarnie as Ah Sing renders coon songs and dances with grace and effect. Of the comedians Mr George Graves makes up well as the Widow Twankey, and pours out his innumerable "gags" with a quiet dryness that never fails to arouse uncontrollable merriment. As a capital companion Mr Frank Danby's Abanazar is full of comicality, and together the pair provide the majority of the evening's fun. The Emperor of China, undertaken by Mr Arthur Reynolds, is exceedingly smart, and when opportunity serves that able comedian contributes largely to the lighter side of things. Others worthy of mention are Mr Fred Allandale as Pekoe, possessed of a capital voice; Miss Katie Vesey as Yu-bu-tee, Miss Muriel George as Nicee, and Mr Gordon Brookes, the Grand Vizier. To all those who by their onerous labours have brought about such an excellent production a word of praise is due. The "book" comes from the able pens of Mr A. M. Thompson, a well-known journalist, and Mr Robert Courtneidge, whose name is popular in Manchester and the north of England generally; the latter gentleman was also responsible for the production of the work. Mr Charles H. Taylor, of School Girl fame, provided the lyrics; the music came from Messrs Alfred and Herbert E. Haines, and was arranged by Mr George M. Saker; Mrs Campbell Browne, of London, superintended the making of the costumes; the ballets and processions were arranged by Miss Rose Tyrrell; the mechanical effects constructed by Mr Edgar Marston; and the properties by Mr Bateman. Thanks are also due to Mr Wilhelm for designing the costumes and accessories. High praise should be bestowed on the artists, Messrs Tritschler, T. Holmes, M'Cleery, and Gordon, who painted lovely scenery.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD" AT LIVERPOOL.

The management of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, has this year taken a new departure and catered for the little ones. While the majority of the other theatres in the city are providing the customary adult pantomime here, we have presented a juvenile version of Little Red Riding Hood, well written and well put on. On Saturday last parents and children were present in strong force, and the latter appeared to thoroughly enjoy the old nursery story, which is told so simply as to be readily followed by those for whom it is intended. The company of juvenile artistes engaged is a numerous one, and show a large amount of careful training, while there are many very pretty scenic sets. Again the music is lively, the costumes exceedingly handsome, and a large amount of humour easily appreciated by the younger portion of the audience, is introduced. In addition to the principal figure in the pantomime there are also Tommy Tucker, Boy Blue, Little Miss Muffet, Marjorie Daw, Dame Trott, Sunny Jim, and, of course, the Wolf. Included among the elder members of the company are Miss Molly Rafferty, a winsome Red Riding Hood, who sings and dances with considerable ability for her age; Master Paddy Mills, who as Sunny Jim, creates endless laughter; Master Charles Elbon and Master Norman Barnard as Slavoraski and Hunwag, a comical pair; and Master Dan Dougherty, a humorous Dame Trott. The "book" is written by H. B. Levy, the music is from the pen of Mr Carl Sherrington, and the pantomime is produced by Mr and Mrs H. B. Levy and Mr J. Walters. The work is deserving of success.

"LITTLE ALADDIN" AT LIVERPOOL.

Melodrama at the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, has been laid aside for a season, and on Monday Mr James Kiddie provided the patrons of that popular north-end place of amusement with a merry pantomime entitled Little Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp. The work has earned much public approval. It is brightly written, up to date with its songs and business, and staged and dressed in an elaborate manner. Chief among the principal artistes are Witty Wattie Walton, who presents a very funny Widow Twankey; Mr Arthur Alston, the Abanazar; Mr Ralph Roberts, who makes a humorous Chinese laundry-boy; Mr Henry Parratt as the Slave of the Ring; Mr Fred Buxton, Mr Walter Aubrey, Mr James Greenhey, the Two Kelsos, Miss Mina Marie as Prince Pekoe; Miss Marie Beresford, a charming Aladdin; Miss Maude Clarke, an accomplished principal dancer; and the Caenville Troupe of lady dancers. The work, which is in fourteen scenes and has been specially written, is from the prolific pen of Mr Joseph L. Barry, and the chorus and orchestra is ably conducted by Mr John Gill.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT MANCHESTER.

Not unworthily designated "the home of pantomime," the Theatre Royal, Manchester, has kept up to its traditions of excellence in the current production of Mother Goose, the first performance of which took place on Christmas Eve. Mr John Hart, who has nothing to learn in this department of theatrical enterprise, is responsible for the production, which, it must be admitted, takes rank with the very best that have been seen here for many years. The book is by Mr J. Hickory Wood, whose name is a hall mark of excellence, and lyrics pertinent to the theme have been supplied by Mr William Wade, a talented local writer of repute in this sphere of work. The author's version of the story is distinguished by interesting variations which lend a touch of novelty here and there as it develops, and interest is maintained by the inclusion of sundry characters who, if not to be found in the nursery version, are continually playing upon and developing the incidents of the tale. Mother Goose is in danger of being sold up by the local mayor for rent, but suddenly realises vast wealth in the possession of a large goose which lays golden eggs of enormous size. This being a fairy arrangement her continued possession of the goose depends on her preserving a feeling of contentment with wealth and its material advantages; otherwise, the goose must depart from her into the indefinite upper regions of Gooseland, to be seen no more. Such, however, is the aversion with which her physiognomy is regarded that the misguided old woman begins to wish for the beauty of youth, so that she may ensure to herself the love of one or other of the various eccentric gentlemen who desire her for her wealth alone, but cannot endure her features; and on being tempted by the demon, Malignon, she confesses that for a beautiful face she would give even her magic goose. She gets her wish, and is so changed that her own son does not recognise her; but the goose has gone, and she is poor again, so that her beauty avails her nothing. In her repentance the good fairy Heartsease appears to her and grants her wish to be old once more; but the goose cannot be brought back unless the gallant young Colin, lover of Mother Goose's pretty daughter, ventures for it into Gooseland, bearing a magic feather from the gracious hand of the fairy, to ensure the delivery of the precious bird to him by the inhabitants of the upper regions. Therefore, Colin departs on his mission. Mother Goose and her son Jack follow in an airship, and are taken prisoners by the community of geese, who condemn them to be dealt with as mortals deal with geese on earth at Christmas time. But, of course, Colin appears to the rescue, and, presenting the magic feather, is allowed repossession of the goose that lays golden eggs; after which nothing but happiness remains. This story works itself out over ten scenes, all more or less remarkable for beauty of colouring and elaborate arrangement. Seven of them are by Mr R. C. Oldham, and three by Mr D. G. Hall. They are divided into two sections, the most remarkable sets in the first portion being a landscape including Mother Goose's Cottage, and a woodland scene in which a meet of huntsmen occurs. The second half includes a very fine imaginative picture of the Magic Pool, over which Mother Goose is found recovering her beauty, and in which a splendid ballet of water nymphs takes place; the pastoral scene of the Wishing Gate; and the final scene of Gooseland, in which occurs the grand ensemble, including a Congress of Geese. As for the artists, congratulation is due to the management upon its selection of so choice a company. At the head of them all is Mr George Robey, whose impersonation of Mother Goose is brimful of the unctuous expressional humour which characterises him among comedians, and animated from first to last by a restless resource to small means of fun which become extremely large in his hands. It is not too much to say, even at this early stage, that our premier eccentric comedian has never had a part more prolific of chances to show himself at his best. Added to his lines, he has several good songs, notably "Solid, substantial, and thick" and "I said 'Oh!'" both of which are highly successful. Mr George Bastow as Mother Goose's son, Jack, adds considerably to the amusement by a clever and humorous characterisation, his vocal efforts being "What d'ye want to talk about it for?" and a share in a duet, "The Old Bull and Bush," with their Dutch servant, Gretchen, a part which somewhat limits the exceptional abilities of Miss Daisy Jerome—a fact to be regretted—though her interpretation, including her song, "The Gibson Girl," is admirably done. Of the remaining comedians, the most notable is Little Ganty, who makes the most of his opportunities in the part of a perky little Scotchman; while Mr Laurence Caird and Mr E. W. Royce as the Laird of Borderland and the Mayor of Moortown respectively are seen to advantage in their mercenary quest of Mother Goose's hand in marriage. The Brothers Valdo should also be commended for their performance as a couple of eccentric donkeys. Of the ladies, Miss Hilda Jacobsen figures most prominently as the principal boy Colin, a rôle which she is sure to develop advantageously to herself as time goes on. Her singing of "Bluebell" is, of course, excellent, and she shines also in a duet with Jill, "My Little White Girl," Jill being impersonated nicely by Miss Venie Clements. Miss Clements has two other vocal opportunities worthy of mention, "Farewell, My Little Yo-San," illustrated by a Japanese group, and "The Land of Snow," supplemented by a chorus in Laplander tents. Among the various parades and ballets a series of dances by children should be mentioned as a popular feature. A striking acrobatic speciality by the Two Cabiacs is also introduced midway. The music is by Signor Romilli and Messrs T. C. Poyser and Arthur Poyser, the former of whom is musical director. Add to all this that the dresses and electrical effects are superb, and it will be seen that the pantomime is destined to a long and successful run.

"CINDERELLA" AT MANCHESTER.

As was to be expected, Mr Oscar Barrett's production of Cinderella at the Prince's Theatre on Christmas Eve was distinguished by every splendid appurtenance of pantomime on the grand scale which has been customary here for many years. Novelty also is discernible in the arrangement of the story, which is described as a fairy extravaganza in three acts, and which, while utilising time-honoured material, presents the circumstances of the old tale in something of a new light. Mr J. Hickory Wood is the author of the book, to which lyrics relevant to the action have been added by Mr Henry Edlin. The old-fashioned incongruity of two exceedingly ugly sisters of a charming and dainty Cinderella is done away with by the author's device of making the former pair the daughters of the Baron's second wife, who is brought home to the village while the heroine, Cinderella, is still at a finishing school, ignorant of her father's design to marry again. Congruity is further served by the fact that the new Baroness is herself no beauty. But at the opening of the action the Baron is ignorant of the existence of stepdaughters, and he is so overpowered by the Amazonian Baroness that he is in fear of letting Cinderella know what he has done. Two pages are in attendance, one in charge of the sisters, the other awaiting the arrival of Cinderella, and these two add materially to the bustle and humour of a pleasing and brilliant opening scene. Mr Norman Hall is active and amusing as the Baron, surnamed De Boots, and the Baroness of Miss Florence Smithers is grim and full of acerbity, though she is by no means overwhelming in proportions. Of the sisters, Mr William H. Powell plays Cassandra in the style of a genuine comedian, his ready movement, incisive utterance, and comic resource stamping his performance as one of the successes of the cast. The other sister, Chloe, a part filled by Mr Oliver J. Round, is an exceedingly grim specimen of elderly maidenhood, leavened by occasional girlish antics and uncanny gleams of humour. The usual little jealousies subsist between these two, each being anxious to get married before the other. The Baroness's page, Trim, played by Mr Fred M'Naughton, is the champion of the sisters, while Trott, the Baron's factotum, made very much alive by the personality of Mr Tom M'Naughton, is the particular advocate of Cinderella's interests. Needless to say, these two work admirably, together or apart, and are responsible for a large proportion of the fun, the more credit being due to them for their unflagging good spirits and busy comicalities in that they depend for no part of their success on an eccentric make-up, which in each case is conspicuous by its absence. Cinderella's return home in the second scene is the signal for further humorous complications in the Baron's household, and she is one of the daintiest and most charming of Cinderellas. Miss Ida Rene is simply perfect in the part. She is pretty, graceful, and so admirably schooled in simple freshness of expression as to seem quite artlessly girlish. Her success was instantaneous on Saturday, and it is certain that her presence and her gifts must be one of the most potent factors in the prosperity of the pantomime. That she should have a Prince for a lover seems in the natural order of things, and Prince Jasper, tired of the empty ceremonies of Court life, is just the person to choose her as an object of adoration. Miss Millie Lindon makes a very pleasing and dignified Prince, and she could not but feel highly gratified by the quality of her reception on the opening night, many of the audience being already familiar with the welcome and artistic refinement of her style. Attendant upon the Prince is Miss Maud Venn as the vain Dandini; Miss Gwen Howard as Lady Dainty, mistress of the frocks and frills; and Miss Gladys Harvey as Lord Chamberlain. Of these, Miss Maud Venn, a sterling comedienne, has the most distinguished opportunities, which she may be trusted to make the most of as time goes on. Perhaps the most noteworthy scene in the first part of the story is a Glade in the Royal Park, a very fine woodland set revealing glimpses of distance between groups of natural-looking tree-trunks. In this scene Miss Maud Venn sang an effective "Snowflake" song, assisted by Miss Gwen Howard. Miss Millie Lindon also produced here a song called "The Angel of My Dreams," a finely conceived ballad admirably suited by the author to her rather pensive style. Miss Ida Rene figured as the objective in this highly successful scene, which, in fact, proved one of the most noteworthy vocal items of the night. The opening scene of the second act, The Boudoir Gymnastique, furnishes an opportunity for some excellent fun with the gloves and foils by the Messrs M'Naughton, the Baron and the Baroness. The second scene also introduces speciality in the shape of a juggling performance by Freake, a palace attendant; and when it is stated that Freake is no other than Mr W. C. Fields, it will be understood that the performance is both clever and diverting. The Grand Hall, a really splendid set, is the scene of Miss Ida Rene's fine song, "The Rake's Progress," in which she followed up emphatically the success of a lighter theme—Marriage à la Mode. Here also she figures with Mr Tom M'Naughton in an amusing dissertation on "Kisses," illustrated. A beautiful Cloudland scene—the Fairy Forge—completes the second part. The third part comprises three scenes, of which the final one—the Throne Room—is absolutely magnificent. Many other songs might be mentioned as contributing incidentally to the interest and gaiety of the show, among them being "The rain came pitter patter down" and "The Fat Old Cat," by Miss Millie Lindon; "The Clothes Line," by Miss Maud Venn; "Short Stories," by Mr Wm H. Powell; and Miss Gwen Howard's "Navaho." It remains only to be added that the dresses and effects are unsurpassable; that the music has been cleverly composed and arranged by Mr Herbert E. Haines; that the magnificent scenery is by Messrs Conrad Tritschler and George Dodson; and that Mr Oscar Barrett may be congratulated on a potential success of the first class.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" AT MANCHESTER.

The Royal Osborne Theatre, Manchester, was the scene of exceptional animation on Monday, the occasion being Mr H. A. Jordison's elaborate production of the pantomime of The Babes in the Wood. True to the necessities of a pantomime projected for the delectation of many and various audiences on the road, Mr Jordison has worked upon a book supplying, firstly, an infinitude of comic opportunities, a book for which Mr Theodore Adye is responsible. Due consideration has, however, been given also to the setting, which is so far from being stinted that no fewer than twelve scenes are employed, many of them being of a very elaborate and gorgeous nature, while the dresses and effects are on a correspondingly scale of brilliance. The story follows the well-known lines, from a scene in Cloudland, which initiates the supernatural influence on the story, to a glorious and triumphant ensemble of the fortunates in the Hall of the Palace. The various important characters are meanwhile introduced in the village of Bramblebee, over which the wicked uncle, Baron Toodle (Mr Edward Avon) exercises a pernicious and designing influence in the approved style of an impecunious pantomime villain. Here also lives Dame Peggy, the mistress of Bramblebee Board School, whose eccentricities in the person of Mr Rowland Hill are all the while vigorous and amusing. A dual rôle of the Baron's secretary and orator and Chief Constable of Bramblebee is played in lively fashion by Little Cluley, and much entertaining knockabout fun is added by Beery Bill and Sloppy Dick, the two desperadoes who subsequently attempt the fell work of their paymaster the Baron. This precious pair are impersonated by Messrs Cullen and Carthy in a style productive of real amusement, much of the success of the show on the comic side being due to their humorous handling of their parts. Of the babes, Little Dolly Cullen and Little Elsie Jordison, it is pleasant to be able to say that these are two exceedingly clever and engaging children, who supply just that touch of reality which must make the pantomime appeal strongly to the youthful among the audience, and at the same time inspire their elders with a homely and admiring interest. Real ability distinguishes both, not only in their movements and the delivery of their lines, but also in their remarkably pleasing duet and dance, executed skilfully and daintily in a later scene of The Forest. Interwoven with the fortunes of the babes are some relative adventures of bold Robin Hood, impersonated in gallant style by Miss Madge Daley. This graceful young lady has all the qualifications necessary to the successful principal boy, including a capital singing voice, as was evidenced by her version of the inevitable "Bluebell" and her delivery of a very nice sentimental song entitled "Molly, I love you," which met with considerable success. Robin Hood's vis-à vis, of course, is Maid Marian, the Baron's governess, who moves in these affairs quite charmingly in the person of Miss Ada Martine. Beside all these we have a trio of Foresters attendant on Robin Hood—Misses Ethel Brookland, Gabrielle Harvey, and Beattie Scots—Miss Bella Brookland as Phyllis, Miss Kitty Caffrey as Marjorie, and Miss Nancy Thornton as Dorcas, a typewriter, all with intelligible business to do; while Miss Edie Dunsker as the Fairy Venus and Mr W. Francis Greene as Herne the Hunter discharge their supernatural duties quite acceptably. Incidentally, Mr Rowland Hill's School scene, in the Baron's Study, is well worthy of remark; also his singing of the Dame song, "Jilted;" while Messrs Cullen and Carthy, who score, by the way, with their parody, "Who Killed Bill Bailey?" contribute a really funny fight in the Forest scene. Specialities also are introduced from time to time, namely, Georg Chanti, Continental quick-change character artiste—a very clever performance; Jordison's Empire Quartet of skipping-rope dancers; and a contortionist act by Avon and Crest. Some special lyrics, by Mr H. A. Jordison, are included in the libretto, and the overture and incidental music have been arranged by Mr Wilfrid Knowles. Altogether it is a capital show.

"JACK AND JILL" AT GLASGOW.

After an interval of twenty-one years the boards of the Royalty, Glasgow, are again occupied by pantomime, as produced by Mr John Tiller. The result is a bright and animated entertainment, the subject of which is the old favourite nursery rhyme, Jack and Jill, necessarily somewhat extended to suit the requirements of modern pantomime audiences. As a result an attractive story has been evolved with the loves of Prince Fearless and Princess Bountiful and the fortunes of Jack and Jill, who ultimately turn out to be the children of the late king and heirs to the throne. Of the ordinary mortals in the story, Dame Durden, the foster mother of Jack and Jill, as impersonated by Mr Harry Conlin, makes an instantaneous hit with the audience. His quaint appearance, clever songs and patter, neat dancing make him popular, and his success is emphatic. His smart ditty "Mary," and the duet with the Baron, "Happy Land," with its local and topical hits, went well. As the Baron Jolleboy Deadbroke Mr Leslie Stiles shows himself a comedian of much humour and resource. His acting is clever and to the point, and he makes a special success in the ingenious automata song and business in conjunction with the Price Brothers Troupe of pantomimists. A French song with a "rum-tum" chorus also went well. Mr Freddy French as Ginger is another extremely smart young comedian with a quiet, unobtrusive style which is, nevertheless, very telling. His humorous and varied make-ups and disguises are all clever, and he shared the honours in a taking duet with Prince Fearless, "I have a song to sing—oh!" (new version), and in the song and dance, "Different styles of dancing," with Jack and Jill. As the Prince Miss Frances Earle has an attractive manner, and caught the fancy of the audience at once. She made much of the catchy song "Under a Panama," also in "The girls here just suit me" and the pretty trio "Fairyland," sung with Jack and Jill. The latter parts were played with great charm by two clever young ladies, Miss May Merry as the boy and Miss Mabel Higson as the girl. Both are smart dancers and sweet singers, and their "Japanese Girl," their coon song and dance, with chorus of young coons, and their other contributions were smartly done and welcomed with enthusiasm. Miss Florence Burdett is an attractive Princess Bountiful, and both in appearance and ability is happily suited. Her song with the Baron, "If I were Queen" is well rendered, and another clever effort is the "Ole man moon" coon song. Miss Jessie Templeton as Trim unites a happy style and attractive personality, and the corresponding part of Fantine is given with much humour by Miss May Sharples. Some clever fooling is given by Messrs Barney Dixon, Harry Nelson, and Walter Watson as the soldiers of the Prince Regent. Miss Millie Warde makes a handsome exponent of the part of Truth, and the hunchback Carl is played with much effect by Mr Frank Woodville. An attractive chorus ably assist, and dancing is made a strong feature throughout. The Price Bros. Troupe of pantomimists, the Twelve Manchester Mites, the Sixteen Lady Cadets, the Riviera Male Voice Quartet, &c., all render effective aid in the various scenes. Two clever finales are worked up at the end of each half of the pantomime, the first being "The Tartan Review"—a very pretty idea, certainly—where the ballet in the garb of eight of the old Highland clans go through some intricate evolutions; and the second, the concluding scene of the pantomime, in which a procession representing characters from Offenbach's most famous operettas is given. The book has been written and the entire production organised by Mr John Tiller. The music is by Mr Herman Finck, with additional lyrics by Mr Arthur Sturgess. The eleven scenes have been painted by Messrs Leolyn Hart, A. Vaughan Williams, and Mr R. Rousir, of Paris. The pretty costumes are by Messrs Alias and Co.; Harrison and Co., London; and Landolf, Paris. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr J. Weaver, the stage-management is well looked after by Mr Claude Agnew, and Mr Tiller's interests in front are under the eye of Mr H. F. Austin. Mr Wm M. Downie, the courteous acting manager at the Royalty, ably fulfils his arduous duties.

"THE FORTY THIEVES" AT BIRMINGHAM.

Of the number of Mr J. F. Graham's Birmingham productions it might be said "we are seven," The Forty Thieves making the seventh annual pantomime that Mr Graham has produced in the hardware centre. In this he has achieved the well-nigh impossible. He has eclipsed himself again, though it would be rash to conclude that Mr Graham has impoverished his energies and resources in attaining this goal. Rather does he always give the impression of a clever showman who has "something up his sleeve in readiness and reserve." The audience at the first performance on Christmas Eve proved particularly partial to the pantomime, and at the onset applauded Mr William Southworth's overture with vigour. This concluded, the Market Place of Ispahan appears in view. This is an extremely fine set by Conrad Tritschler, graced by a shapely, good-looking, and melodious chorus, supported by a strong male contingent urging the "villagers" to "buy, buy, buy." At this early point enters Abdallah, disguised as a "government official," and played with distinction by Miss Alice Oppitz. This lady delivers her lines with commanding emphasis, asserting herself as Captain of the Forty Thieves, and awing the comical and aspiring lieutenant, Hassarac, with ease. Hassarac is a diverting character in the hands of Mr Phil Smith. Next comes Mr John Brabourne in the rôle of Cogia, which marks a decided improvement on this artiste's earlier essay. Mr Brabourne has learnt to soften the asperities of the pantomime dame into a truly humorous strain, and his success was unequivocal. Then comes Selim in the diverting person of Mr George Le Clerq, who with his comical aspirate and other irresistible drolleries fairly convulsed the house with laughter. This Selim is a precocious snip of a "youth," who is joined by his companion, Hassan, another "youth" of startling stature, and every time the pair meet mirth runs riot. Of course, it is Mr Ben Brown in infant guise, and the possibilities of their chances to score are incalculable. The next big entrée was made by Mr Wilkie Bard as Ali Baba, and a great reception was accorded the oft-promised and now-arrived star, who at once plunged into his metier with much success, while yet reserving his best efforts. Ganem next appeared in the faultless and dainty guise of Miss Marie Campbell, who at once established herself in the hearts of her beholders with her pretty, winsome appearance, and successful rendering of "Have you seen my girl?" Ganem, it appears, is heartwhole, but speedily succumbs to the charms of Morgiana, when that lady is produced "for sale" by Shacabac, a slave-dealer. So much, indeed, that he invests the money entrusted him by his father, Ali Baba, to pay the rent, in her purchase, with the result that Ali's effects are sold up by his irate landlord and unnatural brother Cassim, a part that is played to the full by Mr Ainslie Burton, especially in the Cave scene, where his acting reached a great dramatic height. The donkey Ibrayhim, excellently embodied by Mr Harry Zietz, is also destrained upon, but is subsequently "got back" disguised as "Mrs Hee-Haw." This occurs in scene two, a well-finished Interior of Cassim's House by Mr George Dodson. Morgiana is also included among the "effects," and here we have the advantage of Miss Minnie Hunt's pure, sympathetic voice, which is heard with much pleasure in "Dreamland." Miss Hunt is a lady of most graceful mien and charming taste, and she was instantly installed among the favourites. Anon the part-song "Who Killed Bill Bailey," to the strains of "Cock Robin," tickled the house hugely, and the characters repair to scene three, the Mountain Gorge, where Messrs Brown and Le Clerq again convulse the audience, this time by killing "Injuns." This scene is the work of Conrad Tritschler, and called forth hearty applause. Later enter the Forty Thieves, richly caparisoned and, it seemed, well laden with booty. These thieves are nevertheless patriotic men, and join with fervour and sweetness in the chorus of "Bluebell," which is rendered in a popular manner by their captain, Miss Oppitz. The thieves having "placed" their booty, depart on another expedition rejoicing, and Ali Baba and Ganem, who have discovered their retreat in hiding, use the magic word, "Sesame," and proceed to load the donkey with treasure, insomuch that the faithful animal "goes to pieces" beneath the weight. Scene four, the Bazaar of Ispahan, another success by George Dodson, gives Mr Bard a chance for his comic singing abilities, which are cheered vociferously, and there is no doubt that the popular Wilkie is going to be a big success. Ali now shows signs of his newly acquired wealth, and the hitherto cold Cassim evinces a novel partiality for his brother. This Cassim is represented at times with a welcome Tom E. Murray chuckle, and now sings with much success "As a friend." The disclosure of the secret of the magic word to Cassim is attended by the sudden appearance of Abdallah, which is made in a highly dramatic manner, the Captain, with flashing eye, remarking the disclosure. However, he betrays not his identity, and is invited to Ali's housewarming. The next scene, The Cave—again by Conrad Tritschler—is the scene of the avaricious Cassim's ill-doing and undoing, which is wrought in a highly dramatic fashion, and concluded the first part to tremendous acclamations, to which Mr Graham had to bow his acknowledgments. The second part, scene one, shows the robbers on Ali's track, but how a "great magician" restores life to Cassim, whose severed parts have been recovered, how the vengeance of the thieves is averted, and how Abdallah owes his life to the poor girl, Zoe, a pretty character which is exquisitely acted by Miss Nellie Stratton, need not be recounted. The action proceeds meanwhile in Ali Baba's Banquetting Hall, Miss Campbell having previously sung "A wise old Owl," besides joining with Miss Hunt (whose songs include "The Airship," capitally sung) in "Arizona," which is given with charming and ingenious effect. Mr Phil Smith having given us his idea of an oratorio—a droll conceit on the words, "Johnny Law, lend me your saw"—Mr Bard sings "O, Capital O," which sends his auditors into an ecstasy of delight; and a billiard match, with Mr Brown as a negotiator of champion breaks, and Mr Le Clerq as the most comical marker imaginable, delights the audience. A pleasant game of cards, in which Mr Bard "revokes," ends "in disorder," the police, who are eventually "squared" to the strains of "The Bull and Bush," raiding the place as a common gaming house. A speciality in clay-modelling by Mr Byron Bicknelle causes a pleasant sensation, and Messrs Brown and Le Clerq enter on a diverting filibustering excursion of their own to rob Ali's house. The final scene was another triumph for Conrad Tritschler, entitled The Orange Blossom Grove in Ali Baba's Garden, in which the full strength of the company and chorus formed a great complement to the ornate surroundings. This moved the house to a great outburst of enthusiasm, and the pantomime concluded amid a feast of light, humour, colour, and melody. There need be no misgivings as to the success here. Every artiste is a success, and the production is perfect, and was pronounced so by the audience, Mr Graham again having to appear, this time with a speech. The Rosie Rice Quartet do well in their several graceful dances, and Mr Thomas Barry's stage management is palpable. Mr William Southworth has again done his work well in composing, selecting, and orchestrating, in which latter he turns lead into gold positively. The elaborate costumes and accessories by Wilhelm, the capital "book" and lyrics by J. Hickory Wood, the ballets, marches, and processions arranged by J. M Jones, and the satins, brocades, and laces from the Paris Bon Marche are all obvious and pleasing to the eye, and the general effect is perfection.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" at BIRMINGHAM.

The production of Dick Whittington on Boxing Night before a densely crowded house was attended by an extraordinary show of favour, the like of which had never been seen in Birmingham before the advent of Mr Lester Collingwood, and which would certainly require to be witnessed to be believed. The explanation is found in the fact that Mr Collingwood's clientèle have taken him to their hearts, and make a personal matter of, and take a personal pleasure and interest in, his Christmas productions. Thus the fame of his first production, Aladdin, has scarcely faded ere it is superseded by this second one, Whittington, and so marked was its success that at the conclusion, and after cheering the various artistes, the audience rose and summoned Mr Collingwood to the front, requiring of him a speech, winding up by singing "For he's a jolly good fellow," than which popularity can surely go no farther. Dick Whittington commences its course at the Weather Office, where Vespertilio, the demon bat, expects a visitor, Rodento, the king of rats. Rodento appears, suffering from a crowd of misfortunes, his chief grievance being a cat, owned by one Dick Whittington, now homeless. Concordia, the fairy of the bells, next appears, and in her we find a friend for Dick. Cheapside, in the merry old times, is next revealed to view, and the busy smiling throng are doing their best in what must be their Sunday clothes to sustain the prestige of those good old days. In the midst of the revelry comes Dick, who immediately finds his affinity in Alice, the daughter of Alderman Fitzwarren, the silk mercer and hosier. Dick instantly and despite his forlorn condition joins voice with his fair clamer, Alice, in a duet which brought down enthusiastic applause. Dick is next taken into the service of Fitzwarren, to the chagrin of Idle Jack, who, aided and abetted by Amelia Florence, the Alderman's cook, causes Dick to be thrust forth on a charge of theft. Dick's expulsion is followed by his journey to Highgate-hill, an effective scene with St. Paul's looming in the distance. Dick, guarded by the faithful feline, falls asleep, worn and exhausted from his travail. Bow Bells now ring out their encouraging chimes, and, with "Turn again, Whittington, Lord Mayor of London," ringing in his ears, Dick awakens and retraces his steps. The London Docks next engage attention, and some clever, good-humoured, and humorous badinage ensues, in which all the characters take part. The next scene, On Board the Orange Box, whereon Dick, Alice (as a boy), Fitzwarren, Jack, Amelia Florence, Silly Billy, and Lazy Larky appear to be suffering from the effects of mal de mer, sent the audience into shrieks of merriment, and then we find ourselves on the rocky coast of Morocco. Here Dick's cat accomplishes his mission, and the party return to England with the Emperor and his Princess, plus illimitable riches, the price of the rats' extermination. Whittington is with much pomp and ceremony, installed as Lord Mayor of London, and claims Alice as his bride. This scene, the Guildhall, proved a brilliant climax, the lady principals wearing a variety of rich dresses, the male members also coming out in strong colours, while the chorus lent a fitting and a gay finish to the setting. Miss Florence Burns as Whittington can be gay, sympathetic, and all else that the character requires, while her vocalism is of a most successful order, particularly in the higher register. Of her songs, "The Bull and Bush" may be mentioned, but it is a lyric, the motif of which is "Home, Sweet Home," that shows this artist to best advantage. Miss Nellie Valentine acts in a delightful manner as Alice, and sings the music allotted her with the utmost charm and finish; Miss Gertie Douglas makes a dashing Skipper, and contributes several successful songs; Miss Hattie Lind as the dusky Princess scored with "The Ugly Duckling;" and the Misses Hilda Corelli, Norah Wylton, Vida Yorke, Florence Steventor, Hilda Greville, and Katie Cullen are charming and melodious in their rôles, singing many of the popular songs of the day. The humorous parts—and the Alexandra production is essentially a comic pantomime—could not be in more popular hands. Mr Will Letters takes the rôle of Alderman Fitzwarren in good style, while his songs, which include "Eva," bring him tumultuous encores. The same measure of success attended Messrs Barrett and Knowles, whose amusing cross-talk as Silly Billy and Lazy Larky provoke the wildest hilarity and uproarious applause. Mr Albert Darnley figures successfully and most humorously as Idle Jack, his vocal efforts also securing great applause. Mr O. L. Ludlow scores as Amelia Florence, and his song, "Mashing the Militia," with "mechanical" effects, is very diverting and successful. Mr S. Lockridge as the dusky Emperor acts in the manner of a civilised savage, and sings his numbers excellently, and Mr Samuel Locke as Rodento also shines as a vocalist. The Cat is cleverly impersonated by Mr Alfred Clegg, and Miss Essie Perrin adds a clever Nautch dance to the attractions of the Emperor's Palace. The Edingale Trio support the production with their smart coon and acrobatic dances, and Mr Arthur W. Parry, who conducts the orchestra with exemplary skill and care, has contributed and selected a variety of music. The attractive scenery is by Messrs W. Maughan and Son.

"ALADDIN" AT OLDHAM.

In Aladdin Mr Dottridge has beaten all previous records. The scenery, always an attraction here, is again a leading feature, and on this occasion is deserving of our warmest praise, the colouring and designs being of a most artistic character, and in this connection warm praise may be accorded to Mr John Cunningham and Mr Harry Crane. The beautiful dresses are due to Mrs Howarth. The curtain rises on The Market Place of Pekin, a warm and glowing picture. Here one meets Aladdin and the Princess, who discuss their future plans. The Cave scene is full of beauty, and a comic contrast is found in The Widow's Washhouse, scene six, the dwelling of Mrs Twankey, who takes in washing and other people. Scene seven is a fine mechanical change to Aladdin's Palace, and in the eighth scene, The Baths, is seen the most humorous part of the pantomime. Here, too, we have the wonders of the magic kettle. The well-known incidents of the loss of Aladdin's lamp and the abduction of the Princess, with the temporary triumph of Abanezar, follow. The story ends, however, in the good old-fashioned way. The most bewitching exponent of the rôle of Aladdin has been found in Miss Mimi Fisher, whose smart figure and fascinating manner make her the beau ideal of a principal boy. Her clever singing of "Down at the old Bull and Bush" is "catchy," and has made her a favourite. The Princess was impersonated by Miss Harriet Fawn, a handsome and graceful "bit of china." Miss Cassie Walmer as the favourite of the Princess has a voice of much power, and dances with grace and agility. Mr Fred Carey, the Abanezar, has a fund of excellent humour, its chief quality being its spontaneity. Mr Carey is already a great favourite, and his co-operation is a great factor of the success. As Widow Twankey Mr Fred Graham brings out all the drollery of that character, and there is no lack of mirth while he is on the stage. Young Codge gives a good turn of whistling; and the specialities of Les Belles Americaines, a marvellous dancing quartet, are full of grace and neatness. Keith and Merton are a pair of funny knockabouts; and the Brothers Brooke give a clever gymnastic turn.

"CINDERELLA" AT NEWCASTLE.

In presenting Cinderella before a crowded and admiring audience at the Tyne Theatre on the 24th inst., Mr F. W. Wyndham achieved the distinction of producing his twenty-second Newcastle pantomime, a record of successful consecutive Christmas productions which few managers in England can exceed. Mr Wyndham seems likely to score heavily again with his latest pantomime, if the very favourable impressions created by the first performance are any criterion. One of the most popular of all subjects for the purpose of entertainment in the winter months, it is also regarded as a mascot in the managerial mind, and thus there is a sound foundation to start with. Beautiful scenery and charming costumes are always in evidence, while the groupings of the chorus, the various ballets and marches are all pleasing to the eye, and so arranged as to secure the most artistic effect. The pantomime has had the great advantage of being produced under the personal direction of Mr Wyndham, and this in itself almost commands success, while he has been ably assisted by Mr George Rowlands. As in former years, Mr J. Hickory Wood has written the very necessary "book," which deals with the familiar fairy tale in approved style. There are two acts, consisting of five scenes in each. When the curtain rises we find ourselves in a Forest Glade, an excellently painted scene by Mr T. F. Dunn, and discover a hunting party who have apparently been engaged in doing more or less damage to the game in the neighbourhood. Dandini (Miss Lina Verdi) is one of the first characters to appear, and is soon followed by his master, Prince Caramel (Miss Bessie Featherstone), who has the impression that he is loved not for himself, but because he is the possessor of a title. To test the matter he exchanges clothes and positions with his valet, and quickly encounters Cinderella (Miss Alice Russon), who shows her preference for him, even in his valet's attire. Meantime the impecunious Baron Blarer (Mr Mark Sheridan) has made his appearance; also his unlovely daughters, Lily (Mr Josh Dixon) and Gertrude (Mr Gus Le Clerq), the two latter explaining in amusing style their novel methods of playing golf. In the Baron's Library (Mr Stanley Schuter) much enjoyable fooling is indulged in by the funny characters, headed by the Baron, whose lack of wealth apparently does not stand in his way of being a whole-hearted instigator of mirth in others. Scene three, The Baron's Backyard (Mr T. F. Dunn), is utilised by the broker's men, Bill Hob and Walter Nob (the Brothers Egbert) for some lively and amusing business, mainly of the knockabout order, and which is entirely to the tastes of the audience. Here the Prince, attired in a neat costume, and with a chorus, gives an enjoyable rendering of the tuneful "Under a Panama." Then to The Baron's Kitchen (Mr T. F. Dunn), where Cinderella is disconsolate as she sees her sisters leave for the ball. She consoles herself and the audience by singing a pretty song "The rain came pitter patter down," after which the fairy godmother, Crystal (Miss Lily Cole), comes to her aid, and she is soon transported to the Pumpkin Grove where she is shown a glimpse of her fairy carriage and ponies, and thence to the Fairy Boudoir itself. This latter is a fanciful scene of extreme beauty, and is the work of Mr T. F. Dunn. It is remarkable alike for its fairy-like delicacy and its artistic colouring. Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers here distinguish themselves in a series of cleverly-executed dances, which are mingled with admirably-arranged marches and processions. In this scene it is a perfect pleasure to listen to the music, specially composed by Mr George Burnley. With the departure of Cinderella in a superb fairy carriage, the curtain falls for the interval on a scene full of splendour. Mr T. F. Dunn has also painted the opening scene of the second act, The Prince's Ballroom, a stately apartment. Here we have an opportunity of listening to the strains of "Navaho," which is given by the Prince, assisted by a full chorus bearing palms and the manner in which the song is worked is very effective indeed. A Lonely Road (Mr T. F. Dunn) is then put before us, and the appearance of the Baron with his motor-car, which breaks down, is one of the funniest episodes of the evening, occasioning much mirth. Humour is also well to the fore in the succeeding scene, which represents On the Road Home (Mr Ernest Glover). A solidly constructed omnibus, with passengers inside and outside, and the Baron as conductor, occupies the stage, and by means of a panoramic scene in the background and a revolving track in front the effect of a rapidly moving 'bus is realistically obtained. On the revolving stage would-be passengers make frantic efforts to board the 'bus, and more frequently than not they find themselves on their backs and are shot out of sight. This scene provides unlimited fun, and goes with a yell of laughter from beginning to end. At The Exterior of the Baron's House (Mr Stanley Schuter) Cinderella makes good her claim to the found slipper, and straight away becomes engaged to the Prince, a gay and joyous scene in connection with the betrothal festivities bringing the pantomime to a brilliant conclusion. Mr Wyndham has exercised his usual discrimination in selecting the company, all the members of which work with zeal and harmony for the success of the pantomime. As Prince Caramel Miss Bessie Featherstone at once captures her audience and scores a signal success as principal boy. She is the fortunate possessor of a voice of fine quality, and employs it to the best purpose in the several songs with which she favours us, while her comely appearance, of course, is always in her favour. In addition to her enjoyable efforts as a vocalist, Miss Featherstone enacts her part in a style which is always pleasant and agreeable. Laudatory terms may also be bestowed on Miss Alice Russon's performance as Cinderella, a rôle which she portrays in approved fashion and with a dainty charm of manner. There is grace in her movements, and she renders her songs with admirable taste and artistic expression. Miss Lena Verdi is a smart representative of Dandini, endowing the part with the requisite air of pertness. She scores immensely in her imitations of well-known singers—notably Vesta Tilley, Marie Lloyd, Vesta Victoria, and Harry Lauder, and her voice and manner in each instance are wonderfully alike unto those of the originals. Miss Lily Cole makes a stately Good Fairy, and she possesses a deep-toned voice, which is well displayed in a ballad. Attractive appearances are made by Misses Nellie Hanlon, Ada Holt, Evelyn Arnold, and Maude Verney as courtiers. At the head of the comedians, of course, is Mr Mark Sheridan, whose previous successes here in this class of entertainment are still well remembered. As Baron Blarer he is a host in himself, and, indeed, one would have to go far to find a better all-round pantomime comedian. There is scarcely a scene which is not enlivened by his mercurial methods, and his mirthful sallies and sparkling humour are constantly punctuated with hearty laughter from the audience. He makes his first entrance to the lively strains of the "Bull and Bush," which ditty he gives with the best effect, the gallery boys assisting him in the chorus, while the motor-car scene already alluded to finds him in his best form. Mr Josh Dixon contributes a very successful performance as Lily, one of the ugly sisters. He has a quaintly funny manner, which is well exemplified in his acting and singing, and throughout the pantomime he proves himself a serviceable and amusing comedian. Gertie, the other sister, is safely entrusted to Mr Gus Le Clerq, who also aids in the fun making to the best purpose, acting and singing with much acceptance. As a dancer, too, he figures prominently, a display of his in this line being remarkably neat and smart. The Egbert Brothers as the Broker's men introduce much business of a very amusing description, and their efforts throughout are thoroughly well appreciated. They are clever knockabouts, and throw themselves about with an apparently reckless disregard for life and limb. Mr Harry Courtin makes an appearance in the Ball-room scene as Chucker-out, and his massive proportions are certainly suited for the rôle. To Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers we have already referred, and their skilful exhibitions are much admired, while as vocalists they render good service. The music throughout is tuneful and pleasing, comprising most of the latest popular songs, and this department has again been well attended to by the musical director, Mr E. J. Rogers, who met with his customary reception on the opening night. To follow a big pantomime success with another is a somewhat rare occurrence, but Mr Wyndham looks like bringing off the double event with Cinderella, a production in which is blended uproarious fun with pretty sentiment and pleasing music, while scenery and costumes are all that could be desired. The holiday business, which so far has reached high water mark, has been successfully dealt with by Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe, who looks after affairs in front with his usual urbanity.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT NEWCASTLE.

For the past few years at this season Mr Robert Arthur's speciality at the Theatre Royal has consisted of extravaganzas based on somewhat novel subjects, and differing in many essentials from the popular idea of pantomime. From an artistic point of view no finer production could be desired, but Novocastrians apparently hardly seemed to appreciate to the full the many merits of the enterprising manager's experiments. The result is that this year Mr Arthur has reverted to the old order of things, and in his eighth Newcastle pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, which was successfully presented to a crowded house on Christmas Eve, he has provided an entertainment which is calculated to please all and sundry. Fun is the object aimed at, and to attain this end the comedians would seem to be given a free hand, and right well do they avail themselves of their opportunities. From a spectacular point of view, too, the pantomime maintains the best traditions of the Royal, the costumes being remarkable for their elegance and beauty, while the scenery, which is the work of Stafford Hall and J. Fowler Hogg, boasts of some especially fine and elaborate sets. Mr Frank Dix is responsible for the book, and additional numbers and local allusions have been added by Mr Edward Tebbutt, a local journalist, and the special music is the work of Mr Jullien H. Wilson. Following a lively overture by the orchestra, directed by Herr Meyer, the curtain rises on the farmyard of Mrs Mangold Worzell, an ideal country scene by Stafford Hall. The Hon. Mrs Worzell (Mr R. H. Douglas) quickly makes her appearance, as also does the Baron of Bottlebank (Mr T. E. Dunville), and a pair of amusing rascals in Bonny Beaucaire and Sunny Jim (Sam and Will Poluski.) Here also come the other leading characters, including Robin Hood (Miss Maud Prenton), Maid Marion (Miss Elsie Cooke), Colin Trew (Miss Lottie Govell), Mavis Hope (Winnie Govell), the Babes (Miss Hanid Alexander and Mr Will Atom), and Cunnin Toil, a detective (Mr Sam Dark). Mr Stafford Hall is also the painter of the succeeding scene, The Old Boar's Head, a pleasing picture of the exterior of an old-fashioned wayside inn. In the development of the well-known story the Baron employs Beaucaire and Sunny Jim to carry out his murderous intents on the harmless Babes, and in the Bedroom (J. Fowler Hogg) the latter irrepressible pair make their appearance as burglars. In this guise they do not do much damage, but their comic efforts occasion excessive laughter in the audience, and the trick scenery which is employed here aids them in their congenial purpose. A scene full of animation is The Fair, which is next disclosed to view. It is a particularly bright and cleverly constructed set, representing a country fair with shows and booths all around, and does the young artist, Mr J. Fowler Hogg, infinite credit. A capital ballet in which the occupants of the booths participate then takes place. The showmen themselves, clowns, pierrots, jugglers, French poodles, and all manner of bizarre characters, mingle in a joyous dance which brings the first half of the pantomime to an exhilarating conclusion. The Lodge Gates of Bottlebank Hall which opens the second act is also the work of Mr J. Fowler Hogg, and is a very pretty scene. Here appear a company of toy soldiers, whose appearance and manœuvres are very droll. Lovers'-lane (Stafford Hall) again introduces us to the Baron, who is beguiling the children to the woods for his foul purpose, and soon we find ourselves in what is unquestionably the finest and most artistic scene in the pantomime. This is a scenic representation by Stafford Hall of a beautiful sylvan retreat in the immediate neighbourhood known as Jesmond Dene, and the talented artist has seldom exercised his brush to better purpose. The scene in itself will assuredly be a great attraction. To this lovely spot the Babes are decoyed, and Bonny Beaucaire and Sunny Jim are about to commit the happy despatch when the latter's courage fails him, and in the midst of the quarrel which ensues the two children escape. An interesting feature here is the appearance of one of the most remarkably constructed demon heads we have ever seen. The glowing eyeballs roll in their sockets, flames flash from the ears and skull, and it devours loaves of bread and fowls with wonderful grimaces. This clever property is worked by Mr Chas. Parkins, who met with a hearty recall. Following the Corridor in the Castle (J. Fowler Hogg), where are introduced songs and dances, we are taken to the Grand Ballroom, Bottlebank Hall, a truly gorgeous scene by Stafford Hall, and here we have another brilliant ballet, wherein the dresses worn are as rich and handsome and varied as the most fastidious could desire, and the final tableau is surpassingly beautiful. The leading characters appear, and all ends merrily and in orthodox fashion. Mr Arthur's company is especially strong in comedians. Mr T. E. Dunville's incursion into the domains of pantomime has been attended with excellent results, and his performance as the bold, bad Baron entitles him to warm praise. Full scope is given to his powers as a vocal comedian, and he treats us to three or four mirthful ditties, all of which are given in his usual staccato manner with a wealth of funny facial expression and odd gestures, while his clever eccentric dancing is also much enjoyed. Mr Sam Poluski and Mr Will Poluski are fairly in their element as Bonnie Beaucaire and Sunny Jim respectively. They perform a vast amount of work in the most entertaining manner, and their comic business, of which they apparently possess an unlimited store, invariably evokes the heartest possible demonstrations of pleasure. Throughout the performance they keep the fun going at high pressure, and perhaps their most successful effort is the amusing episode of the fight in the woods. They first of all spar with boxing gloves not exactly after approved style, and then swords and daggers are utilised for their excruciatingly droll burlesque scene. Finally one of them disappears through a trap door, only to reappear the next instant at another, and both march off amicably. The Poluskis may be warmly congratulated on having achieved a big success. An exceptionally smart and lively comedian is Mr R. H. Douglass, who appears as the Baron's sister, and wears the petticoats with commendable good taste and discretion. Possessed of a pretty wit and a keen sense of what is likely to "go," his jokes and clever business are always appreciated to the full, and his remarks and generous advice to the ladies, whom he confidentially addresses, are received with peals of laughter. As a mimic he also scores considerably. Mr Sam Dark, who appears as Cunnin' Toil, a detective, contributes a dance in good style. Heading the ladies is Miss Maud Prenton, whose fine appearance and dashing style are all factors in her success as Robin Hood. She also sings admirably, and earns a hearty encore for her rendering of the popular "Blue Bell," in which she is assisted in the chorus by Master Ralph Moore, while she has a further opportunity in "My Little Hong Kong Baby," which she gives to the enjoyment of all. An attractive and charming representative of Maid Marion is found in Miss Elsie Cooke, whose qualifications as a vocalist are also unmistakably and pleasantly made manifest in several coon songs which fall to her lot, and in her rendering of which she imparts the requisite essentials of liveliness and spirit. The Sisters Govell work hard and unflaggingly throughout as Colin Trew and Mavis Hope, characters which they represent in vivacious style, and in several songs and dances they are seen to advantage. Miss Hanid Alexander, who appears as one of the Babes, is a wonderful juvenile pianiste, and in a suitable scene we have an opportunity of admiring her great skill in this direction. She also sings and dances charmingly. As the other Babe Mr Will Atom assumes an appearance of juvenility with complete success, and it is only his voice which induces us to think he is not so young as he looks. The American Comedy Four as vocalists and comedians exercise their talents to the undoubted gratification of the audience. The stage manager is Mr Harry Fischer, whose long and varied experience in pantomime is well known, and the smooth working in all departments which characterised the opening performance was no doubt the result of his careful and arduous labours. Mr Robert Arthur and all concerned are to be warmly congratulated on the success which has attended the production of his latest "Royal" pantomime, and the popular acting-manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham, may confidently look forward to a particularly busy season in the weeks to come.

"GOODY TWO SHOES" AT SHEFFIELD.

The Theatre Royal, Sheffield, for many years has been a great pantomime house, and there is only one Christmas on record when the popular form of Yuletide entertainment did not hold the boards, and that departure from established custom proved such a dreary failure that it has never been repeated. Under the spirited management of Mr F. W. Purcell, the glories of the grand old historic playhouse in Tudor-street have been revived with extra brilliance, and in a vastly improved theatre where, surrounded with modern comforts and refined luxury, and aided by the latest electrical appliances and scientific mechanism, King Pantomime now holds his annual court with a regal pomp and circumstance never dreamt of by the playgoer of the good old "palmy days." For the first time for over forty years the story of Goody Two Shoes forms the basis of the Royal annual, the well-known manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge, being responsible for the production, which is on a scale in keeping with the high standard hitherto maintained by Mr F. W. Purcell. The "book" of Goody Two Shoes is by that experienced inventor of pantomime libretti Mr Fred Locke, and, as usual, his lines are witty and suitable. Contrary to the author's general custom, there is no preliminary debate between the good and wicked spirits, and the piece opens with a fine set, The Village Green, with a gathering of happy rustics, pages, and retainers, who sing a jolly chorus in the approved opera-bouffe style. The pretty scenery, the bright dresses, and the smiling faces of the chorus make a gay and animated picture of idyllic rural life, and puts the audience into a happy condition to thoroughly enjoy the long feast of healthy fun and scenic splendour which is to follow. Here the principal characters come on, and we find that the over-bearing Baron Grabb has unlawfully possessed himself of the estates rightly belonging to Goody Two Shoes. Acting in the Baron's interest, Mephisto lures the dainty heroine on to accept a pair of enchanted shoes, thus placing herself in his power. A gallant youth called Roland loves Goody, and with the help of one, Benevolentia, a good fairy, he finally routs the villain, and all ends happily in the old melodramatic fashion. After the village comes a regular good old-fashioned interlude of practical fun in the Interior of the Dame's Cottage, and after an artistically painted front cloth, Endcliffe Wood in Autumn, in which several up-to-date ditties prove acceptable, one of the big scenes is reached, the Carnival Gardens. This is a perfect gem of scenic art, and it is one of the most effective representations of sylvan beauty ever seen on the Royal stage. The lighting, too, is good, and the dim greeny suggestiveness of it all serves admirably to show up the resplendant costumes of a crowd of revellers, who indulge in an exhilarating dance. The dramatic appearance of Mephisto, high up on a bridge crossing a rock ravine at the back, makes a dramatic picture and interrupts the festivities, which are, however, resumed on the demon disappearing at the behest of Benevolenta. A charming and memory-haunting tableau brings the first act to a fitting conclusion. The story is resumed in scene six, Sheffield Fair. This is a very elaborate set, and it is evident no expense has been spared to make everything as bright and realistic as possible. There are shows, shooting galleries, Aunt Sallies; in fact, it would require the genial pen of the Rev. T. Horne to do justice to the subject. Since Trebizonde set the fashion, many fair scenes have been seen on the local stage, but not one has been so full of detail as this. A burlesque wrestling bout takes place here, and the spectators on Boxing Night laughed all the way home, and they are probably laughing yet. But the scene is so crammed with seasonable and healthy humour that it is a little pantomime in itself. After a slight return to the plot in the Baron's Room in the Turret there is a lull in the carnival of music, mirth, and dance, and the house settles down to gaze with rapt attention at the enchanting and ever-changing glories of the wonderful Fairy Grotto, invented and produced by Mr Hagedorn On the opening night round upon round of applause greeted this artistic, beautiful, and impressive transformation scene, which alone will draw crowds to the Royal this season. The next grand spectacular triumph is the Palace of Cards, a magnificent example of the scene-painter's skill and executive ability. The whole of the depth of the large stage is utilised, and when the parterre and balconies are filled with the richly dressed guests the ensemble is one of those scenes of durbar-like glitter that live long in the memory. A very smart company of dramatic and music hall artistes has been engaged, and on the first night all went merrily. That old Sheffield favourite of many years, dainty, graceful, refined, and pretty as ever, Miss Minnie Cunningham, made a perfectly ideal Goody Two Shoes. She looked a picture of naïve rusticity in her Dolly Varden-like dresses, and a beautiful vision of womanly beauty in her costly ball dress. Miss Cunningham sang several songs with great success, and she danced with her well-known agility and cleverness. Miss Georgina Leonard proved successful as the comely and tuneful Roland. Her songs were all enthusiastically applauded, a special favourite being "Good-bye, my lady love, good-bye!" Miss Molly Wostenholm was a tall and handsome Benevolentia, and she gave a splendid rendering of "Il Bacio." Miss Nelly Hayes was a winsome little Rosie Primrose, and she did a clever solo dance. Miss Rose Tilley as Peter Piper and Miss Rita Rhylle as Dolly Dimple were an attractive couple. Miss Amy French spoke her lines dramatically, and looked well as the demon, Mephisto. Miss Sheela Redgrave was a chic Frisky, and Miss Hilda Stewart was a good-looking Pansy Blossom. The chief laughter purveyors of the pantomime were undoubtedly Messrs Downes and Langford, who are far removed from the "knockabouts" who, a few years ago, were considered perfectly indispensable. Downes and Langford are comedians, and the audience never ceased smiling at their screamingly funny and always clean patter and novel gags. Their American business in the catchy song "Angeline," was encored again and again. Downes and Langford made a hit at this house five years ago, but they have very much improved since then. Another artiste who "knocked 'em" on Boxing Day was Mr Fred Lincoln, whose Dame Fanny Freckles was pronounced a regular masterpiece as a sketch of a droll and inoffensive type of feminine eccentricity. Mr Lincoln will be a great local favourite by the time these lines are printed. Mr Harry M'Clelland acted the part of Baron Grabbe on sound burlesque lines, and kept the piece together dramatically speaking. He also sang a couple of good songs. Mr Harry Rousbey did well in the rather curious part of Sandy. Mr George French caused great laughter by his comical make-up, patter, and antics as the Baron's simple son, Simon. There was a large, good-looking, and well-trained chorus, and the ladies of the ballet looked fascinating and danced with ease and elegance. The whole of the new scenery has been designed and painted at the atelier of Mr John Cunningham. The melodious music has been composed and arranged by the talented Mr Aynsley Fox; the costly and chaste costumes are by Mrs Howarth; the elaborate electrical effects are under the supervision of Mr T. Hough; Mr Jeffries has made the properties; and the entire annual has been produced personally by Mr Ernest Dottridge, with the help of Mr Harwood, his trusty local representative. With such a strong attraction there is no doubt Messrs Purcell and Dottridge will secure a large pecuniary reward for their enterprise, hard work, and lavish outlay.

"ALADDIN" AT SHEFFIELD.

Aladdin has always brought fame and fortune to this house, two very notable productions being the annuals of 1875 and 1884 respectively, in the former of which appeared the popular Sisters Lindon as Aladdin and Badroulbadour, and in the latter Miss Bessie Bonehil', who made one of her biggest hits as the lively young hero. The book is by Mr J. H. Wolfe, who has wisely kept to the straightforward narrative, and started the tale in the good old-fashioned manner so beloved of the youngsters in a picturesque scene called The Realms of Necromancy. The Wagner-inspired orchestral introduction arrests the attention at once, and, after the usual demon chorus, the Slave of the Lamp is visited by Abanazar, who plots against the happiness of Aladdin. The arrival of the fascinating Genie of the Ring, with a threat to thwart his schemes, ends the brief but dramatic prologue. And hey, presto! from sombre gloom we are transported to the Market square of Pekin, glowing under dazzling sunshine and decorated for the annual Feast of Lanterns. This is a splendid set. A big crowd of brilliantly attired holiday-makers imparts the necessary animation to the scene, and after a lively chorus and Eastern dance the action of the piece begins in earnest, and the story goes along with a liberal accompaniment of song, dance, and gag. A big mechanical change reveals the big scene of the first act, the Interior of the Cave. This has been broadly treated, and in conception and execution the talented artist, Mr James England, has followed the best traditions of the Telbin-Beverley school of scenic art. There is a glittering ballet of jewels, the cave is flooded with white light, and the act-drop falls on a bewildering vision of shapely forms, pretty faces, scintillating gems, and gorgeous dresses. In the second act the fun gets fast and furious, for in The Widow's 'Umble 'Ome the low comedians begin to get their fine work in. More comic business takes place in scene seven, The Widow's Back Garden, where, after a lively concerted finale, we are privileged to behold the exterior of Aladdin's Grand Palace. This is an effective and well-painted set, full of characteristically Oriental display and brilliant colouring. By the help of the Slave of the Lamp the palace takes a magical flight, and spectators find themselves at the St. Louis Exhibition, where many novel items amply atone for this daring departure from the original narrative. The action proper is resumed in the luxurious Boudoir of the Princess, and in scene twelve, The Grand Hall of the Palace, the designing Abanazar receives his final defeat with a calm smile, and the interrupted wedding festivities of the hero and his beautiful bride are resumed. This scene is lovely in the extreme, the refulgent dazzle of various electrical devices accentuating the rich colours and gleaming jewels. There is a bridal procession and chorus, after various specialities are introduced, and at last the curtain falls on the magnificent tableau. But beautiful scenery and dresses alone will not make a long run. An experienced director like Mr Humphrey Brammall is quite alive to this fact; and as Mr Forsdike entirely understands the requirements of his regular clientèle, a smart working crowd has been engaged, without any ornamental figure heads. First of all credit must be given to that old Sheffield favourite of long standing, Mr George Delaforce, whose skill and experience have largely conduced to the success of the annual. In addition to his heavy duties as stage-manager, Mr Delaforce on Christmas Eve acted the rôle of the Emperor in his accustomed funny and unctuous manner. The important part of Abanazar was acted on firm burlesque lines by that clever and resourceful comedian Mr Charles Austin. His impersonation of the Demagogue type of Hyde-park orator was full of inoffensive satire, and he undoubtedly scored a big success. Mr O. E. Lennon, a favourite here in musical comedy, made a droll and amusing Wishee Washee, and the quaint mannerisms of Mr Teddy Denham made a very diverting personage of the Widow Twankey. Mr J. W. Cawdery was an agile Demon of the Lamp. Mr Bert Atherton as the Vizier acted with characteristic Celestial dignity. Messrs Royston and Royce were active and intelligent representatives of the Chinese "bobbies," and those well-known drolls August and September caused roars of laughter as the lively bath attendants. The ladies have been carefully selected, and in Miss Cissy Paris the first-nighters were quick to recognise a lady whose personal graces, tuneful voice, and abundant sense of humour would make her Aladdin a very popular youth with all classes. Miss Esta Stella made a charming and altogether ideal Eastern Princess as Badroulbadour, and her excellent voice gave much pleasure. Miss Maude Esmond was a pretty and elegant Prince Pekoe, and her vocal efforts were loudly applauded. Miss Winnie Moore was a sprightly Bercour, and Miss Ida Worsley sang and acted vivaciously as Caramel. The smart dancing and coon songs of the Four Magnets brought down the house; and the duets of Conway and Bolton were well received. The special business introduced by August and September proved quite to the taste of the audience; and Royston and Royce did some good variety business. The scenery has all been painted by Mr James England; the dresses are by Worth, Allan, and Maunsell and Shultz; the music has been composed and arranged by Mr Ernest Leigh; and the pantomime has been produced by Mr Humphrey E. Brammall under the personal superintendence of Mr W. D. Forsdike.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT BRIGHTON.

Mr Ernest Carpenter may be warmly and deservedly congratulated upon the great success which marked the production of his first pantomime in Brighton at the Grand Theatre on Thursday evening, Dec. 22. The subject of the pantomime—written, invented, and arranged by Mr Ernest Carpenter—is Little Red Riding Hood. In his admirably written "book" Mr Carpenter presents the main features of the old nursery story, but wisely makes his plot simple. Profiting by his long experience, he gives his audience that light, bright, merry and entertaining fare which rarely, if ever, fails to please. The production is replete with charming singing, graceful and nimble dancing, and also fun and humour unmarred by a single shade of vulgarity. Mr Ernest Carpenter, who made a brief speech during the evening, expressed the hope that his first pantomime season in Brighton would prove a success, and, judging by the enthusiastic manner in which his remarks were received, and from the frequent outbursts of rapturous applause during the performance his hopes will be realised. Indeed, the pantomime promised to be one of the best ever produced in the town. The new and elaborate scenery is painted by David Young and William M'Cullough; the overture and sparkling music are selected and arranged by Signor G. D. La Camera, the popular airs being introduced by arrangement with Francis and Day, Frank Dean, Charles Sheard, Witmark and Co., Ascherberg and Co., and Hopwood and Crew; the children have been trained and the ballets arranged by Madame Jessie St. Clair; the costumes, designed by Miss Ada Clarence, have been executed under her personal direction; the Palace scene costumes were designed and executed by Hugo Barusch (Berlin and London); while the mechanical effects by Mr G. Buckley and the electric effects by Mr Arthur Hart also merit notice. In this production Mr Ernest Carpenter has been assisted by Mr J. H. Booth. While the pantomime is marked by an abundance of refined humour and amusing incidents, and also artistic impersonations of the various characters, spectacular effects occupy a prominent place. The Ribbon ballet merits unstinted praise, and another delightful display is the change of the Forest Glade, in which the dancing takes place, from bright summer to snowy winter, with the return of the dancers clothed in pure white. The whole scene is picturesque and charming. The Prince's Palace is a superbly beautiful set; but praise must also be accorded to the scenes descriptive of The Corridor in the Baron's Castle, The Baronial Hall (with the evolutions of the well-trained ballet ladies), and The Palace Gates. The dressing of the pantomime is beautifully rich and harmonious in colouring, and the music bright and tuneful. The opening performance was given with surprising precision and accuracy, not a single hitch occurred, and the pantomime seems destined to experience a long and prosperous career. Miss Blanche Vincent makes a handsome Prince Peerless, and sings with pleasing tone and artistic expression; Miss Madge Campbell is bright and winsome as Miss Muffit, the Prince's rustic sweetheart; and Little Rosie Campbell sings and acts charmingly as Red Riding Hood. Mr Dave O'Toole gives a very amusing representation of Dame Trott, while Messrs Sandford and Lyons, excellent dancers, are very entertaining as Johnny Stout and Jimmy Green. Mr Charles Russell is well suited as Baron Barebones; Miss Louie Lunelle as Tommy Tucker and Miss Nellie Lunelle as Margery Daw are a vivacious pair and prove themselves accomplished dancers; Miss Irene Rose as Fairy Sunshine acts prettily and sings with much taste; Mr J. H. Booth makes the most of his opportunities as the Wolf; and praise is also due to Miss Stella Liell (Jack Horner) and Miss Nora Arthur (the Herald). Conspicuous among the fun-makers are the Tally-Ho Trio (W. Doust, Eric Farr, and E. Chester), who take the parts of Georgie Porgie, Simple Simon, and Peter Piper. They render glees with humour and also artistic skill; they are energetic and genuinely droll, and while they are on the stage there is not a dull moment. The choruses are well sung.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT BRIGHTON.

Mr Henry Eglington's Christmas pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, was produced at the New Palace Pier Theatre on Saturday afternoon with great success. The book is written by Henry Eglington, with lyrics by Jack Valoyne, and the music has been composed and arranged by Herbert Wellings and Clement Locknayne, while the costumes are by Mons. Alias and Miss Beatrice Cutting. The main features of the old, well-known story are preserved, and the pantomime is not only rich with innocent fun and frolic, but presents several charming spectacular displays. The scenery, by W. T. Hemsley and E. Egerton, merits warm praise, the sets depicting The Village of Sherwood, The Heart of Sherwood Forest, The Woodman's Hut, and The Cottage Inn being especially picturesque and effective. Mr Henry Eglington, who has selected an excellent company to assist him in representing his admirable work, undertakes the part of Dame Tabitha Durden. His dry humour and smart patter prove very diverting, and his drolleries as the village schoolmistress evoke roars of laughter. Miss Tilly Stewart makes a bright and dashing Robin Hood, and displays excellent singing. Miss Florence Brandon is a graceful and captivating Maid Marian, and her vocalisation possesses distinct charm. High vocal honours are also achieved by Mdlle. Ella Rose, who figures with pleasing effect as the Fairy Glowworm. The part of the wicked uncle, Baron Graball, has an able exponent in Mr Harry Harcourt; Miss Blanche Gerond is well suited as Will Scarlett; Miss Marjorie May is a dainty Phyllis; Mr Harold Perry is duly aggressive as Jack o' Lantern, the gnome of the woods; and Mr Will Ambro is a lively Hannibal Fitzsparkle. Mr Harry A'Ban and Mr Angie A'Ban as Dusty Rhodes and Casual Warde respectively afford much fun, and the Babes are satisfactorily impersonated by Miss Cissie Williams and Miss Eileen Leoville. Miss Hettie Norma as Little John and Mr Reuben Kitchen as Pompey, the poodle, also render able support. Specialities are introduced by the Three Geronds, lady vocalists and clever dancers; Ambro, the Duckville coon; Reuben Kitchen, animal impersonator; and the Brothers A'Ban. A gorgeous transformation scene, entitled Baby's Dream of Fairyland, is followed by a comic harlequinade, which delights the little ones among the audience, the characters being sustained by Mr Harry A'Ban, clown; Mr Angie A'Ban, pantaloon; Mr Reuben Kitchen, harlequin; Mr F. J. Stone, policeman; Mr J. Morris, Lord Awfultoff; and Miss Bertha Hall, columbine. The merry pantomime should enjoy a long and prosperous career. The duties of conductor were in the hands of Mr Louis Finch.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT LEEDS.

Friday evening, the 23rd inst., saw the opening of Mr John Hart's annual, The Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, at the Grand, and the makings of a real good pantomime were disclosed. The dressing and stage display is, as usual, elegant, gorgeous, and artistic throughout, whilst the company presenting it may at once be classed amongst the very finest combinations that have ever appeared at this premier theatre. The book is from the prolific pen of Mr J. Hickory Wood, with clever topical allusions by Mr William Wade, and is in their very best strain. As to the scenery, every one of the numerous sets show the master hand, the highest triumph, perhaps, being achieved by The Island of Orchids, a rich and varied glow of colour, by Mr R. C. Oldham, whilst Mr Conrad Tritschler is also represented by numerous effective conceptions, notably The Court of Neptune and The Grand Masque, the latter being the scene of the concluding pageant and grand procession with which the show closes. Though well up to its predecessors in the way of spectacular display, it is largely through the efforts of the principal performers that this pantomime will go down to history as a pronounced success, for everyone stepped on to the stage well up to their work and confident. Miss Georgina Delmar, a recruit from grand opera, is in the principal part of Crusoe, and, as may be supposed, her vocal powers are well utilised in many popular numbers to the great delight of the audience. The principal girl is Miss Daisy Wallace, and her conception of the part is distinctly pleasing, for added to a charming personality are a vivacious style and good vocal ability. Miss Beryl Somerset will be a prime favourite before the piece has run long, for her part of First Mate is well acted and she sings ear-haunting melodies in taking style. Fine vocal power characterises the efforts of Miss Alma Jones as the Good Fairy. To turn to the fun-providers we may commence with Mr Lionel Rignold in the rôle of pantomime dame, for his quaint and quiet humour is most effective. Mr J. Robert Hale has a big part, and his Bill Bailey Atkins is an excellent vehicle for a continual run of sparkling wit and humour, his encounters with Sunny Jim Crusoe being specially enjoyed. This latter part is cleverly played by Mr Harry Dent, who might with advantage be allowed more generous opportunities. One of the hits of the night was made by Mr Mike S. Whallen, a raconteur of considerable ability, who finds great opportunities in the rôle of Captain Yarns, and keeps his audience in a state of continual merriment with his amusing patter. Mr Victor Stevens has but restricted opportunities as the Cannibal King, but gets all that is possible out of them. Mr Alan Dale finds great favour with accomplished vocal work in his portrayal of Davy Jones. The magnificent production on this occasion is under the unflagging and energetic supervision of Mr James Richardson (for Mr John Hart).

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

On Monday a packed audience assembled at the Knightstone Pavilion to witness the first performance of Red Riding Hood. Mr J. A. Thomson's motto is Labor omnia vincit, and, thanks to this indefatigable gentleman, the pantomime went from start to finish without the slightest hitch. Beside being stage-manager and producer, Mr Thomson has written a book replete with wit and humour. The scenery throughout deserves the highest praise, the Palace and Transformation being perfect works of art. They reflect great credit on the painter and inventor, Mr Jas. Cook. A grand patriotic tableau, entitled "The Flag of England," which concludes the Palace Scene, was received with deafening applause. The gorgeous and handsome dresses are better than anything seen here in pantomime before. The ballets, specially arranged by Madame Verona, and executed by the Verona troupe of lady dancers, merit the highest eulogy. The cast is an exceptionally strong one. Miss Ella Willmer, in the title-rôle, is an artist to the fingertips. She is undoubtedly pretty, possesses a sweet voice, and her dancing is graceful. Miss Blanche Bayley is a handsome and debonair Prince Allfair, and her song, "Bluebell," proved a decided success. As Queen Flora Miss Madge Corri is very successful, her fine voice being heard to great advantage in "Egypt." Boy Blue finds a dashing exponent in Miss Jessie Corri, her singing of "When a fellow is twenty-one" being highly appreciated. Miss Esse Prenton is an artist of promise, and as Rose, the Baron's daughter, she scores in a decisive manner. Miss Annie Rose (Marjory Daw) and Miss Ethel Ashleigh (Johnny Horner) are both attractive and sprightly exponents of their parts. Mr John A. Thomson has become so great a favourite locally that as soon as he stepped on the stage his success was assured. He was greeted with prolonged applause, and his Dame Trot is indubitably the best work this clever comedian has done; he was repeatedly encored for his topical song, "I'll stick to my opinion." Mr Fred Anderson (Tommy Green) and Mr W. Lovell Rowlands (Simple Simon) are quaint and whimsical comedians. As the Baron Mr Charles W. Colman is responsible for a lot of original business, and Mr Albert Victor's Wolferino is an excellent impersonation, his lines being given with rare intelligence. The chorus is a powerful one and well trained, and Mr Arthur Sheldrake has composed and arranged some delightful and catchy music. Mr Evelyn O'Dell most courteously looks after the front of the house.

"THE SLEEPING BEAUTY" AT DUBLIN.

On St. Stephen's Day the management of the Gaiety produced for their Christmas attraction the pantomime of The Sleeping Beauty, which has been exceedingly well written by Mr T. F. Doyle. The curtain ascended punctually to time on the Stalactite Cavern, where, after a very tuneful chorus by the witches, the Fairy Spiteful unfolds her intention to wreak her vengeance on Beauty, the child of King Henpeckt and Queen Elfrida Ann. At the Hall of the Palace (scene two), amidst a blaze of light and brilliant surroundings, we make the acquaintance of the Monarch (Mr Picton Roxborough) and his consort (Mr Fred Russell), both personages of very eccentric manners, also Lord High Everything (Mr Horace Wheatley) and Mary Ellen Coughdrop (Mr Arthur Rigley). Scene three is illustrative of the flight of time, and here eighteen years are supposed to elapse ere we are again at the Rose Garden (scene four), where we meet the Fairy Queen attended by a bevy of fairies. A notable character is Tom Noddy (Mr Harry Maxam), who is in search of his master, Bellamour, a wandering minstrel (Miss Dorothy L. Clark). We next behold Beauty (Miss Lucie Caine), attended by coryphees attired in shamrock costumes. Bellamour, who is the rightful heir, is smitten with the charms of Beauty, and to be near her gets an appointment as Court minstrel, and the scene ends with a grand ensemble. In the opening of scene six, The Throne Room, there is a grand procession of retainers, guests, &c., and in the midst of these festivities Beauty is brought in on a couch, and, after Fairy Spiteful states that she has now had her revenge, Bellamour is spirited away by her myrmidons. The following scene, Dreamland, is a purely spectacular one, wherein Beauty, the King and Queen, and several others are in their long sleep. The scenery opens up and discloses a very brilliant vista, and with this the first portion of the story ends. The concluding part of the pantomime opens with The Tangled Wood, a most weird scene, in which, by the assistance of Fairy Spiteful, Humpty Dumpty (Mr Sam Walsh) makes his début from the well-known egg. He is, however, not the traditional personage we know, but a very effusive and audacious party of the bounder type, and he makes a bid for the hand of Beauty. Beauty has a rough experience at his hands, and is finally carried away by him and his attendants to the Haunted Castle. The search for Beauty is carried on by Bellamour and his faithful henchman, and she is rescued from the Castle which forms the subject of the final scene, a most brilliant and artistic picture. Mr Picton Roxburgh as King Henpeckt has a very commanding appearance, and can sing an excellent song. Mr Fred Russell is capital as Queen Elfrida Ann, and his ventriloquial efforts with two figures were quite a success. Miss Lucie Caine played the part of Beauty in a most charming and pleasing style, and met with a most encouraging reception. The personation of Mary Ellen Coughdrop is given without the slightest vulgarity by Mr Arthur Rigby, who makes it stand out prominently. Mr Horace Wheatley is exceedingly well suited in the part of Lord High Everything, and his song, "Finnegan," is sure to be one of the most popular in the pantomime. Miss Adeline Yohle as Bonne Bouche fills the part in a clever manner. Miss Lilian La Touche as Tricksie infuses plenty of go into her portrayal, being an expert danseuse. The part of principal boy could hardly have fallen into better hands than those of Miss Dorothy L. Clark, who has a splendid appearance and plays the part with grace and refinement. Mr Harry Maxam is well to the fore, and is already a great favourite in the part of Tom-noddy. Miss Cissie De La Rue is good as the King of Hearts; Miss Jessie Bridge plays well as the Queen of Hearts; and Mr Robert A. Innes is well suited as Jack of Hearts. Miss Louie Collier, who personifies the Fairy Benevolentia, acts well, and gives a very fine rendering of the well-known song, "Il Bacio," which is enthusiastically received. Mr Ernest Spalding, who enacts the part of Fairy Spiteful, is a very clever and consistent actor. Mr Sam Walsh, a very capable artist, fills the part of Prince Humpty-Dumpty with success. The woodcutters, Log and Lump, are exceedingly well acted by the Brothers Anarton, whose musical mélange is duly appreciated; and Madame Louie is to be congratulated upon her successful arrangement of the several dances and processions, the evolutions of the Koh-i-Noor Troupe of dancers doing her great credit. Messrs D. C. Hall and Mr George A. Jackson, who are responsible for the scenery, have given us some very artistic pictures. The original songs written by Mr C. W. Chambers are very good. The designs of the dresses are by Mr Robert Crafter and Mr A. Commelli, and they have been cleverly executed by Mrs Whelan and Mrs Thornton and their assistants. The properties are by Mr W. Clarke; the electrical effects by Mr Kerlie Dever; the mechanical effects by Mr George Armstrong; and the wigs by Messrs Clarkson, Harper, and Lucas. The production reflects great credit on Mr George M. Slater, who is responsible for the staging.

"PUSS IN BOOTS" AT BELFAST.

Mr Fred W. Warden on the 24th inst. presented his annual pantomime at the Theatre Royal with a completeness that left nothing to be desired. Puss in Boots is the title, and the book has been cleverly written by Mr J. Hickory Wood, with the result that the familiar story is told in a perfectly clear and comprehensive manner. The local allusions by "Mac" are brilliant, and reflect much credit on this gentleman, whose genius is so striking, and unquestionably Puss in Boots must be pronounced as one of the greatest successes ever produced. Mr Fred W. Warden has, indeed, every reason to feel proud of the triumph his efforts have unquestionably achieved. For weeks Mr Warden has been working indefatigably to provide his innumerable patrons with a pantomime superior to any of its predecessors, and it certainly looks as if he has succeeded. The cast is a powerful one, and includes such well-known favourites as Miss Minnie Jeffs, Miss Florence Esdaile, Miss Dorothy Sefton, and Miss Edith Adeson, and Messrs Martin Adeson, Cinquevalli, the wonderful juggler, J. W. Henson, &c. The music has been composed, selected, and arranged by the talented resident musical conductor, Mr Samuel P. Swanton, and many of the songs introduced, including some of the most catchy numbers of the day, were uproariously received. The costumes are lovely and in the most exquisite taste, and were designed by Mr J. Howard Russell, and executed by Baruch and Alias, London, and Mrs Nerney, Belfast. The scenery is simply gorgeous and most elaborate, and much praise is due the talented artistes, Messrs K. J. M'Lennan, Ernest Howard, and G. Jansen for their artistic taste and clever work. The scenes represented are as follows:—The Witching Hour of Night, the Old Mill, Interior of the Cyclists' Rest, Corridor in the Palace, the King's Palace—a magnificent set, the King's Garden Party and Picnic, At the Ogre's Gate, the Ogre's Ante-room, the Ogre's Dining room, On the Way Back, and the Hall of Games. Special mention must be made of the Procession of Silver Warriors, which is so strikingly beautiful, the limelight effects producing a scene of splendour seldom, if ever, witnessed here, and Mr Warden, who had all the trouble of arranging and directing this brilliant spectacle, was compelled to appear and bow his acknowledgments—a deserved compliment indeed, as this unique procession will be the talk of the city. The ballets have been arranged by Mr John Tiller, and are exceedingly graceful. Regarding the cast, Mr Warden has been fortunate in securing the valuable services of the world-renowned Paul Cinquevalli, and his appearance as Fritz, the waiter, was remarkably successful. In scene three Cinquevalli exhibited his unrivalled skill with tables, chairs, &c., and again delights all with his adroitness in scene six. But in the last scene Cinquevalli achieved a triumph of which he may well feel justly proud, performing some of the most remarkable juggling feats with such dexterity and skill that the audience was completely amazed. Undoubtedly Cinquevalli will be a tremendous draw during the run of the pantomime. Of the principals, Miss Minnie Jeffs, who appears as Colin, the miller's youngest son, was decidedly charming, her handsome figure enhancing her delightful impersonation. She acts gracefully and sings her songs with much effect. Her rendering of "Blue Bell" and "A Wise Old Owl" was decidedly captivating, and, being encored for the latter, she was on responding presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers. It would, indeed, be difficult to excel the vocal efforts of Miss Florence Esdaile, who sustains the part of the Princess Ivy with such infinite grace. Miss Esdaile sang 'Navaho," with its wonderfully catchy chorus, and this song promises to be one of the most popular in the pantomime. Miss Esdaile is assisted in the song by a little juvenile, whose smart dancing created quite a furore. Later Miss Esdaile rendered "Will you be my butterfly," to which her beautiful voice gave great expression, and she deservedly shared the honours with Miss Jeffs. Regarding the comedians. Mr Martin Adeson is a host in himself, being irresistibly funny as King Grabbus. His comical appearance and dry humour was responsible for the heartiest of laughter, and he sang several songs with telling effect, notably "Spoiled" and "Soldier's Life," while in the topical duet "For Ever and Ever" with the dame, Mr Adeson was encored again and again. There have in past years been many creations of the dame in various local pantomimes, but it is doubtful if any have been more successful than Mr Fred Lyne. This we understand is Mr Lyne's first pantomime engagement, and we predict for him ever greater fame. In the present rôle of Dame Shortly he acts naturally, and creates the heartiest laughter with his unforced humour. His patter is also very original, and in his song "You can't beat the old time girls," with its catchy chorus, made a big hit on which he must be congratulated. Messrs J. W. Henson and Marriott Edgar were quaintly amusing as Baron Rumphiz and Muggles, the latter being loudly applauded for his droll rendering of "On the Sands." Miss Dorothy Sephton was a dashing Prince Rudolph, and is allotted one of the song hits, "You are a white little girl," with its ear-haunting refrain, to which she does every justice. Miss Edith Adeson is a sweet and ingenuous Phyllis, gaining much approval for her clever rendering of "Run, run, you little one," while her exquisite dancing is the very poetry of motion. A splendid impersonation of Slyboots, the King's Cat, was submitted by Mr Bert Lloyd, and his dancing evoked considerable enthusiasm. Other song hits rendered by the company are "There goes my soldier boy" and "Zulu-Lu." Miss Josephine Colona appears as Felina, the Fairy Queen of Sports, and the rôles of First and Second Fairies were gracefully sustained by Misses Phyllis Stuart and Suzanne Graham. Among the specialities the Cecilian Glee Singers render in capital style "Come where my love lies dreaming," and for an encore sustituted "The Swanee River," their tuneful voices harmonising very melodiously. Tiller's Superba Troupe of dancers furnish a splendid exhibition of the Terpsichorean art, and their efforts are justly rewarded with loud applause. Another unique feature is the tableaux representing games of every description—cards, chess, draughts, backgammon, dominoes, lawn-tennis, battledore and shuttlecock, roulette, &c. Messrs J. W. Henson and Mr Allan Davenport are responsible for the stage-management, and fulfilled their arduous duties well. During the interval Mr Fred W. Warden—who was enthusiastically received—appeared on the stage and announced the result of the "Adding" competition. He said that no less than 23,000 letters had been dealt with, containing various attempts at solving the mathematical puzzle set the public. The successful competitor was Mr Thomas Wetherall, and he would be provided with a season ticket for the pantomime. In Puss in Boots Mr Warden has produced a pantomime the equal of any of its predecessors, and, perhaps, superior to many; and there can be little doubt that a prosperous run is safely assured. The reception accorded the initial production (which went with faultless precision and without a hitch) augurs well, and Mr Warden deserves to be heartily congratulated.

"THE SLEEPING BEAUTY" AT BRISTOL

There was a very large attendance at the Prince's Theatre on Saturday evening in all parts of the house on the production of The Sle ping Beauty. The pantomime is written by Mr J. Hickory Wood, local allusions and lyrics are by Mr Dudley Smith, and suitable music has been arranged, selected, and composed by Mr G. R. Chapman. The story is perhaps more interesting than the general run of pantomimes, and it is skilfully worked out in twelve scenes. The plot may be shortly described as follows:—On the birth of Princess Beauty numerous invitations are sent out by the King and Queen for the christening ceremony, but by an oversight the King omits to post the invitation card intended for Maligna, the evil genius of the piece. Maligna, however, is present, but declines to accept the apology of the King and Queen, and he predicts that on the Princess attaining eighteen years of age "she shall for ever quit this earthly scene." The fairy godmother, Claribel, the Queen of the Butterflies, however, hints at long life and happiness. Father Time, by the aid of his hour-glass, bridges over the eighteen years, and suitors for the hand of the Princess make their appearance. Amongst others are Prince Florizel and his page Alphonso, who appear on the scene disguised as wandering minstrels. The Queen, however, mistakes Alphonso for the Prince, the latter not undeceiving her, as he is desirous that the Princess shall love him for himself, and not as a Prince. Subsequently the Prince obtains an interview with Beauty, when, after she has admitted that she loves him, though only a page, he declares his identity, and all appears to be likely to go on smoothly and end happily. Beauty has a touch of curiosity in her composition, and visits a mysterious old tower, where she meets with Maligna, and is induced to try her skill at a magic spinning wheel; she pricks her hand, and falls into a sleep, which is to last one hundred years. In the midst of the betrothal festivities at the castle the Princess is found to be missing, search is made, and she is brought in on a couch apparently dead. Great consternation is the result, but the Fairy Claribel makes the assertion that the Princess is not dead but in a sleep which must last a century, and that all present, except the Prince, herself, and Father Time, would also sleep for the same period, and on waking up still be of the same age; that the Prince in the meantime should visit other lands, still keeping young, and on the expiration of the hundred years he should awaken the Princess with a magic kiss. Father Time again makes use of his hour glass, sleep overcomes all but the Fairy, Father Time, and the Prince, the latter in a dramatic finale declaring that "though centuries may pass I will still be true to my bridal vow." Part two commences with the awakening of Beauty by the magic kiss of the Prince, the King and Queen and Court all wake up, and all is again likely to end happily. Maligna, however, manages to put a magic potion into the Prince's wine. This upsets everything, for the Prince declares Beauty to be ugly and her old nurse beautiful, and he throws the former over for the latter. Ultimately the nurse declines to marry the Prince and the spell is broken, the pantomime closing with the grand wedding procession of the Prince and Beauty. Miss Lil Hawthorne makes a splendid Prince Florizel, acting the part really well and singing several songs in excellent style. Miss Zena Dare acts gracefully as Princess Beauty, and is successful in song and dance, Miss Maud Darling is sufficiently vivacious as Trixie, maid to the Princess, obtaining applause for her singing and dancing. Miss Anita Penrose is a graceful exponent of Claribel, and is successful with her song. Mr W. H. Rawlins makes a capital part of the Queen; he has several songs, and all go well. Mr Lionel Victor is excellently placed as the King; he acts well, and the contrast in style and stature between the King and Queen makes both the parts very amusing. Mr George Miller, a stranger here, though a Bristolian, presents a quaint and very effective character study of the Nurse; his style is unusually unobtrusive, and he plays throughout in a dryly humorous manner. Mr Albert Le Fre acts well as Alphonso, and he is a clever dancer. Messrs Drew and Alders as Ping and Pong make their parts amusing, and do a good knockabout acrobatic turn. Mr Fred Conquest is decidedly funny both as the cat and the animated tree. Mr David Miller is sufficiently impressive as Maligna, Mr Charles Arnold is stately as Father Time; and Master Le Fre is smart and speaks well as Jimmy Green. The smaller parts of Viola, Rudolph, Myra, Rupert, Mildred, Oswald, Editha, and Clarence are nicely taken by the Misses Dora Poole, Gladys Munro, Ruby Dale, Maud Odell, Wynifred Morice, Nellie Danvers, Molly Moore, and Freda Vaughan. Some taking dances are introduced by Tiller's "Superba" Troupe of dancers. A large party of well-trained dancers present ballets and pretty incidental dances arranged by Miss Millie Williams, and there is an imposing contingent of extra ladies, all magnificently dressed and well drilled. Popular opinion appears to be that Mr Chute has once again beaten his own record for finely staged pantomimes. The scenery is very grand, several heavy sets being exceptionally good examples of what Messrs George Jackson, Ernest Howard, and E. H. Ryan can do. The costumes are superb, those used in the last scene, The Butterflies' Ball, being wonderfully realistic and perfect in harmony of colour. The designs for the costumes are by Mr J. Howell Russell and Signor A. Comelli, and they were executed in the theatre by Mrs Shapcott, Mrs Bristowe, and assistants, and by Baruch, London, and Alias, London and Paris. There is a good display of appropriate wigs by Gustave, London, and H. J. Webb, Bristol; machinery and mechanical effects are by Mr Henry Owen; elaborate properties are provided by Mr F. C. Lebhart, London, and Mr H. Momber; and the electric lighting and dioramic effects are by Mr Arthur Bawn. The pantomime went very smoothly on the opening night under the stage-management of Mr Henry Turner, assisted by Mr David Miller, and the whole was produced under the personal supervision of Mr Jas. Macready Chute. When near the close of the last scene on Saturday night, Mr Chute was loudly called for. As usual, he had a very hearty reception, and, as a speech was evidently wanted, he said:—"Ladies and gentlemen, I can only tender you my sincere thanks for the very kind manner in which you have received our latest production. I hope I may ask you 'yes' or 'no.' Is it a success? (Loud shouts of 'Yes' from all parts.) I have also to thank the ladies and gentlemen of the company for working so hard."

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT BRISTOL.

Robinson Crusoe was produced at the Theatre Royal on Saturday evening. The "book" is by Mr and Mrs Ernest Carpenter, and it effectually carries out the story as usually accepted, with a few variations which considerably add to the interest. The pantomime opens with a pretty view of the Port of Hull, from which Robinson embarks in the good ship Saucy Sal, and the plot is worked out in the various scenes, representing 'Tween Decks, The Wreck, The Golden Valley, Crusoe's Hut, Another Part of the Island, The Seashore, The Palace Gates, and The Sultan's Palace. The scenery is nicely painted throughout by Mr David Young and Mr William M'Cullough, The Sultan's Palace being a very fine and effective set scene. Miss Ethel Campbell is an excellent Robinson Crusoe. She is sufficiently vivacious for the part, and she sings pleasingly. Miss Margery Moore (Polly Perkins) acts with grace, and she both sings and dances well. Miss Florence Melville is an imposing and dashing Captain Mayne Brace. The Misses Sadie Warner and Lulu Warner are good exponents of Billee Taylor and Nancy Lee, and they successfully introduce their specialities of song and dance. Miss Minnie Love is pleasing as Princess Carina, and she has a pretty speciality of song and dance, "Jack-in-the-Box." Miss Ivy Templet does well as Jujuba, attendant to the Princess. Mr Bob King makes a capital Mrs Crusoe; he acts in amusing style and has some good songs. Mr Walter Kooney scores a success as Will Atkins; and the same may be said of Mr Harry Karr as his confederate, Dick Deadeye. Mr Ernest Laws acts with quiet dignity as the Sultan; he has a good baritone voice, which is heard to advantage in several songs. Mr Edgar Budden causes much amusement as Friday, he is an expert dancer on roller skates, and has lots of funny business. The Brothers Risto (Tom and Will) work hard throughout the pantomime; they play Tom Bowling, Ben Bolt the Monkey, and the Dog, and introduce several clever acrobatic and contortionist specialities. There are a number of elegantly costumed extra ladies, a number of children who sing and dance as savages, &c.; numerous specialities of song, dance and acrobatics, excellent songs by all the principals, and several pretty set dances by the corps de ballet. Taken as a whole, the pantomime is interesting, bright and amusing, and on the opening night, the whole of the company very effectively proved their efficiency. The costumes which are both rich and tasteful, are designed by Miss Clarence, and executed under her personal direction. There are also special costumes designed and executed by Hugo Barusch and Co., Berlin and London, and Elkan Brothers, London. The medley overture and incidental music have been successfully arranged and composed by Mr Edwin Jacobs. The mechanical effects are by Mr Harry Blake and the properties are by Mr W. Sullivan, and Miss Kirby has been very successful in training the children. The entire pantomime is produced by Mr Edward Carpenter, assisted by Mr Trueman Towers. At the close of the Golden Valley scene on Saturday evening, Mr Ernest Carpenter was called on the stage and had a hearty reception. In a short speech Mr Carpenter said: "Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have tried to put before you something better than you have ever seen in the old house before, and from the way you have received it I hope I have succeeded, and I believe from the way we have started to-night that we shall have a record run at the old theatre. At all events, nothing shall be wanting on my part, and I know I have a company of good workers around me who will do all in their power to make the pantomime one of the most pleasant and enjoyable you have seen here." There was much cheering on Mr Carpenter leaving the stage.

"SINBAD THE SAILOR" AT CROYDON.

Christmas Eve saw the first performance at the Theatre Royal of Mr Samuel James's second pantomime, the title of which is Sinbad the Sailor, and there could be no question of its instant popularity. The book is not at all a bad one, and the various stages of the story are cleverly depicted. The subject being one which has not been seen in Croydon for very many years it is all the more acceptable. Mr John Reillie's masterly hand can be recognised in the melodious and catchy music, and certainly this year he has surpassed himself, and given to Sinbad a brightness and fascination which does him infinite credit. The scenery, too, from the brush of Mr W. R. Coleman, was much admired, and is well in keeping with the many picturesque and rich dresses by Mrs Waite. There has been a lavish expenditure in this direction. The chorus is much above the average, and the electrical and mechanical effects by Mr Arthur Bryan and Mr J. Yates respectively are worthy of special mention. The company is a strong one, and simply swarms with clever comedians and handsome ladies, who work well together. Miss Daisy Silcott is the principal boy, Sinbad, and her selection for the part could hardly have been improved upon. She plays the rôle throughout with verve, charm, and distinction, and that she can sing an excellent song is proved by her effective renderings of "Bravo, Plucky Japan," and "Woman." We have a favourite from last year's pantomime in Miss Ethel Dove, whose Zoradee does her much credit. Miss Dove has a neat style, and her efforts are always in the right direction, whilst a charming presence and graceful movements stand her in good stead. Miss Ida Katrina is a pretty little lady who can sing and dance to perfection. She makes a big hit with "The Carnival of Toys," and is a dainty mermaid queen, Coraline. Miss Ruby Norton is a dashing Prince Azan, and her principal song is warmly redemanded, and Miss Ethel Maries is a bewitching Princess Irza. Messrs Dale and O'Malley are a host in themselves as Wiffles and Woffles, and with their quaint efforts they create unstinted laughter. Their catch-phrase, "Don't call me Ginger," has caught on, and will soon be heard all over Croydon. They are as funny a pair as anyone could wish to see. Mr Dan O'Connor is another artist possessed of the spirit of comedy, and his droll business and sayings make the part of Tinbad a quaint personage. Visitors evidently think they cannot see too much of him. Mr Jack M'Kenzie simply glories in the rôle of Cogia Ali; he is ready witted and arouses almost continuous merriment. There is always a chuckle of delight every time he enters with his "Got another Hat," and he is a right welcome member of the company. Nimble Mr Sid Morton is all there, as usual, as Shiraze Ali, and is exceedingly popular. His work shows care and attention, and in his hands the character is whimsical and animated. Mr Dick M'Kay as the Old Man of the Sea and Mr Con. Silo as Davey Jones are well to the fore, and their trap-door business is smartly carried out and wins for them cordial applause. Mr Charles Sands and Mr Bob Graham make a lot out of small opportunities as Captain Coddle and the Sultan of Rumphiz; and Miss Mildred Blair and Miss Rose Hersey complete the cast as Bombonz and Irene. The first performance was as near perfection as possible, thanks to the untiring energy of Mr Samuel James, who appears to fairly revel in hard work. We can compliment him, without reserve, upon the success of his labours; whilst a word of praise is also due to his stage-manager, Mr Sid Morton. Mr James did a good stroke of business in securing Mr Newman Maurice (from the Terriss Theatre) as his acting-manager. Mr Maurice is always courteous and attentive to those in front, and under his able care the Royal should have a renewal of its prosperity.

"CINDERS" AT BRADFORD.

On Friday evening, the 23d, Mr John Hart presented at the Theatre Royal here his pantomimic extravaganza Cinders, which is another name for the immortal fairy legend of "Cinderella." The production contains all the elements of modern up-to-date musical comedy, and presents a striking contrast to the pantomime of our father's time. The story is told in more or less orthodox fashion, and it is localised. The Baron de Baildon, who is hoary and hard up, takes unto himself a second wife, Anna Maria Hogg, and his charming daughter, Cinders, becomes the slave of the new wife's ugly offsprings of her first marriage, Gingeretta and Blondinetta. Prince Peerless Paragon meets Cinders and falls in love with her, and in order to test her real affection he changes places with his foster brother, Dandini, and the latter in the hope of succession, plots with the spirit, Mischief, for the Prince's overthrow, but Fairy Gracious intervenes, and Dandini is foiled. The main features of the story are not omitted, for we have the transformation from the kitchen to the Ballroom, and the gorgeous coach and ponies, and the incident of the lost slipper. Mr D. G. Hall's scenery is lovely and Mr Stafford Hall and Mr R. C. Oldham have also produced some gems of scenic art. The Wood in winter and summer is charming, and there are some fine effects in Glassland, The Kitchen, and The Hall of Ambassadors in the Palace. The electrical effects are magnificent, and Mr Hart's taste is again noticeable in the lovely costumes worn by the ballet, which Madame J. Phillipini has cleverly trained. There is much originality and good taste in the music which Mr W. C. Chambers has arranged, and under the nom de plume of Quill we recognise the wit and humour of Mr T. F. Doyle, the author of the book, who has produced the pantomime under Mr Hart's supervision. The initial performance passed off with but few of the customary hitches, and all concerned are to be very heartily congratulated on the production, which is bound to rank amongst the many successes Mr Hart has achieved in the way of pantomime. Our old friend, Mr J. W. Rowley, is with us again as the Baron, quaint as ever with his dialect patter; and Mr J. E. Nightingale as the Baroness is immensely funny both in his make-up and his acting. Katie May is charming and very dainty as Cinders, and is already an established favourite. Miss Marie Daltra makes up excellently as the ugly sister Gingeretta, and is decidedly humorous too. Miss Irene Verona as her Sister Blondinetta also fills the part well. Mr Frank Calvert is very droll as the Baron's Retainer, Chump. Winsome Dolly Daisy has sprightly Miss Eida Burman for a representative. Miss Leonora Grieve, with a charming presence, makes a dashing and attractive Prince. The Dandini of Mr Fred Fowler is bright, clever, and full of resource, and Miss Ivy Rose is an attractive Periwiggi. Carlton is excruciatingly funny as Septimus Spoof, somebody's uncle, and he does some wonderful card tricks. Harry Grell and Fred Grey make a pair of smart Flunkeys, and give a clever acrobatic display. Mr Dennis Drew, a fine baritone, effectively fills the character of the evil spirit, Mischief, and Miss Maud Holland very prettily and with grace fills the part of the good spirit, Graciosa. The chorus is a strong one; the Transylvanian Troupe of Dancers give a clever display; the fairy electric carriage of Cinders is strikingly effective; and "The Deputation of All Nations" is a notable feature amongst the many fine tableaux in the production.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT BRADFORD.

Mr Francis Laidler's characteristic enterprise is noticeable in a marked degree in his pantomime Robinson Crusoe, which was produced on Friday evening, the 22nd. As hitherto, Mr Frank Macnaghten is responsible for the production, and Mr Arthur W. Field, who is the author of the book, may be congratulated on having so successfully localised the story. Briefly, the Village of Hawksworth is Robinson's home, where his mother, Dame Crusoe, gets a living by selling refreshments. Polly Perkins from the Hall falls in love with the hero, but her guardian, Will Atkins, who wants the girl himself, vows vengeance. The scene changes to the Hull Docks, and Robinson and the principal characters embark on board the Bowling Belle, which is wrecked by Davy Jones. Robinson is seen on a Raft, everybody is saved, and all the chief characters find themselves on an Island amongst Somalis, who were lately on exhibition in Bradford. The next scene is Crusoe's Hut, where Friday, who has been rescued by Robinson, is much in evidence. A change is made to Bradford, and in the spectacle The Grand Parade of the late Exhibition all ends happily. The main aim of the production is humour, and it reigns prolific. There are ten scenes, excellent examples of art and stagecraft, and the variety element is strong. Miss Ivy Lane's Vaudeville Dancers are a strong feature of the production. The May Day Revels and Naval Brigade Drill by local children are excellent items. There is a stirring Flag Ballet, and a very brilliant electrical conception, The Greatest of These is Charity. The initial performance went merrily, and with but few hitches, and all that is wanted is full scope for the resourceful company, together with a little judicious pruning, to guarantee success. Miss Adele Roze as Crusoe is bright and full of energy, and she scores with "Good-bye, little girl," and other songs. Miss Lily Black is very charming and dainty as Polly Perkins; the Will Atkins of Mr Harry A. Gribben is a bit of capital burlesque acting. Mr Tom Fancourt is responsible for much hearty laughter as Dame Crusoe, and Mr Oliver Conroy as Sammy Sackless and Mr Billy Elliott as Dick Drymaath also help considerably in keeping the fun going. Mr Ernest Stevens gives a clever performance of Friday, being well aided by Master Jack Bamford as Saturday. Mr Andy Kerr plays the Rajah Ramwell. Mr Geo. Belrose as Davy Jones and Miss Maud De Velin, the Fairy Coral, score well vocally. Amongst others who help the success are Miss Rosa Robey as Hurricane, Miss Ethel Beverley as Tornada, Miss Jennie Ruble as Midshipman Merry, Miss Lily West as the Princess, Miss O'Nolan as Cissie Crusoe, and the Mesdames Beattie Renee, Violet Gunnell, and a bevy of charming ladies who sustain subordinate parts. Praise is due to Mr Carl Hamlin for his excellent selection and arrangement of the music, and to Mr Robert Sainton, who conducts the augmented orchestra.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT NOTTINGHAM

Robinson Crusoe, Mr Arthur's eighth production in Nottingham, was launched on Christmas Eve at the Theatre Royal. Mr Frank Dix is again responsible for the "book," and the music has been composed and arranged by Messrs J. H. Wilson and Mr John Armstrong, the score being bright and effective; the scenic arrangements leave nothing to be desired, and we hope we are not giving away a secret by saying that the popular manager of the theatre, Mr Howard Finney, has found time among his multifarious duties to "wield the brush" in the painting-room. The customary Port of Hull forms the starting-point of the story. A large number of girls and sailors are seen making merry to a lively chorus, and the various characters are introduced in quick succession. The comedians come first in order, and make every use of their opportunities. The entry of Mrs Crusoe (Mr Bob Baxter) is signalised by a smart and humorous ditty, entitled 'I thought they were talking to me," which is sure to have a warm welcome each night. Mr Baxter is also very successful in another song, "Good-bye, little girl." A charming duet, "My coal-black coon," by Robinson Crusoe (Miss Madeline Du Val) and Polly Pansy (Miss Mabel Osborne), is rendered daintily. The Captain's order, "All aboard," is obeyed to a spirited concerted number. In the second scene, the Docks, a mirth-provoking glee is given by the comedians, and Miss Mabel Osborne sings with captivating sweetness a merry song, "Honeymoon Hall." A fine effect is here made by Mr Bob Baxter, who, surrounded by a group of Japanese children, sings the plaintive melody, "Farewell, my little Yo-San." In scene five, Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea, Coraline (Miss Phyllis Castleton) is condemned by King Neptune to be chained to a rock for daring to love a mortal. The scene naturally lends itself to beautiful effects, and the artists have done it full justice, a touch of realism being added by the presence of real fish. Here a ballet of fish makes a charming spectacle, and there is a spirited finale, "Britannia, Empress of the Sea." Act two opens with a gorgeously painted view of Lone Island, which brings to notice the Cannibal King (Mr Fred Solo), Friday (Mr Wally Scott), and Topsy (Miss Nellie Christie). Mr Solo scores with a vigorously rendered song, "I'm a cannibal that thirts for human gore," and Miss Christie evokes the utmost enthusiasm in a song, "Real Susie Tusie," the scene finishing with a stirring cake-walk by the whole of the company. The finding of the treasure in Crusoe's hut, and an attack on the hut by the King and his followers provides an excellent acrobatic performance, and we are led onwards to the King's Palace. To the strains of a capital march the usual procession takes place, and the Brothers Austin bring the pantomime to a close by a smart exhibition of comic juggling. The whole performance reflects the greatest credit on the energetic stage-manager, Mr Herbert Cottesmore. The rôle of Crusoe is undertaken by Miss Madeline Du Val, a young lady of prepossessing appearance, who uses a nice voice with skill. Miss Mabel Osborne makes a winsome Polly Pansy, singing and dancing spiritedly. The Sisters James as Tommy Truelove and Nelly Bly contribute much to the enjoyment by their versatility, and Miss Nellie Christie as Topsy enters into the spirit of her part with the keenest zest. The character of Mrs Crusoe is played by Mr Bob Baxter in a genuinely funny manner, yet always in good taste, and his drollery is rewarded by peals of responsive merriment. Will Atkins is essayed by Mr Harry Crane, and his amusing absurdities as the comic villain are exceedingly entertaining. The Two Austins, as Captain Spanker and Bo'sun, are a lively pair, and their work deserves high commendation. Mr Fred Solo is a quaint exponent of King Cockalorum, in which part he introduces some clever legmania feats, and Mr Wally Scott is thoroughly capable as Friday. The Coraline of Miss Phyllis Castleton is noteworthy for artistic singing, and Miss Madge Melbourne earns high encomiums as Little Dina. Mr Herbert Stanton, King Neptune; Mr Algernon Newark, Horatio; and Mr G. E. Carney, Hooley, fill their respective parts with credit. The Utopia Troupe of dancers submit a dexterous performance.

"BO-PEEP" AT ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

Mr Charles Revill produced his Christmas annual at the Theatre Royal on Boxing Day, having entrusted the staging thereof to the popular Milton-Rays, who have organised an efficient company for the humorous interpretation of the popular nursery story, "Little Bo-Peep." Mr Revill's annual is as good as anything we have had in past years at this house. It will, of course, improve as the performers find themselves familiar with the characters they are personating, but its success is already assured. Mr Percy Milton and Mr Milton Roemer originally were responsible for this version of the fable. The roars of laughter the comedians provoked testified to the capabilities of some of the leading performers in the domain of parody. The cast reveals the usual characters for the narration of the story of Little Bo-Peep, who has for a lover and defender Boy Blue, and has as enemies Lawyer Graball, the Gipsy King, and numerous satellites. After various adventures the lovers are finally reunited after separation, and a grand reception concludes the pantomime. The story opens at a village fair, and we have all the paraphernalia of a market square, with the shows and other exhibitions which attract the crowd on these fête occasions. This is an animated and lively scene from the beginning, and the whole of the characters, which are numerous, appear and reappear, attracting attention by song, dance, absurd antic, ludicrous speech, and witty parody; but attention is chiefly directed to the movements of four tall, shapely females (the Sisters Tree), who manœuvre, march, sing, and otherwise conduct themselves as alert and intelligent officers of the law, and who are smartly dressed in the regulation blue uniform. The fun of the fair is also kept on the swing by the absurd conduct of Binks the Bounder (Mr Harry Elliston), the Baron (Mr Jack Hylton), Simple Simon and Johnny Stout (the Two Eltons), Dame Trot (Mr W. G. Wesley), Lawyer Graball (Mr H. V. Morgan), and others. The specialities of the comedians, which all tend to burlesque, fun, and frolic, keep matters throughout very lively and entertaining. The old woman of the pantomime, Dame Trot (Mr W. G. Wesley), raises many laughs at the stereotyped predicaments in which old ladies of pantomime usually find themselves. Misses Ada and Lily Wright as principal girl and boy, Bo-Peep and Boy Blue, are sprightly and vivacious. Miss Grace Heywood must be complimented on her interpretation of Ferdinand the Fearless; and Misses Ethel Patrick, Maude St. John, Marie Beck, Josie Beltram, Emmie Crosby, and Messrs Hill, Reid, Holland, and Hemmingway in minor parts will doubtless develop out of mere sketches business which will add to the success a few evenings hence. The pantomime has been produced by Mr H. T. Batler, under the superintendence of Mr Arthur Milton. The music of the pantomime includes some tuneful strains, and Mr Peter Flitcroft as the musical director must be congratulated on his arrangement. The Four Trees, already alluded to, please immensely as society entertainers, vocalists, and dancers; the Two Eltons give a most diverting horizontal bar act in the Palace scene; and the Marblesque Trio in statuary are much admired.

'Once upon a time," says Madame D'Aulnoy, in her fairy tale of "The White Cat," 'there was a king who had three brave and handsome sons." This monarch, in the slang parlance of our day, "knew something." "He feared they might be seized with the desire of reigning before his death. The King was old, but as vigorous in mind as ever, and had no desire to yield up his position. He thought, therefore, the best way of living in peace was to divert his sons by promises which he could always escape fulfilling." So he sent them out on what may be called wild-goose chases after the most beautiful dog, piece of linen, and lady in the world. How the youngest wandered about till he found a mysterious palace wherein dwelt a magical white cat; how she enabled him to comply with the first two of the paternal requisitions, and to meet the third by cutting off her head, on which operation she turned into the loveliest girl imaginable, is told in somewhat rambling and deliberate fashion in Madame D'Aulnoy's story. Messrs Hickory Wood and Arthur Collins have had no easy task in constructing from the materials of the tale a libretto fit to be the framework of a Drury-lane pantomime. But all is possible to skill and experience; and The White Cat is one of the most beautiful, amusing, and artistic annuals yet produced at this theatre. The dog and the linen details have been exchanged for the discovery of a certain golden net; and, in search of this, two of the sons visit Ollapod Market, where the members of the varied callings in a German town mix and mingle to the sound of a kermesse chorus. There are soldiers, fishermen, peasant maidens, and many others too numerous to mention. Princess Aurora is confined in a magic garden, where Cupid hits her with one of his arrows. She is sought in marriage by the hideous son of the bad fairy, Hecate; and on her refusal is, despite the efforts of the beneficent immortal Asbestos, turned into a White Cat. Asbestos is in the decline of her power, and the effect of her love philtres only lasts for a short time. In the end the young Prince Peerless, who is, like his brothers, in search of the golden net, meets the Princess, and they fall in love, the story then concluding much in the D'Aulnoy manner.

One advantage of an entertainment which is, when first produced, too long to be performed within the usual limits of an evening's entertainment is that its less "happy" items can be eliminated in the process of reduction. Before these lines are in print the blue pencil will have been vigorously employed on the book of The White Cat. We need not, therefore, deal with every detail of an entertainment from which must necessarily be removed so much superfluous matter. The larger landmarks will, of course, remain; and they are exquisite in their artistic beauty. 'Artistic" is, indeed, the word appropriate. It is not by dazzling and strident hues or by overpowering magnificence that the great scene of The Fairy Orchard at the end of the first part of the pantomime "tells." It is a dream of natural brightness and beauty. The whole stage is radiant with sunshine, with the delicate tints of apple and cherry blossom, and the warmer hues of the orange and the lemon and the grape. Cupids attired in delicately shaded tints, and the Grigolatis, in graceful poses, surround the heart of pale blue which forms the centre of this delicious stage picture. Mr Henry Emden has given us a spectacle instinct with the very spirit of Spring. Equally important in another style is The Triumph of Hymen. Here the effect is created by bevies of fair women clad in costumes of all European nations. Signor Comelli has surpassed himself in the way in which he has designed the dresses. In the final scene, The King's Banqueting Hall, all the guests sit down in rows upon an immense flight of steps; and instantly hundreds of little tables, all supplied with clean white cloths and bearing dainty repasts, stand before them.

We attribute the triumph of The White Cat at Drury-lane, on Monday evening, to the fact that more reliance has been placed on personality than on spectacle. The "big scenes" are exquisitely beautiful, but never heavily elaborated, and the human element in the pantomime is immensely strong. Much of the success of the entertainment must be attributed to the remarkable drollery of Mr Harry Randall as Fairy Asbestos. Mr Randall, in parts of the "skinny matron" sort, is simply irresistible. He depicts—with graphic exaggeration, of course—a distinct Cockney type. He is the British female—care-worn, ironically cynical, but innately good-natured—who may be found by dozens in any of our "mean streets." When with this is "doubled" the absurd idea of an elderly fairy whose spells are growing stale, and whose fatal beauty has ceased to charm and fascinate, the result is most diverting. Of course, Mr Randall introduces a good deal of his famous "patter," and it sends the audience into ecstacies. To see him as the struggling ex-fairy, reduced to taking in a "nurse child" and lodgers, undressing a property baby with a ludicrous assumption of propriety and washing it down with a scrubbing-brush, is to laugh till one's sides ache; and then there is his topical song about "Happy England," which might easily be encored a dozen times, so eager are the audience for additional verses. Mr Randall's fun is so "clear cut"—if we may use the expression—his methods are so decided, and he is such a master of his work that he creates a first-rate impression without any effort or exaggeration. Mr Fred Eastman is quaint and original as Prince Plump, and sustains the part with a quiet ease that is very effective; and Mr Johnny Danvers' King Ivory is an excellent embodiment of the odd and "original" monarch. Mr Tom Woottwell plays Populo quite in the tone and spirit of the sketches of low life which have made his name and fame at the halls. In his song, "'Old yer row," he gives us a glimpse of the lawless, grimy, dryly humorous atmosphere of the London slum, his make-up greatly assisting his interpretation. Mr Hugh J. Ward contributes a realistic and subtle rendering of the rôle of Simeon, the gradual development of the ape into a man being shown in the most graphic way. His dancing is quaint and his gestures are extremely well studied. Mr Tom Hearn as Snale introduces his celebrated lazy "athlete" sketch, which is received with screams of merriment, the whole house going into fits of uproarious laughter. Mr James Welch, one of our most subtle and refined comedians, is a little out of his element in pantomime; but, like the clever craftsman that he is, he makes the best of the situation, and will doubtless, as he goes on, become more "subdued to what he works in." As it is, he is quite successful as Prince Patter, and his song goes very well. Miss Marie George is a very dainty and active representative of Cupid. She dances admirably, and she sings a song about the 'sum that comes out all right" very neatly, assisted by a chorus of short-skirted school girls, who are seated on a wall with their slates in their hands. Miss Queenie Leighton makes a superb Prince Peerless, and a ballad in praise of olden days is delivered by her with all possible distinctness and emphasis. She acts with debonair ease and spirit, and is altogether a very handsome and gallant lover. Miss Jeanie Macdonald's Princess Aurora has an ingenuous freshness and a bright, wholesome charm which are completely winsome and captivating; and Miss Ruth Lytton is excellent in every way as Aristo, Miss May Gurney making a very commendable and agreeable Delicia. Mrs Lane-Joynt is a magnificent and authoritative Hecate; and Messrs Queen and Le Brun as Bucephalus send the house into roars of laughter by their extraordinary evolutions. Minor rôles were ably interpreted by Mr Harry Kirk as Cairo, Mr William Morgan as a regisseur, and Gasco as Migonnet; and Mr Alec Davidson appears with credit as a Minister of State, the Grigolatis, as usual, doing their pretty aerial flights, and charming all by their daring, beauty, and grace.

Mr Ernest D'Auban's smart stage-management deserves notice and praise; and the arrangement of the ballets by Carlo Coppi and John D'Auban is admirable, the splendid dresses by Allas in scenes fifth and tenth being marvellously well made. The Tiller Troupe are a most prepossessing party of schoolgirls, and sing and dance well; and everyone concerned works his or her hardest to make this Drury-lane pantomime what it is—a stupendous success

In the preparation of the Christmas annual Mr George Davey has this season engaged the assistance of Mr Geoffrey Thorn, who, as the author of fifteen Islington pantomimes, should be able to supply the right article if anybody can. Having thus secured one of the essentials of success, a good book, Mr Davey has been lavish in the provision of scenery and dresses, and to crown all has obtained the services of a capital all-round company. The Islington house has always been famous for its pantomimes, and Mr Davey can honestly be congratulated on having so worthily upheld the traditions of the past. The Babes in the Wood is a Christmas piece full of fun and frolic that is bound to attract many thousands of North London theatregoers, and the laughable business so liberally introduced may be regarded as a certain cure for the depression which damp and foggy days, to say nothing of bad trade, are apt to cause. With the story of The Babes in the Wood is dexterously interwoven the legends of "Old Cock Robin and young Robin Hood." The curtain rises upon the Nottingham Hiring Fair, where crowds of serving men and maids come for hire, including a charming nursery governess, Maid Marian, with whom Robin Hood, attending the fair to spy upon his traitor and foe, the Sheriff of Nottingham, falls in love. The Sheriff, Baron Badastheymakem, who is the wicked guardian of the Babes, having by unwelcome advances to Marian provoked Robin, the latter defies him, and is not at all frightened of the two ruffians, Peter and Roger, the "Terrible Tikes," who arrive from a wrestling booth, but show anything but the prowess expected from gladiators. The Babes having wandered to the fair are about to be ill-treated by the Baron, when Robin, aided by Little John and Friar Tuck, protects them. The Baron orders the arrest of the outlaws, but they resist, and in a general melée escape, Maid Marian accepting service with the Baroness to protect the orphans. In scene two, The Baron's Nursery, the ruffians agree to abduct and murder the children, but they are prevented by the intervention of Coppem and Cuffem, two agile policemen whose leaps and flights recall the days of the Grecian Theatre, and the name they own. Next comes a very fine scene of Sherwood Forest, where Robin Hood and his "merrie men" in brilliant costumes, as well as a crowd of Zingari, indulge in pastimes, dances, and songs, and, later, waylay the wicked Sheriff, who is proceeding to London with the King's taxes. Badastheymakem having promised to pay ransom, and restore Robin to his rank as Earl of Huntingdon, is released, but when he reaches Nottingham immediately seizes Robin's ambassadors, and tries them in The Baron's Court House, an uproarious scene in which recent judicial blunders are not forgotten. Robin, warned of the Baron's treachery, releases the prisoners, and plots fresh vengeance against the Baron. The babes are abducted, and we find them in the Goblin Wood, asking mercy at the hands of the wrestlers, who, disagreeing on the subject of infanticide, decide the question in a single combat on startling principles, while the babes escape to wander aimlessly until they are seen by some humane Dicky Birds. The Home of the Dicky Birds is a brilliant scene, in which occurs a ballet of birds of brightest plumage. Meanwhile the Babes, after sleeping under the leaves, awake to find a fairy repast and a rescue party headed by Robin Hood and Nurse Marian. The bold outlaw plans an attack on the Baron's Castle, and we are introduced to the Baron's Bedchamber, an uproarious scene in which the Sheriff, having been out to a "teetotal banquet," has bad dreams. Henceforth, the Babes become the charge of Marian and Robin, whose nuptials are celebrated in a glittering scene of cut glass and electric lights with a procession illustrating "The Sports and Pastimes of Old England." Specialities are imported into this scene, and the costumes by Clarkson are very striking. Then comes the gorgeous transformation scene, where Mr Elliston as clown leads a capital harlequinade troupe through two scenes of hearty laughable fooling, specially prepared under Mr George Davey's direction for his juvenile patrons. In the Comical County School Scene the ruffians appear in the guise of "Pushive Resisters," and plenty of topical, local, and political allusions are introduced by the answers to questions asked of the scholars. The task of providing the fun is divided amongst several comedians, the most prominent being Mr George Mozart and Mr Tom Craven as the Baron's family ruffians, Peter and Roger. Mr Mozart's quaint humour finds full scope, and he works unceasingly in his successful efforts to evoke merriment. He also introduces his imitations of individuals who are seen at a race meeting, and his amusing performance is greatly appreciated. Mr Tom Craven supplies an admirable contrast as the more hardened of the two ruffians, and, indeed, he is responsible for a very clever character sketch. Possessing a keen sense of humour his part in the comic scenes is throughout an important one, and his performance contributes largely to the success of the production. His various disguises are ingenious and comical. In the pretty Woodland scene the burlesque fight between the villains who have fallen out concerning the fate of the babes is cleverly managed and causes a great deal of laughter, appealing particularly to the juvenile portion of the audience. Mr George Elliston as Potbaby portrays this rôle with broadly humorous effects, and Mr Jack Collinson as the Wicked Baron is also very amusing. The Brothers Conquest are seen to advantage as Coppem and Cuffem, special constables. Their trapdoor business is applauded, and their activity and alertness are conspicuous. Miss Julia Kent as Robin Hood displays all the spirit and vivacity which the part of the hero of the story demands. Her singing and dancing are quite up to the mark; and without being unduly obtrusive, she is always in the picture. Another praiseworthy performance is the Maid Marian of Miss Tots Davis, who quickly finds favour with the audience. Miss Maggie Stewart as Dolly, a sad flirt, looks very nice, and plays the part with appropriate coquettishness. Master Dick and Miss Dorothy as the Babes act with refinement and care, and the young lady sings in good style. Miss Selina Seaforth scores as the Baroness, and Miss Ivy Dawn as Queen of the Birds sings "Eyes of Blue" with charming effect. Good work is done by Mr Hal Collier as Friar Tuck, Mr Tom Payne as Allan-a-Dale, Miss Ray Rosenthal as Little John, and Miss May Howard as Will Scarlet. In the Grand Hall scene Mr Pat Doherty, "The Irish M.P.," gives a song and dance with much success, and other specialities are contributed by Devereux and his intelligent dogs, Miss Pauline Rivers, Miss Jessie Eplett, the St. Remo Girls, and the Elgin part-singers. Mr W. T. Gliddon has composed the music, which is bright and lively; and every credit is due to Mr Oswald Brand, who is responsible for the production of the pantomime.

Mr Robert Arthur's first Coronet pantomime was presented on Christmas Eve with every symptom of success. It is on the popular subject of Red Riding Hood, and follows the old familiar lines pretty closely, though we learn that Mother Hubbard is Red Riding Hood's grandmother, and that she kept a school till hard times forced her to become a charwoman at the Hall. When it has run a short time and acquired the spontaneity and cohesion only acquired by practise and familiarity with their parts by the artistes concerned, it will make a bold bid for popularity with the best of 'em. No trouble or expense has been spared to make the pantomime a success, and while the children are well catered for with a coherent fairy story and lots of pretty ballets and idyllic scenes, the adults among the audience are well cared for in the shape of songs and dances and topical "wheezes" galore. The scene opens in the village of Poppyland, with a merry chorus and a maypole dance and the advent of Squire Whiffin, the bull bad villain of the piece. The village schoolhouse, with some typical fun and specialities, and a charming set entitled Poppyland Glen, bring us to the second act. This will doubtless be "cut" somewhat, as the five scenes therein set forth cause the pantomime to take somewhat more than its allotted span of time. These scenes consist of Tiffin Hall and Grounds, the Outside and Inside of Dame Hubbard's Cottage, a Country Lane, and the Grand Hall in Tiffin Manor. Squire Whiffin plots with Simple Simon and Peter Piper to abduct Little Red Riding Hood, who is the real heir to the estate which he has misappropriated to his own use, and the wolf, out of sheer wickedness of heart, is willing to assist his plan; but they are thwarted in their fell designs by the good fairy Glowworm. The pair of lovers, Boy Blue and Miss Muffit, and Jack and Jill and Dame Hubbard, fill in their customary places in the plot of the pantomime. The tasteful and elaborate scenery is by W. F. Robson and F. Lyneham, the grand transformation and Winter ballet at the end of act one being particularly pretty and Christmassy, and the Review of Nations is a grand and fitting finale. The music, which is melodiously composed of popular songs and tunes and original themes, arranged with skill and artistic perception, is by Jullien H. Wilson, and Mr H. A. Harrison, the musical director, does good service in the conductor's chair. The electrical effects are by David Marshall and the mechanical effects by C. Sharp, while Miss Maud O'Neil is the ballet mistress. Miss Madge Vincent as Boy Blue is a delightful principal boy, full of ease, spontaneity, grace, and refinement, and immensely popular withal. Her rendering of the inevitable "Bluebell" song evokes loud and sustained applause. "Sweet Marigold" is another pretty song that she sings, and in all her songs, duets, and "business" she proves herself smart, capable, and alert, as well as agreeable to the vision. Miss Valli Valli is a capital principal girl, and her song, "I've lost my Sammy," a clever "take off" on the perennial "Sammy" song, and her imitations of well-known vocalists—of which the best is undoubtedly her copy of Miss Connie Edise—are exceedingly well received, and evoke irresistible encores. Mr Johnny Schofield is always a host in himself, and, though suffering from a severe cold, he is in as humorous a vein as ever, and as Squire Wiffin he is seen quite at his best. His pantomimic action in the song about the unlucky "Jonah" man, "I went round the following morning," is excruciatingly funny, and his recitation, "Woman—the Contradiction," and the song and dance which follow are capitally rendered and delightfully droll. Mr J. J. Dallas is a dear old Dame as Mother Hubbard, and his naturally quaint manner and appearance in the part keep the house in a chronic state of merriment and good humour. His songs, "In his mind" and "However I survive it I don't know," are about the best of the interpolated comic songs, and are admirably rendered by Mr Dallas. Mr Harry Phydora as Peter Piper has two good songs, "The Battersea Brigade" and "The Latest London Betting," and acts with spirit and comic ability throughout, and he is ably assisted by Mr Maitland Marler as Simple Simon. Miss Lilian Pollard as Jack and Miss Dot Harvey as Jill enact their parts to the entire satisfaction of the audience, and sing and dance well; and Miss Helen Rose as Mdlle. Susanne has a chic café chantant ditty, "I'm not such a fool as zat." The Sisters Crisp as the Golliwogs create quite a sensation with their marvellous precocity and ability as exponents of calisthenic exercises. Little Cliff as Rupert of Hentzau scores throughout, and his song "The Drum-Major" and the clever dance which follows is one of the most successful items in the piece. Mr Albert Chapman is most imposing as Lupus, the wolf, and his song "The Wolf" is remarkably well sung. Miss Dora Fraser is a winsome and dainty little Red Riding Hood, and her song and dance, "Go away, Mr Crocodile," is pretty and effective. Mr Fred Zeitz is exceedingly good as the dog, though his make-up is not too realistic, and Miss Ada Fraser with a prettily rendered song, is all that could be desired as the Fairy Glowworm. Miss Dolly Bell and the Eight Rustic Dancers deserve special mention. The skipping-rope dance and the dance of Quakeresses are very pretty and well executed. Portraits of all the principals, and of Mr Robert Arthur, Mr J. D. Newton (the stage-manager), Mr Edward Lytton (the genial and popular manager), and Mr R. Kinney (the treasurer) appear in the book of words. Red Riding Hood is likely to collect a crowd, as Simple Simon would say, at the Coronet for some time to come.

Mr Robert Arthur produced his first pantomime at this fine theatre on Christmas Eve, and scored a great success with it. The production is on a magnificent scale, there is a fine company of artistes engaged, and it is safe to predict that no merrier or brighter show will be found in the metropolis this season. Robinson Crusoe is the theme that is chosen this year, and the book is from the pen of Mr Frank Dix, who follows pretty closely the usual lines of the story. In the first scene we find ourselves at the Port of Hull, a very charming scene, and here we make the acquaintance of Robinson and Polly Pansy; also Will Atkins who is a company promoter, and who seeks to extract from Polly a chart of an island on which there is hidden treasure. We next find ourselves on board the Camden Belle. The scene is laid in the saloon, and then we are transported to the Waste of Waters—a very fine set. Mrs Crusoe and Will Atkins are washed up on a raft, which is fitted with a pillar-box and telephone and also a kitchen stove, all of which are productive of untold merriment. Our next move is to a spot on the coast, where we meet with the Cannibal King, who is passing judgment on Friday. Friday is given one hour's start, and, if he gets clear away, he is to be free, otherwise death is to be the penalty. In the next scene, which is laid on the Island of the Golden Palms, we witness Robinson Crusoe's meeting with Friday. Here we have a fine ballet introduced, in which the Royal Amazon Troupe of dancers give a clever display of their art. A distinctly charming feature of this scene is the Flying Ballet, with which the first part is brought to a conclusion, the electric effects being exceedingly pretty. The opening scene of the second part is laid outside Crusoe's Hut, and after much fun and several songs we see Crusoe attacked by the cannibals. Friday is at hand, and by singing the inevitable "Bill Bailey" he causes the foe to capitulate. The Interior of the Hut is the next scene of importance, and here Crusoe himself finds the hidden treasure. He purchases the island from the King, and builds himself a magnificent palace, which we see pictured in the final scene. In this scene is introduced another ballet, which proves to be a veritable feast of colour. The chief honours undoubtedly fall to Mr Ernest Shand, who is already well known here, and is a prime favourite. As Will Atkins he is admirable, and his endless flow of gags and topical references is most effective. His song, "The Waiter," with all its business, caught on immediately, while his skit on "Palmistry," in which he appears as Professor Beiro, caused shouts of laughter. In fact, whenever Mr Shand was on the stage the house was in fine spirits, for his unflagging energy is quite invigorating. Another good comedian is found in Mr Herbert Darnley, who makes a capital Mrs Crusoe, and takes full advantage of every opportunity to amuse. He joins Mr Shand in several comical bits of business, notably that of the Cigar Shop. It is intensely humorous, and is certainly one of the hits of the pantomime. A dashing and vivacious Crusoe is found in Miss Nellie Cozens, who is admirably suited to the part. Miss Cozens has some excellent numbers, notably "Bluebell," which she scores heavily with early in the performance. "Farewell, my Little Yo-San," is another song which soon caught the fancy of the audience, while "Down at the Old Bull and Bush" was taken up by the "gods," and was a great hit. Crusoe's ladylove, Polly Pansy, is charmingly embodied by Miss Gipsy Woolf, a most attractive young lady, who made a hit with her various songs, and she has a good many of them. Her ditty, "Arizona," with its chorus and cinématographic effects, was loudly applauded. Another pretty song is "Oowana," and it is bound to catch on here. Miss Woolf wears some of the prettiest dresses conceivable, the one worn in the last scene being especially dainty. The Three Sisters Sprightly appear as Tommy Truelove, Nellie Bly, and Princess Viola, and they introduce their screamingly funny skit, "The Drama Out of Date," which causes roars of laughter. Two of these talented young ladies also have a very pretty song and dance, "Don't come running after me." It is a decidedly fetching number. As the Captain and the Mate Messrs Nash and Noel work hard to amuse, and are entirely successful in their efforts. Their catch-phrase, "Have you seen Sarah?" will, undoubtedly, soon be heard all over North London. That well-known comedian and raconteur, Mr G. H. Snazelle, is capital as the Cannibal King. Mr J. O. Stewart appears as the Wee M'Gregor, and is the cause of much hilarity. Messrs F. Le Franc and Sandy Nelson amuse the youngsters very much by their impersonations of the dog and the monkey. It is a pity that they have not more to do, for their performance is decidedly clever. Mr Billy M'Clain scores heavily as Friday; while the Misses Vera and Eveline Valli contribute neatly executed banjo solos and dance well. The augmented orchestra deserve every praise for their meritorious work, and under Mr G. F. Ford's direction they play admirably. The music has been arranged by Messrs J. H. Wilson and Clarence Corri. Mr Herbert Darnley is to be highly complimented on the whole production, which he stage-manages with such skill. The chorus, too, work with great zeal throughout, and their efforts call for the highest praise. Mr Robert Arthur has supervised the production, and he has every reason to be proud of his efforts, for this pantomime is and will be a great success, and Mr Leslie Hughes, the indefatigable and ever-courteous business-manager here, should be busy for many weeks to come endeavouring to find room for all the would-be patrons.

The purpose of pantomime is happily fulfilled at the Pavilion, where the Bank Holiday audience had such a surfeit of fun that before the evening had well ended the shouts of merriment languished from sheer fatigue. Scenic display is nevertheless by no means neglected in the pantomime presented by Mr Frank Macnaghten, and features of novel interest occur in every set. Convention has been thrown to the winds in the case of Alderman Fitzwarren, who, however depraved, has in all ages been regarded as a native of the soil; but he now figures as a Jewish merchant, with a stock of Yiddish colloquialisms, which he exchanges with his compatriot Idle Jack. His emporium in Cheapside is the scene of the most hilarious fun, in which most of the characters participate. It is here that Dick Whittington's love for Alice, the Alderman's daughter—begun in the first scene, Old London en fête—is artfully revealed by the Cook, who furthermore places stolen gold in the lad's pocket, with the result that he is discharged with ignominy. Full opportunity is taken of the scene of Highgate Hill—a fine set—for a maypole dance and a chorus of waggoners, and for the introduction of a beautiful Bell chorus while Dick is asleep with the faithful cat by his side. Obeying the behest of the bells, Jack returns to London, where he is engaged by Captain Kettle for the Saucy Frying Pan, which is about to take a voyage. Upon the deck of this vessel the fun travels apace, for the Alderman and the rest of the characters are on various pretexts on board, a mock bombardment and a fearsome sea-serpent figuring in the comic display. The ship is wrecked, and Jack and his cat are subsequently discovered off the coast of Morocco, on a raft—a fine piece of scenic construction and painting. A quick change is made to The Palm Grove of the Sultan's Palace, wherein an Oriental dance is given by Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers, while in the "A-Ba-Be" Picture Postcards a series of tableaux vivants is presented within a realistic framework. The figures are excellently posed, and the colouring of the background is exquisite. Here also a fight takes place between the Cat and King Rat, some clever trap work being executed. King Rat is eventually disposed of, and Dick, loaded with riches, returns to his native land with Alice, the concluding scene of Whittington's Garden Party being selected for the revels. The pantomime is conducted smartly along by a party of efficient performers, who each in their degree are responsible for its success. A Dick Whittington gallant and bold is found in Mdlle. Du Roche, who has a pleasingly modulated voice and acts and sings with equal facility. As Alice Miss Ella Shields is the personification of dainty grace in her acting, while her deep contralto voice gives effect to many pretty songs, of which "By the light of the moon" is an excellent example. The rôle of Alderman Fitzwarren as played by Mr Jules Jordan is responsible for the major portion of the merriment. His jests in Yiddish may be a little beyond the conception of the Philistine, but they were evidently quite appreciable by the residents of a district in which the Jewish race is well represented. Hearty laughter results from the stolid demeanour with which he utters the grossest malformations of the King's English, and the opening of his mouth is in itself sufficient to cause a roar. Scarcely second in effect is the Idle Jack of Mr W. Harvey, who enters thoroughly into the humour of the part, the fun made by the pair out of the reading of a letter and their eccentric dancing being wildly cheered. The Brothers Lorenzo as Sunny Jim and Bill Bailey do equal service in the cause of fun, and as Bedella, the cook, Mr George Spry is irresistibly comic. The Fairy Queen has a handsome exponent in Miss Sybil Montague, who tastefully sings "Somebody's waiting for me;" and a regal Sultan of Morocco is made by Miss Florence St. Omer. The Sisters Phillips are suitably placed as Lieutenant Bowline and Polly; Miss Florrie Austin has a congenial part in that of Trixie; and the Sisters Belrose indulge in a lively song and dance as the Sultan's attendants. A mainstay of the performance is the Cat, who in the hands as well as the feet of Mr A. Breton becomes a marvel of feline drollery. Mr Luke Dawes is also to be commended as King Rat; and the part of Captain Kettle is rendered with due fire and fervency by Mr Frederick Monti, who sang a topical song with such spirit and feeling as to win many recalls. A merry conclusion is assured by the harlequinade, in which the Clown is Mr Arthur Breton; Pantaloon, Mr George Wayne; Policeman, Mr Arthur Haines; Columbine, Miss Lovett; Harlequin, Mr Luke Dawes; Masher, Mr James Russell; and Landlady, Miss Trixie Cottrell. The pantomime, which is produced by Mr Frederick Baugh, is brimful of fun and variety, and is one of the best the Pavilion stage has seen.

Mr Mulholland has that larger sympathy with boys and girls that must always be such a valuable quality in the composition of a Christmas entertainment. The softer sex of the nursery have always loved Red Riding Hood, and to the "human boy," as Mr Chadband has been pleased to call him, no hero of romance appeals with greater force than Robin Hood. The freedom from restraint, the superiority to all rule, the merry life, the glorious forest fare — to put it into one phrase, the socialism of the thicket — all appeal to the love of chivalry and hatred of tyranny that are implanted in every youthful breast. It was, therefore, a happy thought of Mr Mulholland's to discover that the bold outlaw of Sherwood Forest, the Locksley of "Ivanhoe," is the brother of the little lady of the red cloak. By doing this the necessary variety is introduced into a story that is rather circumscribed in plot; and it is observable that no disturbance of the matrimonial tradition that gives Maid Marian to the irresistible protagonist of the glade has been allowed, for Robin is accompanied by Maid Marian, and Boy Blue's proposal for the hand of Red Riding Hood makes the second pair of lovers—a traditional necessity for pantomime. The wicked baron, whose enormities are readily forgiven, casts the eye of a connoisseur over Maid Marian and tries to force her to wed him. To do this he metaphorically "draws the long bow," a practice that serves him but ill at the conclusion, because Robin, with blunt precision, goes straight to the mark. He also breathes out threatenings and slaughter against Red Riding Hood, and calls to his aid the witch of the wood. Dame Durden is a very artful old girl who actually inveigles the wicked peer into a proposal. In the village of Sleepy Dale in the first act we are introduced to the principal characters. It is a pretty glade this bit of woodland, and quite worthy of its place in a pantomime that is characterised by good taste, chaste dressing, and hearty fun. Boisterous fooling commences early in a droll picnic, which is shared by Dame Durden, Johnny Stout, Johnny Green, and others in the cast; and though there is momentary trepidation at the fate of Red Riding Hood, who is captured by the witch and carried off, there is much consolation for the little ones when they find that her new dwelling place is an enchanted castle in Toyland—a veritable realm of delight, and one that will be a source of continual joy to the children of Hammersmith and Kensington for weeks to come. The darling of the hood is discovered among a number of dolls, and the assemblage naturally gives way to the irresistible impulse to dance, and an excellent ballet results. Little boys are transformed into soldiers and little girls into dancing dolls. Fairy butterflies too flit about the scene, which is one of considerable animation and beauty. In Dame Durden's school there is more excellent fooling, and the story ends up in quite the legitimate way. But we must not forget the glorious spectacle of the Palace, which is a pendant that sets one wondering at the inventive fancy of the scene-painter, so elaborately brilliant is it in colouring and design. Miss Empsie Bowman is an ideal representative of Red Riding Hood, and is as dainty a sprite as ever was seen in a Christmas piece. Her acting, too, is always bright and cheery, and there is just a pretty touch of pathos in her delineation which is very welcome. Miss Isa Bowman, whose favouritism in Hammersmith is founded on her excellent work as Aladdin in last year's annual, makes an ideal hero of Boy Blue, and has plenty of opportunities for displaying her ability. Miss Isa is far too conscientious an actress to slur over the lines of her libretto; but what is more surprising than her excellent acting is her capital dancing and singing. She has a most melodious number in "The Cherokee Girl," which should become one of the hits of the annual, and she joins her sister in a pretty dust, "Stars are beaming." A generous meed of praise must be accorded to Messrs Bennett and Martell for their eccentricities in the parts of Johnny Stout and Johnny Green. The pair are among the best of our English acrobats; but they are something more than this. They have a fine imagination for comic business, and are always alive to the necessity of procuring laughter; and it is due to them to say that they do this without the slightest taint of vulgarity. Miss Hilda Antony, is a fascinating Maid Marian, and a personable and finely set-up representative of Robin Hood is found in Miss Gwladys Elvey, who sings Miss Millie Lindon's song, "Daughters of Eve," with much spirit and entrain. Mr Russell Wallett makes an emphatic hit by his expressive comedy as Dame Durden, and his success is thoroughly deserved, as his gags are never vulgar and have a spontaneity about them that is a passport to the favour of the audience. Mr Wallett's best testimonial is the laughter of the boys and girls, which is continuous whenever he occupies the stage. His song, "Oh, what a happy land is England!" one of the best of the numbers, is enthusiastically encored. Mr Arthur Laceby is quietly amusing as the Baron—a parlous rogue with a genial countenance; Mr Arthur Boyne's buoyant style as Silly Billy Bailey is of considerable service in the school-room scene. Mr Tom Warren is active in his malevolence as the witch of the wood; and Mr Joseph Rowland is an unctuous and genial Friar Tuck. Miss Enid Errol is agreeably prominent as a dancer, and shares the success of a ballet d'action, The Language of Flowers, with the Misses Isa and Empsie Bowman; and the Imperial Troupe show to advantage in the ballets and dances arranged by Miss Ina Alston, who also plays the part of Will Scarlet, in which she makes the most of her slight opportunities. The scenery, to which we have already referred, is from the artistic brush of Mr F. L. Schmitz; the dresses are by Alias and Co. and Mrs Whittaker and assistants; and the music has been composed, selected, and arranged by Messrs Edmond Rickett, C. E. Pritchard, and Fritz B. Hart. The last named gentleman conducts the orchestra, and does wonders in putting life into the concerted numbers. We should mention that Mr C. E. Pritchard has written the special music for the ballet d'action to which we have referred. In the harlequinade, which was not presented on the afternoon of our visit, we find the names of Mr Fred Leoville as clown, Mr Fisher as pantaloon, Miss F. Fly as harlequina. Miss Eleanor Vale as columbine dances delightfully, besides doubling the rôle cleverly with that of Jack. The singing of the Royal Welsh Singers is most acceptable in glees. Mr J. B. Mulholland has given his patrons a pantomime which entertains the children, which is the real raison d'être of such entertainments.

It has been many years since such hearty laughter has been heard between the historic walls of this Marylebone playhouse. In Mr W. Scott Phippa's version of the eminently suitable pantomime story "The Babes in the Wood" Mr William Bailey has indeed secured a book of the old-fashioned sort. It is smartly written, brimming over with quips and cranks, and crammed with popular songs and lively dances. The pantomime is written in two acts, with four scenes in the first and five in the last, followed by a grand transformation scene entitled The Dazzling Realms of Refulgent Light. In scene one the curtain rises on the Village of Blankton, in which a certain Russian nobleman, the Grand Duke Fishinrodanlineski, is appointed to act as guardian to his brothers' two children, Portia and Arthur. Being in an impecunious state, the Squire, of course, plots to remove the two innocent babes who stand between him and wealth. Dame Hubbard is sent by the Squire to fetch the children. At this point enter the two ruffians, Augustus Dab and Sammy Smut. Then the fun becomes fast and furious, and Will Scarlet, Maid Marion, and Robin Hood arrive in time to overhear the scheme hatched by the Squire and the two villains to kidnap the babes. In this scene also appear Horatio, the page; Amelia, the slavey; and Molly Mayflower. Scene three is the Village Schoolroom. Augustus Dab, disguised as an examiner, and Sammy Smut, as a scholar, seize the babes at the first opportunity and hastily depart, much to the chagrin of Robin Hood, who arrives too late to save them. In scene four, The Squire's Castle, much amusement is caused by the two robbers arriving on a motor-car that breaks down. The children are given into the charge of one of the Squire's servants and taken away. Robin Hood, who is accompanied by his merry men, demands their instant release and that of Maid Marion, who is also a prisoner. On the Squire refusing, a battle royal is waged between the two opposing forces, and the castle is eventually stormed and Maid Marion rescued, but the two children cannot be found. After the interval the curtain rises on scene one of the second act, Dame Hubbard's Cottage. A comic love scene between Horatio and Amelia causes much hearty laughter. Then enter the two villains, who abduct Molly Mayflower in mistake for Maid Marion. Scene two, By the River, introduces us to the Babes, who have lost their way, after escaping from the clutches of their wicked uncle. The two ruffians find them, and promise to take them home. Scene three, A Glade in Sherwood Forest, is an extremely pretty set. The robbers enter with the Babes, and Sammy repents. During a most realistic quarrel the children manage to escape, only to fall asleep and be found later on by Robin Hood and Maid Marion. In scene four, The Squire's Picture Gallery, opportunity is found to introduce the "Haunted Scene" act by the Albert and Edmunds Troupe. Then follows scene five, The Squire's Grand Ball-room, where the story is brought to a happy conclusion. Two harder workers than Mr James Albert and Mr Edmund Edmunds it would be impossible to find. Their vitality and energy never flag, and in their Elopement scene and in the fight in the forest they gave the Maryleboners of their very best, and triumphed accordingly. Mr Roy Byford scored as the Wicked Uncle, and Mr Leo Main may be complimented on the absence of the slightest touch of vulgarity in his amusing impersonation of the dame. Very droll was Mr Horace Sade as Dandy Dick; Mr William Wright was genuinely funny as William Foster; and Mr Eugene Cobra displayed energy as the Policeman. Mr Harry Barford fairly revelled in his part, and he greatly enhanced his already marked popularity at this house. Miss Maude Nelson is one of the best principal boys seen here for years. Full of life and go, she became first favourite with the boys in no time by reason of her archness and air of abandon. All her songs were sung in expressive style, and "The Bull and Bush" ditty proved a great hit. Winsome Miss Nita Clavering is as dainty a Maid Marion as anyone could wish to see, and her graceful appearance and excellent singing secured her many enthusiastic admirers. Miss Violet Poole looked bonny and gallant as Will Scarlet, and played with a dashing air. Miss Vinnie Edmunds was delightfully natural as Molly. Miss Jennie Lucas was a pretty and graceful Daisy Dimple. Miss Pollie Albert as Dottie Hubband deserves every praise; and Miss Marie Ault as Amelia was eccentricity itself, both in manner and make-up. Those important characters the Babes were in good hands, Miss Cecile Clare being a supplicating, pathetic little Portia, and Miss Blanche Albert a bold, manly Arthur. In the harlequinade Mr Leo Main was clown, Mr E. Cobra pantaloon, Mr Horace Sade harlequin, and Miss Maggie Kelsey the light-footed Columbine. Sinclair's Excelsior Eight Dancers tripped several lively measures; and the orchestra, under the able direction of Mr Percy Kurutz, worked hard.

Mr F. W. Purcell, in placing his eighth annual pantomime before the patrons of that handsome home of entertainment, the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, has followed the safe and commendable principle that has has guided him from the first. He had provided an entertainment containing a wealth of genuine and hearty fun. Mr Purcell has always taken care that the Christmas entertainment here should be acceptable to all tastes, while not in the least degree lacking in merriment, and thereby catering for the more than ever varied nature of an audience at a period when, for the sake of renewing a reaquaintance with King Pantomime, very many visit a theatre who do not do so at any other time of the year. The pantomime of Cinderella as presented here by arrangement with Mr Fred Karno is written and produced by Mr Walter Summers. A good deal of sprightly music has been composed and arranged by Mr Clement Locknane, musical director. Music is a feature of the production. Those who take part in the ballet join in the singing, so that altogether the chorus numbers some 200 voices, which have evidently been well trained. The old story of "Cinderella" is sufficiently redressed to make it fit in with present-day notions, and it is no exaggeration to say that the audience follow the adventures of the various characters with evident interest. The first scene is the exterior of Harding Up Hall, the residence of the impecunious Baron M'Tavish. The Baron, we learn, is away from home. It is a fine hunting morning. The sun is shining brilliantly, and the bright light imparts the necessary glow and glitter to the costumes of the swell company, who, assembled for the chase, are singing a rousing chorus as the curtain rises. Sally, the Baron's general, enters from the hall, and her businesslike appearance with bucket and brush is so little appreciated by the gay crowd that they prepare to depart. By this time a strange object has been carried in. Attired in ragged black trousers and frock coat and crowned with a battered felt hat it looks what it is supposed to be—a veritable scarecrow, but, after much mysterious business it is found to be alive, and subsequently takes a prominent part in the story as Pepper—an individual who informs the company that he was once known as "handsome Pepper, the hottest thing in town." Poor Pepper, when Cinderella appears on the scene, is retained until the Baron arrives, when, having been treated to a wash and brush-up at the hands of the ladies, he is duly installed as a man-servant, and, prompted by love, remains Cinderella's faithful protector to the end. He has no chance of winning "Cinders," as she is familiarly called, for it is a case of love at first sight between her and Prince Alexis, who arrives with certain attendants. According to old reading of the story the Prince does not let his newly found love know at once the real dignity of his station, arranging that his valet shall play the royal part. The Baron arriving on the scene is invited, together with his family, to attend the Prince's ball. There is the customary bickering with the elder sisters and their determination that Cinderella shall not be present at the festivity. Good fortune, however, in the shape of a witch, who arrives during a subsequent scene, favours Cinderella, for a crowd of thoughtless young people wishing to throw the old woman into a pond, Cinderella and Pepper succeed in rescuing her, with the satisfactory result that when, afterwards, while Cinderella is regretting, in the solitude of the kitchen, her inability to accompany her father and sisters to the ball, the witch, according to tradition, provides her with all the necessary equipment. Arrived at the Palace, Cinderella, in due course, having to run away on the stroke of twelve, leaves one of her crystal slippers behind, and being subsequently able to fit it on, the Prince fulfils his promise to make her his bride, and her prospects are then at their zenith. There is much in the production that is pleasing to the eye. The scenery by Messrs Hart, Ryan, Lee, and Hall must be specially mentioned, and also the beautiful costumes, designed by Howell Russell and Mons. Edell, and executed by Alias and Miss Marie Cawdery; while, of course, the dances, as arranged by Miss Dollie Bell, add to the general fascination. Then there is George Kirby's wonderful flying ballet, during which two of the ladies float gracefully from the stage far above the heads of occupants of stalls and pit and return to their places, "settling down" as lightly as birds upon the wing. This feat is performed more than once, to the intense interest and delight of the onlookers. There is also something of the flying ballet element about the angel that visits Cinderella and the two little girls in the Baron's Kitchen, and leaves toys and other joys for the little creatures who have been overlooked by Santa Claus. Some incidental fun is provided by the Canadian Comedy Four, who appear as Ye Olde Christmas Waites. Some graceful dancing of a special character by Miss Alma Mary and the Olive Trio is thoroughly to the taste of the audience. All possible praise is due to individual members of the large company appearing in the pantomime, for they seem to vie with each other to impart the necessary amount of go to the performance. Miss Winifred Hare as Prince Alexis succeeds in getting on the best of terms with the audience, and her singing is certainly most pleasing. She has a clear voice and knows how to use it. Miss Lilian Lea as Dandini, the Prince's valet, is pleasantly perky, and she sings "The smartest boy in town" in a vivacious style which quite takes the fancy. Miss Ruby Pond as Flora, the goddess of flowers, also sings with taste. Miss Godwynne Earle in the title-rôle of Cinderella is remarkably well-suited to the part. She looks pretty even in her kitchen garb and handsome in the costly dresses worn at other times. She dances neatly, and her presence generally is pleasing. Mr Fred Winn and Mr Austin Lenton as the Baron's eldest daughters introduce a good deal of byplay which is funny, and their song, in reference to their matrimonial prospects, "It's going to come off in the morning" takes well. Miss Muriel Palmer is the very soul of mirth and activity as the Baron's domestic, Sally Whittle. Maudie Francis sings a song about a lost doll, which greatly interests the juveniles and secures the admiration of the adults. Mr Neil Kenyon is a decided success as Baron M'Tavish. His sentences are full of big words, which he rolls off his tongue with an ease creditable alike to his memory and fluency of language, and his little anecdotes, mainly in support of his constant assertion that he is real Scotch, seem to tickle the fancy of the male adults. A feature of the performance is the excellent representation of the part of Pepper by Mr William Gourlay. Entering first as a scarecrow, his final appearance is in the gorgeous garb of a glorified flunkey, and his versatility of style is in keeping with his fluctuating attire, while throughout he is an almost ceaseless source of amusement. His topical song, in which he refers to the unemployed, the aliens, and the war, is well received. An amusing couple are Messrs Fletch and Palmer as Reginald Fearless and Bill the Bounder, the broker's men in possession at Harding Up Hall. As a specimen of strong contrasts they are striking characters. Mr Fred Whittaker as the Baron's Cat secures a large share of well-deserved applause. Mr Tom Blacklock is stage-manager, and Mr H. Ravensburg is his assistant.

The pantomime at the Marlborough Theatre this year is a model of all that an "annual" should be. What pleased us most at the performance on Boxing Day was the admirable manner in which Aladdin had been rehearsed. From the smoothness and completeness of the presentation, one might have imagined that it had been played for weeks. Every artist had his or her lines "letter-perfect," every bit of business was done with the confidence and accuracy which are the result of practice, and all the mechanical effects worked wonderfully well. In each department Aladdin is excellent. Mr Hickory Wood's book is just what is required—bright, smart, and not over-loaded with dialogue; the mounting is pretty without being burdensome; and the stage is frequently filled by very pretty choristers in the daintiest dresses.

Little chance for entire novelty of treatment is given to the librettist of a pantomime. There must needs be the same story, the telling of which is divided into a number of scenes, most of which are "traditional." The modern Christmas annual resolves itself chiefly into a question of artists and general arrangement, and in these two particulars Aladdin at the Marlborough is "immense." The comedians are capital. Mr Harry Tate, one of our most artistic humourists, has a great deal to do and does it all extremely well. The astute Abanazar is supposed to assume a series of disguises—a fact which finds excuse for Mr Tate's appearance as Mr R. G. Knowles, Mr Harry Lauder, and other shining lights of the variety world. To see Mr Tate playing a game of hookey, assisted (?) by a stolid and unsympathetic "caddie," is to be irresistibly moved to laughter; and his "motor-car" business is as comically absurd as of old. What we particularly admire in this is his assumption of the aristocratic tone and manner, and the absolute unconsciousness of his acting—for acting it is, and of a high comedy class. Mr Tate's imitation of Mr Harry Lauder singing "Stop yer ticklin', Jock!" is most artistic, and his mimicry of Mr R. G. Knowles, applied to the character of the Grand Vizier, is productive of the most diverting results. Screams of laughter are evoked by the "funniments" of Rich and Rich, who as the two Policemen introduce a plentiful amount of practical drollery and quaint "quips and cranks," their topical duet taking extremely well; and Mr W. Fullbrook as Lip Tung Tee has his full share of merriment-creating episodes. Mr J. W. Wilkinson does well as the Emperor of China, and Mr George Brooks's Widow Twankey is "screamingly" funny. He plays the part in a demure and natural manner, and his appearance in a low-necked evening-dress is exquisite. He dances in first-rate style, and altogether scores one of the successes of the production. Miss Simeta Marsden is a handsome and dashing Aladdin. She has a good voice and style, and sings "Blue-Bell" in a manner which brings down the house. Miss Nancy Langtyre is a charming Princess Badrouldbadour, and Miss Vera Marshall makes a pleasing Pekoe. Miss Lizzie Daniels being clever and bright as Nicee and singing agreeably. Miss Maisie Crichton is a delightful representative of the Genii of the Ring, and the part of the Genii of the Lamp has an agreeable exponent in Miss Aubrey Ashton. The general production, under the direction of Mr J. F. Elliston, can hardly be over-praised. Messrs T. F. Dunn, T. E. Ryan, Stanley Schuler, and James A. Hicks have painted some artistic and appropriate "sets;" and the very becoming costumes have been cleverly designed by Messrs Howell Russell and Robert Crafter. An important item is a scene in a restaurant in the second part of the pantomime. In this, Messrs Rich and Rich, Mr Brooks, and Mr Tate have full scope for their respective gifts, and take liberal advantage of their "chances." The scene is received with uproarious laughter; and, after it, Charlene and Charlene appear. The gentleman juggles adroitly, especially with a hat, a fiddle, and a bow, and the lady wields the xylophone hammers with a fury and facility which bring down the house in wild excitement. Miss Lottie Stone has arranged the dances with her usual skill; and Mr Ian Lloyd-Mackenzie's stage-management is as excellent as is Mr William Closs's composition and arrangement of the music. Aladdin has been received with rapturous plaudits; indeed, we have seldom seen a brighter, smarter, or better rehearsed "annual." It should certainly have a very prosperous run at Mr F. W. Purcell's pretty playhouse.

"PUSS IN BOOTS" at the ELEPHANT.

Pantomime, by Ernest Norris,
Produced on Christmas Eve.

An appreciative audience was gathered together on Christmas Eve to witness Mr Ernest E. Norris's first pantomime at this popular suburban theatre, and, judging by the warm welcome bestowed upon all concerned in the production, Puss in Boots is destined to remain in possession of the stage for many weeks to come. The story of the faithful cat donning the magic boots is fashioned upon traditional lines, and opens with the "Home of the Demon Lawyer," where we see a member of a respectable profession scheming and plotting in order to gain wealth and revenge, and in a sequence of brilliant scenes the story is gradually unfolded. Special mention must be made of scene four—"The Butterflies' Bower"—where electrical devices obtain a magnificent effect never before seen at this theatre. In scene six, Toyland, the hearts of the little folk throbbingly palpitate with excitement and delight at witnessing the procession of animated toys and games crowding the stage until it becomes one mass of life and colour, nor should praise be omitted for the last scene, Interior of the Palace, where a beautiful spectacular effect is produced by the intricate evolutions of the silver knights, which evoke prolonged applause. Specialities are introduced into the latter scene by the Comrades Quartette, who are responsible for some really delightful part-singing; Mdlle. Dora gives a skilfully rendered solo on the Cor-Anglais; the Three Sisters Dagmar contribute a cleverly executed song and dance; and Mr Harker Nicholls plays a musical solo on jam-pots. One of the funny hits of the pantomime assuredly is the sextet sung by the comedians, "Through the window," in which they are assisted by several eccentric musical instruments. Mr Norris has engaged a clever company for the pantomime, and all work together with a unanimity that augurs well for success. As Princess Pansy, the daughter of the King and Queen of Upper Tooting, Miss Agnes Paulton contributes a most successful performance. Possessed of a charming presence and a natural vivacious manner, Miss Paulton is an ideal Princess, and thoroughly deserved the applause that greeted her efforts. Her singing of "Honeymoon Hall" is in every way excellent, and the audience would not be satisfied until an encore verse had been given. Miss Kitty Tims makes a handsome and heroic Gilbert, and sings and dances in a happy way that is delightful to the audience. Mr Harry Paulton, jun., and Mr Monkhouse seem to positively revel in the respective parts of Jaunty Joe and Blinky Bill, and their impersonations are intensely humorous. Not for one moment does the fun flag while these two artists occupy the stage, and they are responsible for much genuine and hearty laughter. Mr Harker Nicholls as Marmaduke the Twentieth and Mr Arthur Royce as Queen Caroline do not spare themselves in their efforts to amuse, and add their quota of song and dance and comical business. Little Miss Gladys Witton (a great favourite in the pantomime here last year) acts delightfully in the part of Cupid, and in scene six uses her pleasing voice to great advantage in the song "Who would be a Soldier." The Demon Lawyer is fiendishly portrayed by Mr Dudley Hayes, and a word of praise is due to Mr William Stevens for his impersonation of the ferocious Ogre. Mr Arthur White as the Cat displays an agility that is most typical, and his feline-like antics prove very amusing to old and young. Baron Blackfriars is capably presented by Mdlle. Dora, and Little Mary receives a pleasing interpretation at the hands of Miss Constance Calvert. Miss Cassie Stewart is responsible for Lubin and Miss Madge Marlow is effective as Dorcas. The Central Quartet of dancers trip some measures in a charming style. We certainly must not omit to offer our hearty congratulations to Mr Norris for an artistic production. Not only has he organised an admirable company of principals, but he has judiciously selected a pleasing chorus, whose work is thoroughly well done, and whose presence upon the stage makes a handsome picture. Special scenery has been painted by Messrs Jackson, Emden, Hall, and Soames, and sumptuous costumes have been designed by Mr Robert Crafter and executed by Mrs Whelan, Mrs Thornton, and Madame Orleans. The ballet is under the direction of Madame Scott, and Mr L. Tarran is responsible for the beautiful electrical effects. Mr J. Nurnberger has composed and arranged the music for the pantomime, and he deserves every credit for this arduous part of the production. The harlequinade was "cut" on Christmas Eve, but we hope to notice it in detail later. Mr Norris may certainly set down his initial pantomime at the Elephant and Castle Theatre as an unqualified success.

Mr Robert Arthur's first Fulham pantomime must be voted a great success. The story of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" lends itself admirably to picturesque treatment and scenic effect, and moreover, possesses the added attraction of an interesting and coherent story. Mr Robert Arthur has fully availed himself of the chances for scenic beauty and gorgeous costumes, and the production is most elaborate and effective. The story is closely followed, with the usual spectacular embellishments and the harmless, necessary fun of pantomime, as well as several interpolated popular songs. The Cave of the Forty Thieves, with its vista of untold wealth and the grand spectacular scene of the temptation and death of Cassim, is a thing of beauty and a wonder to all pantomime-goers. The Courtyard of the Seraglio, with distant palm-trees waving over a moonlit lake, is a sweetly pretty scene, and the white terrace of the Seraphs, with the Statue ballet and Dance of Flowers, is a triumph of scenic effect. Messrs Stafford Hall and J. Fowler Hogg, who are the scenic artists, are to be congratulated on the thoroughness and artistic perception displayed in their work. The costumes are a credit to Comelli, who designed them, and to Baruch and Co., Elkan Brothers, and Miss Hole, who executed them. The music, which is spirited, tuneful, and appropriate, is by J. O. Shepherd and Jullien H. Wilson, and Mr Harry L. Whittaker ably wields the bâton in the conductor's chair. Mr H. Young deserves favourable mention as the stage manager, and Mr F. Merer is back in his old place as acting-manager. The properties are by G. Corney, and the mechanical effects by A. Whiteley; and Miss Flo Martin is the ballet mistress. No doubt the words "There is nothing on you, Abbas," will often be heard in Fulham this winter, and will always pleasantly remind the hearer of the remarkably clever performance of the donkey, Abbas by name, so wonderfully well presented by Mr A. Felino. Every antic of this ridiculous ass, with its shaggy hair and unkempt appearance, the movement of its eyes, tail, and ears, and its extraordinary nimbleness and exaggerated movements are eagerly watched by the audience, who are convulsed with laughter by its droll gambols. Altogether Mr Felino's presentment of the donkey is quite a feature of the entertainment. Though we have thus singled out this performer, that is not to say that the others are not excellent. Never was seen a smarter Ganem than Miss Nellie Emerald, a more engaging Morgiana than Miss Beatrice Willey, a more handsome, commanding Abdullah than Miss Muriel Seymour Hodges or a droller Ali Baba than Mr Leonard Barry, and all these are ably backed up by the other principals as we shall indicate. Miss Nellie Emerald might well be termed Prince Charming, so delightful a boy does she make as Ganem, and her songs, "Love's like sunshine after rain" and the inevitable "Bluebell," are delightfully rendered in a rich contralto voice of considerable compass. As Morgiana Miss Beatrice Willey looks pretty as a picture and fascinating as a houri, and in her duets and dances she does all that is required of her. Her song, "The Hong-Kong lads," is prettily rendered. Miss Muriel Seymour Hodges is quite awe-inspiring by reason of her inches as Abdallah, Captain of the band of Forty Thieves, were it not for her attractive appearance and winsome smile. As Ali Baba Mr Leonard Barry's easy manner and natural method are invaluable in the comic scenes, and some of his "business" with Mr A. Felino as the egregious ass Abbas supplies many of the funniest incidents in the piece. Mr Will Spray (Cazvini), is an exceedingly droll little comedian, and he keeps the ball of fun rolling right merrily with song and dance and jest, and Mr Harry Herbert as Hamdallah ably seconds his efforts. Their parody on "Bluebell" is apt and amusing, and their "business" throughout well within the bounds of becoming mirth. Mr Eardley Turner as Cogia (Ali Baba's better half), is well in the picture, and he sings "Billy's very good to me" for all it is worth. Mr George Cockburn is most dramatic in the scene of temptation and death in the Robbers' Cave, and Mr R. Howard as Mustapha, a cobbler, is quite satisfactory. Misses Beatrice Saunders, Amy Dudley, Enid Wilde, Frances Oakley, Nellie Harcourt, Maud Everard, and others, form a bevy of beauty as Ali Baba's wives. The Steinway Quartet contribute some capital part-singing, and the Royal Peri Troupe of Oriental dancers do good work. It is noteworthy that there is no good fairy (with song) or second principal girl in this production. Altogether, Mr Robert Arthur has made a propitious start, and deserves every success with his first Fulham pantomime, The Forty Thieves.

"ALADDIN" at KENNINGTON.

Pantomime, Produced on Christmas Eve.

Abanazar	Mr ANDIE CAINE
Emperor Pi-Krust	Mr JOSEPH WILSON
Mrs Twankey	Mr HARRY BRAYNE
Grand Vizier	Mr LYNDEN WYATT
Wi-li / Ber-Ti	The BROTHERS REDMOND
Aladdin	Miss RACHAEL LOWE
Princess So-Shi	Miss GEORGINA MIDDLETON
Pekoe	Miss IRIS BANFIELD
Cheeki	Miss MABEL KERRIDGE
Melinda	Miss WOOLGAR MELLON
Genii of the Lamp	Miss DORIS DEANE
Slave of the Ring	Miss NATALIE GRANT

Amongst the many pantomimes for which Mr Robert Arthur is responsible this Christmas at the numerous theatres under his control, it is pretty certain that none will be more popular than Aladdin, produced on Saturday evening at his beautiful Kennington playhouse. The author of this version of the old story is not given on the programme, but he has concocted an amusing and in some respects original "book," containing an abundance of funny situations and lines, and when the first half of the pantomime, and especially the first scene, has been considerably "cut," there is no doubt Aladdin will prove as successful as its predecessors. After the usual opening chorus we are soon introduced to a prominent fun-maker in the person of Mrs Twankey who is naturally highly indignant with the Grand Vizier for refusing to pay his paltry washing bill, and even threatens to take him before a celebrated Marylebone magistrate, whose fame has evidently travelled as far as Pekin, where the first scene is enacted. She is also naturally proud of her son Aladdin, a smart youth who certainly does his fond parent credit, and who falls in love at first sight with the charming Princess So Shi, the dainty daughter of the Emperor Pi-Krust. For such an offence there is no pardon in Pekin, and it is proclaimed that Aladdin shall be beheaded, but with the aid of his uncle Abanazar, who first appears on the scene in the character of a Jewish cheap Jack, he is allowed to escape in a motor-car. He soon returns, however, in the hope of catching another glance of his princess, and he is not disappointed, but the police are quickly on his track again, and he bids a fond farewell to his doting mother and tearful sweetheart, and makes his exit through the parlour window. Accompanied by his uncle, he reaches the mouth of the cave, and eventually finds himself inside, quickly discovering the magic lamp. Abanazar is, of course, anxious to annex this, and on Aladdin refusing to part with it gives forth a most amusing mock curse. The first part of the pantomime concludes here with a gorgeous Barbaric ballet, the principal dancer executing a graceful and attractive solo. One of the hits of the pantomime should be the ballet which opens the second act, a particularly effective and ingeniously arranged item. A number of Chinese washerwomen are seen at their apparently steaming tubs, from which soon emerge a dozen or so daintily-attired laundry-maids, who merrily trip it till disturbed by their wrathful mistress. The success of the production on Saturday was largely contributed to by Miss Rachel Lowe, a clever and smart little comedienne, who worked exceedingly hard on the opening night, and always with effect, and who made an exceedingly trim, alert, and intelligent hero. Although suffering from a cold, she scored unmistakably in her vocal numbers, her initial song "The Lucky Duck" specially pleasing the audience. Hoppy, the bird in question, did its "quacking" accompaniment with its usual accuracy, and waddled off the stage at the conclusion of the song evidently well pleased with the reception accorded its fair mistress. "What's the use of that, huh?" a humorous ditty, which Miss Lowe sings with much point, and her well-known "Any Rags?" were also amongst her singing successes, and at the finish of the last-named number she was handed across the footlights a lovely white floral cushion, with the title of this original number picked out in violets. She also shared in the success of, perhaps, the prettiest duet of the pantomime, "Honeymoon Hall," a melodious and taking number delightfully rendered by her in association with Miss Georgina Middleton, an engaging and refined representative of Princess So-Shi. The popular "Farewell, my little Yo-san," was also admirably rendered by Miss Middleton, a capable and comely young actress, who is sure to soon become a favourite at Kennington.

O

In the part of Melinda, a Louie Freear-like "slavey" in the employ of Mrs Twankey, Miss Woolgar Mellon contrived to be funny in a not very humorous part, and sang "Mother's Cooking" with considerable success; Miss Mabel Kerridge as Chee-Ki won loud applause for her pleasing song and dance. "Arizona;" Miss Iris Banfield was quite equal to her responsibilities as Pekoe; and Miss Doris Deane (the Genii of the Lamp) is entitled to commendation for her well-executed pas seul. The principal fun-maker of the evening was Mr Harry Brayne, his many funny lines and ludicrous business in the character of Mrs Twankey making him a general favourite with the audience. His song, "Fancy my being a lady," was a humorous number, and his impersonation throughout was exceedingly droll. As Abanazar, the Hebrew uncle of Aladdin, Mr Andie Caine worked hard also in the cause of mirth, his mock curse being very funny, and his singing of a well-written number, "The Latest London Betting," being loudly applauded. Mr Joseph Wilson had little chance to display his abilities in the poor part of the Emperor Pi-Krust; and Mr Lindon Wyatt managed to provoke some hilarity as the Grand Vizier. As a couple of Chinese Policemen, Wi-Li and Ber-ti, the Brothers Redmond scored considerably with cross-talk, amusing business, and dance, their "Willie, come here," interlude especially pleasing. The costumes were effective and tasteful, and the numerous stage pictures were all excellent examples of brush-work.

"GOBLIN OF THE SEA" at the BRITANNIA.

Pantomime, by Brian Daly and John M. East,
Produced on Boxing Day.

The Goblin of the Sea	Mr GEORGE LUPINO
The Fairy Mermaid	Miss INEZ CLOUGH
Spirit of the Sea	Miss LOTTIE BELL
The Demon Fleeterino	Mr LEONARD RUSSELL
Noureddin	Miss GRACIE TAYLOR
Mrs Gasbag	Mr ALF PASSMORE
Hasfiz, Zolida	The Two GRACES
Rosee	Miss DAISY JAMES
Bungus, Biffus, Blue Bell	The Three PHYDORAS
Captain Bargee	Mr TOM WALLACE
King Golliwog	Mr CHARLES JEROME
The Boodle Bird	Mr MELLOWBIRD
King Neptune	Mr GROVES

A crowded house on Boxing afternoon testified its approval of this year's joyous annual at this popular home of pantomime. The story of The Goblin of the Sea starts in the Fine old Crusted Port of Pootoseo, where a very good Hornpipe Ballet is given, followed by the usual introduction of the principal characters, and finishing up with a grand finale, followed by the Interior of the Good Ship Bottom Upwards, wherein the grand comic scene, "In the Bunks," is given, evidently affording great amusement to the audience. In scene three is given an idea of fun—"On Deck"—and a fine Ballet Divertissement, "Little Emigrants," is executed by a well-trained troupe of dancers, the scene finishing with a realistic picture of the storm. Scene four is laid Under the Sea, and scene five reveals Neptune's Realm and Haunt of the Goblin of the Sea—a very effective picture. Here a grand Ballet of Fish proves acceptable, and "Fun out of a Submarine and in a Motor Car" also furnishes an attraction. The first part ends with the Capture of the Goblin of the Sea. The Bathing Place at Mixo-on-Sand, the first scene of the second part is followed by a glittering set, the Jewelled Valley in the Land of Periwinkle, with the descent of the Boodle Bird and a grand finale. The Harem of the Palace immediately precedes the Palace of a Thousand Joys, where, appropriately enough, is given a grand speciality entertainment. The transformation, entitled The Months, a very pretty and well-mounted scene, brings a good entertainment to a satisfactory conclusion. In the comic harlequinade Mr George Lupino (clown), Mr Paul Luping (harlequin), Mr James Brown (pantaloon), Miss Rosie Humphries (columbine) are well placed, and the fun fast and furious runs through two scenes. The cast of the opening includes Mr George Lupino in the title-rôle. His grasp of the character is excellent and his dancing very clever. Miss Daisy James is very successful as Rosee, her acting, vocalisation, and dancing meriting the highest eulogy. She will certainly establish herself a prime favourite here. The Fairy Mermaid finds a capital representative in Miss Inez Clough; and little Miss Lottie Bell does well as the Spirit of the Sea, the child fairy. The Demon Fleeterino gives Mr Leonard Russell many chances for displaying his voice to advantage, and his acting is praiseworthy. Miss Gracie Taylor is quite at home in the part of Noureddin. The Three Phydoras meet with much appreciation in their unique speciality musical turn; the two Messrs Phydora as Bungus and Biffus giving most valuable assistance, and playing their parts in an irresistibly droll manner. Miss Madge Phydora, who was cast for Blue Bell could not, unfortunately, take up her part on the opening day owing to the temporary loss of her voice. As Mrs Gasbag Mr Alf. Passmore creates great hilarity by his clever impersonation; the Two Graces as Hasfig and Zorilda contribute some very artistic and graceful dancing, their dresses being very handsome; Capt. Bargee is made a very important personage by Mr Tom Wallace, who does much to promote the success. The Black King Golliwog is embodied by Mr Charles Jerome in excellent fashion; Mr Mellowbird as the Boodle Bird and Mr Groves as King Neptune are both efficient; and the chorus is good. The specialities by the Arosa Troupe of Dancers gain applause. The dresses are appropriate, and the magnificent scenery by Mr Day Massey, the lyrics by Mr Brian Daly and the properties by Mr Charles Dutton are alike commendable. The whole production is under the direction of that experienced manager, Mr John M. East, who has the advantage of working in conjunction with the enterprising managing-director, Mr Sydney Hyman.

Those who were present at the first performance of the Shakespeare's ninth annual children's fairy pantomime on Monday afternoon certainly could not complain as to either the quality or quantity of the entertainment presented by Mr Humphrey E. Brammall, which ran for over four hours on its initial presentation. Its chief fault, indeed, was its length, which was mainly due to the many specialities introduced, some of which, and also one or two of the vocal numbers, could well be spared. When it has been vigorously cut and some of the principals know their lines better Dick Whittington, always a favourite subject with the "kiddies"—who must have wondered once or twice on Monday what had become of the fortunate apprentice and his feline friend—should prove quite as attractive as its predecessors at Messrs Bennett and Bennett's popular playhouse. When the story is not interrupted by "extras" it follows pretty closely the familiar tale, the author, Mr Wolfe, having, however, introduced at least one new character, Bedella, an unprepossessing but amusing domestic in the household of the Cheapside universal provider, Alderman Fitzwarren. Mr Humphrey E. Brammall, who is responsible for the entire production, has selected an excellent company for its presentation, the part of the hero, Dick, being admirably played by Miss Lily Shaw, a lady with a fine appearance and voice. Amongst her many vocal successes we may mention "Yam-Sam, my little sailor man," "When the band begins to play," and "Have you seen my girl?" and her acting throughout was entirely praiseworthy. A dainty and intelligent interpretation of Alice Fitzwarren was supplied by Miss Ruby Verdi, a clever little vocalist and dancer, who scored heavily in the popular song "Navaho," her accompanying dance being loudly applauded. Miss Gwennie Harcourt made a humorous Bedelia, her many quaint antics and utterances in conjunction with Idle Jack, and also her scene with the Sultan of Morocco, creating hearty laughter; and the numerous other female parts were all satisfactorily undertaken. The comedians of the company all worked hard in the cause of merriment, and the important character of the idle apprentice was quite safe in the hands of Mr Ben Albert, a funny man who gains most of his laughter with little apparent effort. His scene with the Cook, where they study with most unsatisfactory results a Bradshaw, was provocative of the loudest laughter, and his speech on the Fiscal question and his songs "What do you want to talk about it for?" and "My Diary," were really humorous numbers. Mr Will Johnson made a most energetic and entertaining Cook, the comedian having a quaint manner and voice that largely add to the ludicrousness of this frolicsome female. "In a thousand years to come" and "I've had a good day to-day" were ditties that found many admirers in the audience as given by this untiring fun-maker, who thoroughly deserved all the approbation bestowed on his excellent impersonation. Mr Austin Rudd, a popular artiste on the variety stage, apparently had little chance of being funny in the part of Alderman Fitzwarren, but will doubtless work up his part considerably in a day or two. His song "I did, did, did," was one of the most humorous of the pantomime, and he also succeeded in arousing laughter in the scene in his emporium. Mr G. W. Hurst as the Cat imitated with much fidelity and cleverness the actions of "pussy," being a great favourite with the youngsters, and also gave a display of his abilities as a trick cyclist; and the New York Quartet and Condon and Preston also aided largely in the success of the pantomime by their humorous impersonations. Amongst the specialities, nothing gained more favour than the harmonised vocalism of the New York Quartet, who were loudly acclaimed for their many tuneful numbers; and the smart appearance, dainty costumes, and agile and graceful dancing of the Four Papillons won for them loudly expressed approbation. Many pretty and realistic stage pictures were shown, notably Highgate-hill, The Road to Highgate, The Interior of the World's Emporium, and the Sultan's Gardens and Palace, and the costumes of the numerous auxiliaries were exceedingly tasteful.

Congratulation must be given to Messrs Ernest Stevens and J Murray Heriot for the production of their first pantomime, Aladdin, at the Brixton Theatre. The book is written by the experienced Mr Stanley Rogers, who has produced so many successful pantomimes, and he has followed the story very carefully. After the rather mysterious opening we are conducted to the Market-place of Pekin, in which convenient spot the personages attending upon the destinies of the wonderful lamp have been discovered. Here we meet with the most eccentric monarch who ever sat upon the throne of China, also Widow Twankey, the mother of the dashing boy Aladdin. There are also the two comic policemen of the Chinese force, who are responsible for a great deal of fun during the performance, and the wicked, and yet mirth-provoking, magician, Abanazar. The pretty Princess Badroulbadour is not allowed to gaze upon the face of man, but, of course, immediately falls in love with Aladdin as soon as she sees him. There is no need to give a further detail of the story, as it is familiar to everyone. Of the principals, Miss Emmeline Orford makes a sprightly and charming Aladdin, who sings and dances well to the satisfaction of her audience. The Princess is represented by Miss Constance Hamilton, who plays the part very prettily and receives many encores for her songs and dances. Miss Madge Haines as Pekoe is well placed, and sings a pretty coon song, "I'se a-waiting for yer, Josie." There is a capital crowd of comedians. Messrs Walton and Lester command first place with their funny performance of the Chinese Policemen, and their speciality act of the "Mad Sick Kettle" creates much laughter. Mr Edwin Brett runs them very close in the matter of laugh-making, and causes the audience to thoroughly enjoy themselves in his endeavour to obtain possession of the Magic Lamp, and his catch phraze, "What Excitement!" will no doubt be heard all over Brixton in a few days. The same remarks apply to Mr Ted Young in his quaint performance of Aladdin's widowed mother, Mrs Twankey. Mr H. O. Clarey comes out well with his impersonation of Wishee Washee, and so does Mr Somers Bellamy in the part of the Grand Vizier. Of the other leading characters Mr Nat Lewis is very prominent as the Chinese Emperor; his portly appearance stands him in good stead, and he receives hearty applause for his well-rendered song, "Laugh and the world laugh with you." The scenery is by the capable brush of Walter Hann and F. L. Schmitz, who have painted some very pretty and effective sets. The Enchanted Cave is particularly striking, and The Flying Palace, The Rose Gardens of Pekin, and Aladdin's Egyptian Palace are also notable. From start to finish the pantomime goes well, and the audience is kept in the best of good humour to the fall of the curtain. Of course, there is abundance of songs and dances, and the ever-popular "Bluebell" is prettily sung by Miss Emmeline Orford. The Princess also gives us a couple of good coon songs and dances. Mr Ted Young has a capital song in "Mashing the Policeman." There is also a good topical song, "The Talk of the Town." The book if full of local references and topical allusions, which met with much favour at the hands of a crowded house. The music, which has been specially written for the piece by Mr Frank Bradsell, is well rendered by an augmented orchestra, under the capable direction of the composer. Owing to the length of the pantomime there was no time to give the old-fashioned harlequinade at the first performance; but no doubt this will be done in the course of the week, and when the blue pencil has been judiciously used and the comedians have worked up their individual parts Aladdin will rank with the most successful pantomimes ever produced in Brixton. The chorus, which is both pretty and strong, do their share of the work very well, and Mr R. W. Allum, the courteous assistant manager, studies the comfort of his audience in every respect.

The proprietors of this popular place of amusement are to be complimented upon a most successful inaugural performance of their pantomime—a very fine production in all respects. The familiar story of Cinderella's many vicissitudes has been cleverly adapted by the author of the "book," and whilst there are some modifications of the story as one remembers it, they are in no wise detrimental to the main theme. The pantomime is divided into two parts. Part one opens with a very animated scene, the Fairy Abode of the Crystal Shoe, and here we are shown how the crystal slipper was restored. Scene two represents an English Village in the Olden Time, and here takes place the arrival of the coach with the baron and his daughter. The third scene takes place in a Room in the Prince's Palace, where the guests meet during Leap year and witness its results, but too many candidates spoil the situation, but they find vocal relief. Scene four is laid in the Woods, wherein is depicted the meeting of Cinderella and the gallant Prince. The fifth scene reveals the Exterior of the Castle. Scene six, the Baron's Kitchen, indicates some troublesome times, and Stoney and Ginger, the broker's men, afford amusement. A Royal invitation sets the Baron and his two ugly daughters aglow with excitement, but poor little Cinderella is left out. Peter declares his plebeian passion for her, and she is cheered by a welcome visit from the Fairy Godmother, and Cinderella, the despised drudge, goes to the ball in a magnificent carriage, drawn by four horses. Part two begins with the eighth scene, the Exterior of the Castle again, and scene nine shows the magnificently appointed Ballroom. Amongst the guests are the Baron's daughters, Charlotte and Jane, full of hope of a conquest of the Prince, who mourns the absence of his unknown love (Cinderella). Cinderella, however, arrives in time for the dance, and takes part in the gavotte. The story proceeds in the old sweet way, until scene ten, the Tradesmen's Entrance to the Baron's Mansion, where Peter receives poor Cinderella, now in her rags again. In scene twelve, the Grand Hall in the Prince's Palace, the Prince receives his unknown bride, thanks to the aid given by the watchful Fairy Godmother, and Cinderella's identity being established by the missing shoe, the Prince and his sweetheart are happily united. The Ugly Sisters also find consolation. The pantomime finishes with a grand finale. There is no transformation scene or harlequinade, but, taken as a whole, a most excellent entertainment will be found, one which is certain to attract large and appreciative audiences for many weeks to come. The combination of first-class artists, the costly mounting, costumes, and properties, ballets and splendid scenery combine to make this year's Peckham annual one of the best Christmas productions put forward here since the opening of the theatre seven years ago. The title-rôle is most bewitchingly played by Miss Alice Lloyd, a bright, clever actress, who is heard to great advantage in the songs "Pennies," "Poor Cinderella," and (with Peter) the duet "Here we are, two dolls for sale," with a fine representation of the boy and girl dolls, and a marionette dance. The love duet with the Prince, "Sing me to Sleep," was also acceptably rendered. Miss Lloyd proves herself a captivating and dainty dancer, and is a most natural exponent of the heroine of the hearth. As the Prince, Miss May Mars well deserves unstinted praise. Endowed with a fine appearance, voice and ability, this lady must become another favourite with Peckhamites. Her songs were well received, especially "Barney come home once more," rendered with true Irish vivacity. The song "Good-bye little girl good-bye," was delightful, and will become popular. Miss Mars is also a graceful dancer. As Baron Buckshot, Mr Jake Friedman displayed talent in a remarkable degree in facial expression as well as "grasp" of the requirements of the character entrusted to him. A cleverly conceived portrayal of Beauty (the ape) by Mr Edward Sillward gained much applause. Miss Rose Hamilton merits eulogy for her dashing impersonation of Dandini, and she worked hard to make the Prince's "tiger" stand out prominently in a crowd of gifted artistes in this capital pantomime. Success crowned her efforts as vocalist and dancer, her topical song "The Smartest Boy on Earth" being given with great gusto. The sprite, Snagfang, was excellently depicted by Mr Arthur Lawrence, and his baritone voice was used with gratifying results, particularly in "The Wonders of the Deep." Miss Zillah Price, a handsome lady of commanding presence, as the Fairy Godmother delivered her lines well. As the Custodian of the Silver Slipper (Chrystollis) Miss Gladys Harvey was well chosen. Peter, the Baron's page, gives many chances to Mr W. T. Thompson to make a series of "Hits," and his cleverness in song, dance, and comedy was evident whenever he appeared. Mr Dan Crawley as Charlotte did particularly well, scoring heavily with his songs. As Jane, the other ugly sister, Mr Charles Sloman met with great success. The Brothers Ethairien made much of the characters of Ginger and Stoney. Miss Katie Bell looked smart and proved equal to the rôle of Lord Gadfly. The like remark applies to Miss Flossie Bell as Lady Mildred, and Miss Maude Champion's attractive personality as Beaujolais, a gentleman of fashion, gained her many admirers. Useful help was contributed by the Misses J. Williams as Caramel, Jessie Beaumont as Sir Percy Loosecash; Mr Harry Bristow, Landlord (and assistant stage-manager); and Mr Fenwicke, who represented a Cabman in a capable manner. Amongst the many special attractions the gifted Doreen Girls merit commendation, and the Lyric Quartet are worthy of the highest praise. The music, composed, arranged, and selected by Mr Henry Sprake, quite sustained his reputation, and the orchestra, under his direction, did full justice to it. Mr Grimani is responsible for the elaborate scenery. The mechanical effects were provided by Mr Edward Wade, the properties by Mr Fred Chappell, and the limelight and electrical effects by Mr Paul Sheridan. The ballets arranged by Paul Valentine reflect great credit upon him, and the coryphées are far above the average as regards attractive appearance and ability. The whole of the tasteful costumes set off a first-class production. Mr Fred Boustead, the stage-manager, discharged his heavy responsibilities most efficiently. Mr Cecil Paget, the resident-manager, was busy as usual looking after the house in his well-known capable and courteous manner, being loyally supported by his assistant acting-manager, Mr H. J. Brett.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" at NEW-CROSS.

Pantomime, by William Wade,
Produced on Boxing Day.

Dick Whittington	Miss CARLOTTA LEVEY
The Cat	Mr JOHNNY FULLER
Alderman Fitzwarren	Mr HARRY KILBURN
Alice Fitzwarren	Miss MAUDE NOEL
Jack Idle	Mr HARRY ROGERSON
Martha Mixit	Mr ERNEST REES

King Cat	Miss WINNIE CHANNING
Hafiz	Miss RUTH GROSVENOR
Abdul	Miss MAUDE DAVIS

Produced under the able direction of Messrs Frederick Mouillot and Frederick Stanhope, the pantomime of Dick Whittington is as bright and merry a Christmas piece as one could wish to see. The familiar story of the young apprentice is faithfully illustrated in twelve scenes, and the youthful critic is not confused by those complications which arise when two or three nursery tales are blended together. The youngest playgoer can without difficulty follow the adventures of Dick, from the time that he makes his appearance in Old Cheapside until he attains the height of his ambition and becomes Lord Mayor of London. We renew acquaintance with the leading features of a story that has always been one of the most popular in the juvenile library. The cruel accusation of robbing his employer, Alderman Fitzwarren, with whose pretty daughter he is in love; his departure from London by way of Highgate-hill, accompanied by his faithful feline friend; his falling asleep and being aroused by the sound of Bow bells, while the elfs and fairies, bedecked with evergreens, dance merrily in the moonlight—all these incidents are faithfully depicted, and later we get a glance of Morocco, where Dick makes his fortune by ridding, by means of his cat, the Emperor's palace of the terrible plague of rats. Once more in England, we find ourselves present at Lord Mayor Whittington's fête at the Guildhall, a spectacle of great brilliance, with its wonderful procession of nations in typical dress. This concluding scene evokes loud applause, as well it may, for it is a fitting finish to a series of striking stage pictures. A truly excellent pantomime company has been engaged to represent the several personages who figure in the old story. The hero himself has a remarkably handsome representative in Miss Carlotta Levey. Tall and commanding, this young fellow not only looks quite capable of making his way in the world, but he has such a pleasant manner and charming smile that he is likely to make good friends everywhere. Miss Levey scores both as actress and vocalist. She opens with "Don't judge a man by the coat he wears," and she puts plenty of spirit into her rendering of "The Gambling Man." Later this accomplished comedienne does ample justice to the popular "Bluebell" ditty, without which no pantomime would be considered complete, the audience taking up the chorus with much heartiness. Miss Maude Noel is a very dainty and graceful exponent of Alice Fitzwarren, singing and dancing with much charm. Miss Jenny Edgar is an attractive Princess, and Miss Ruth Grosvenor is a smart and clever Hafiz. Mr Johnny Fuller is one of the successes of the evening as the Cat. Mr Harry Kilburn is very amusing as Fitzwarren, and sings "Stop your tickling, Jock," in good style. Mr Harry Rogerson makes a decided hit as Idle Jack; his impersonation of Sousa is very funny, while his singing of "The Monstrosity" and eccentric dance are loudly applauded. Mr Ernest Rees is a warm favourite as Martha Mixit, and sings "Robinson Crusoe" and "On a cold and frosty night" with capital effect. Messrs Foreman and Fannan as Taffrail and Bobstay contribute a bright little entertainment of their own. Their patter is funny without being vulgar, and they cause much laughter by their antics with a mechanical horse which suddenly collapses and throws the rider off. Tiller's Troupe of dancers do their work exceedingly well, and meet with well-deserved success. They are the principals in the pretty ballet which takes place on Highgate-hill. Kelly and Gillette are remarkably clever in the speciality which they introduce in the tenth scene. The management deserves to be heartily congratulated on another unqualified success.

IMMORTALS.

Spirit of Avarice	Mr FRED FENTON
Fairy Sesame	Miss ALYS EDEN

The ninth annual pantomime at the Stratford Borough Theatre was produced on Boxing Day at a matinée performance, and was received with the utmost enthusiasm by a packed house. The Forty Thieves is a subject which easily lends itself to gorgeous treatment in the way of dresses and mounting, and as expense has apparently been a secondary object in Mr Fred Fredericks's latest Christmas production, he is entitled to every congratulation on the happy results attained. The "book" adheres quite closely to the familiar fairy tale, the story opening in the Market-place of Rampur. The very elaborate scenery was warmly eulogised at the opening performance, the scenes calling for special commendation being the Mountain Gorge, the Cave, a weird and wonderfully effective set with its peculiar lighting effects, and Ali Baba's gorgeous Palace, all of these scenes being by Mr George Dodson. Although the pantomime contains no speciality acts, lovers of the spectacular will find a most efficient substitute in the brilliant succession of marches and concerted numbers. The juveniles, as well as their elders, will have plenty to exercise their risible faculties in the abundance of genuine comedy business which pervades the pantomime. In once again securing the services of Miss Claire Romaine as principal boy the management are to be congratulated. In her hands Ganem is the central figure of the story, her bright, buoyant style and charming personality carrying all before them. Her songs, of which "Pennies" is perhaps the most popular, go wonderfully well, and she also shares the success of a burlesque duet, "Prophets," with Mr Nat Clifford. It is one of the "tit-bits" of the performance. Mr Nat Clifford has become quite an established favourite with Stratfordians, and his popularity is not likely to wane at present. As Ali Baba he comes in for the lion's share of the work, and his volatile humour, ready resource, his odd methods and eccentric dancing, gain him terrific applause. He has a most amusing style of singing "Just like the ivy," the first line of one of last pantomime's popular airs, at most incongruous moments. This always provokes laughter, and his conversation with an imaginary "Lizzie" in the gallery creates plenty of mirth. Mr Dan Paulton plays Cassim with an unctuous humour which is highly suitable, and he has some capital songs. Mr Kennedy Allen is a very nimble and alert Hassarac, making the part quite an outstanding feature, and his song, "Born with a silver spoon," wins some of the heartiest applause heard, besides which he is an exceedingly good dancer, his saltatory efforts being keenly enjoyed. Mr Allan Wye, who makes a stalwart and sturdy dame, proves himself a most capable comedian, and his song, "Canoodling," is decidedly good. Quite a prominent part is taken by the donkey "Ibrayhim," and a funnier assinine performance than that contributed by Mr R. Saker-Harlow could not be desired, the droll donkey's extremely funny antics simply convulsing the audience. Miss Rosie Sylvester is a very sweet and lovable Morgiana. She sings, too, delightfully, the invitation expressed in her song, "Who'll be Johnny number two?" being eagerly responded to; and she is also associated with Miss Claire Romaine in a very charming love duet, which does not fail to win encore verses. Miss Vere Gerald's fine stage appearance fits her admirably for the part of Abdallah, and she sings a patriotic song with telling effect. Miss Muriel Vox plays charmingly as Zoe, and renders a coon song very acceptably. Miss Daisy Webb contributes a pleasing performance as Fatima, and her coquettish rendering of "Sammy," with the help of a confederate in one of the boxes, fairly brings down the house. Miss Ethel Ashton, the principal dancer, gives an expert display of her prowess, her graceful, agile, and supple movements being greatly admired, and in conjunction with Mr Kennedy Allen contributes a quaint novelty duet, which evokes vociferous applause. The four lieutenants have smart and dashing representatives in Miss Violet Rendel, Miss Nora O'Connor, Miss Emily Telford, and Miss Flossie Telford. Saladin and Lallah have graceful exponents in Miss May Harry-Nash and Miss Ethel Harry-Nash; Miss Maud Russell is a charming Badoura; the Spirit of Avarice is well played by Mr Fred Fenton; and Miss Alys Eden is exceedingly good as the Fairy Sesame. The melodious and very appropriate music is composed, selected, and arranged by Mr Ben Barrow. For the fourth year in succession Mr Arthur Linforth stage manages, and that the initial performance went off without a hitch of any kind is striking tribute to his ability. With the urbane and experienced Mr Frank Rothsay "in front" nothing is left undone to conduce to the comfort of the audience; and they by their energetic calls for Mr Fred Fredericks, who "produced," testify to their appreciation of his efforts to cater for their delectation.

Aladdin, which has been the first choice amongst all the leading suburban theatres, was produced here on Monday by Mr Harry Lorreano, under the personal supervision of Mr Arthur Carlton, the courteous and genial proprietor of this very up-to-date theatre. Mr Carlton has had the able assistance of his energetic manager, Mr Fred S. Jennings, while Mr Stephen F. Blythe has written some excellent lyrics and music for the pantomime. The plot runs, of course, on the old lines. The scenery is the work of Mr Charles Phillips, the spectacular effects are admirable, and no effort has been spared to render the whole show as effective as possible. Some of the lighting effects are singularly striking. Miss Jennie Richards is a fascinating and pleasing Aladdin, acting with grace and vivacity, and possessing also a charming voice, which she uses with effect. Miss Hettie Gale is a winsome Princess Badroulbadour. Mr Allen Thomas appears as the Emperor of China, and Mr Frank Bertram as Abanazar is intensely funny, being a comedian of infinite resource. The scene in which a programme boy in the pit continually interrupts him while telling a story is extremely amusing. Mr Jack Cromo as the Widow Twankey is very good. Mr Cecil Clayton as Wishee Washee puts in some smart business, which is thoroughly appreciated, dancing, singing, and acting with remarable zest. Miss Lallah Davis is charming as Pekoe, and is applauded for her excellent singing. The Misses Elsie Sargent and Ida Heron also deserve praise. Miss Amy Bellwood in the part of Ny Cee wins well-merited applause for a charmingly rendered song, and Miss V. Varcoe makes a rollicking second boy as Hyson. Great credit is due to Mr Harry Lorreano, the stage-manager, for the assiduous manner in which he has worked. Mr Arthur Carlton has produced his first pantomime in Ealing, and the popular verdict is "Excellent."

Christmas Eve saw the presentation of Mr Clarence Sounes's fifth annual pantomime, which, produced under the personal direction of Mr Sounes, with the able assistance of Mr C. E. Paton, certainly reaches, and indeed surpasses, the high standard of excellence attained by former productions at this theatre. The book, by Mr J. Hickory Wood, is written partly in neat, crisp prose, and partly in the familiar rhymed couplet, while the plot is of quite dramatic interest. In scene one, The Garden of Sleep, a really beautiful front cloth from the brush of Mr J. D. Dodson, we are introduced to the Sleeping Beauty, who is presently wakened at the instigation of the fairy Prosperita and much to the disgust of Rancorous, a demon, by Prince Rupert. The demon swears revenge, and the plot is fairly under weigh. The second scene is the Village of Puddlebridge, the rustic charm of which, with its delightful view of the valley and clever suggestion of distance in the back-cloth, as depicted by Mr Conrad Tritschler, is quite sufficient warranty for the arrival there of all the chief characters in the story. Here is the home of Beauty's father and mother, to whom she is restored by Prince Rupert, her return being the signal for great rejoicings among the whole population of the village, evinced chiefly by animated song and dance. Two charming woodland scenes by Mr R. M'Cleary show the Demon reasserting his power by changing the Prince into a Beast, and bring us to a set called The Rose Garden, which is certainly one of the most brilliant scenes ever put on at this theatre. Beauty eventually gives the Prince the magic kiss, which restores him to his right shape, and all ends as happily as could possibly be hoped for by the youngest member of the audience. Prince Rupert is played by Miss Maude Danks, than whom it would be hard to find anyone more eminently suited to the part, for her fine figure and admirable stage presence, combined with a melodious mezzo-soprano voice, bring her as near as may be to the ideal principal boy. Miss Danks made a great hit with her song "Arizona," and also gave an excellent rendering of the well-known "May Morning." Miss Gladys Huxley as Beauty is one of the sweetest principal girls we have seen for a long while; she has a personal charm of manner and an air of demure roguishness which endear her to all hearts, while her bright singing and sprightly delivery of the lines entrusted to her complete a portrayal as delightful as it is fresh. Miss Huxley's rendering of the "Dove" song was given with true tenderness of expression, while she fairly brought down the house with her song, "Baby Dreams." The rôle of Smart, the Prince's valet, was entrusted to Miss Lilian Stanley, whose dashing and piquant style of acting was admirably in keeping with the part. She is the fortunate possessor of a well-trained voice, which was heard to advantage in a really feeling rendering of "Bluebell," while the spirit and go with which she sang "When the band begins to play" made this one of the most successful numbers of the evening. Trixie, the maid, found a vivacious exponent in Miss Mavis Hope, who played with a most pleasing air of animation and whole-heartedness; her singing of "Navaho" was an instantaneous success, while her duet and dance, "Lulu," with Miss Lilian Stanley was loudly encored. The Fairy Prosperita was impersonated with dignity and grace by Miss Audrey Stafford, whose song, "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie," went well. Mr Edwin Adeler was suitably cast as Samuel Steele, the merchant; he has a fund of dry humour at his command and an inimitably comical way of delivering his lines, while his songs, "Who killed Bill Bailey?" and "Up in Scotland," were received with much laughter. Mr Tom W. Conway was responsible for a richly humorous portrayal of the merchant's wife Martha; he made a great hit with his song, "Oh! yes you did." A droll impersonation of Johnny came from Mr J. Wilkinson, whose unctuous humour and diverting mannerisms had full play, while his singing was really funny. Another much appreciated number was a burlesque Welsh glee song by Messrs Adeler, Conway, and Wilkinson. Mr Charles Darrell as Jimmy and Mr Alf Maynall, who is also partly responsible for the stage-management, as Billy make the most of their lines. Some excellent knockabout turns were supplied by the Brothers Harrison, who, for their general verve and go, their cheerful alacrity, and clever playing up to one another, soon became fast favourites with the house. Mr C. Hinchliff played Rancorous in true demoniacal style, his good voice being heard to considerable advantage in "When love steals out of sight." A notable performance was that of the Beast by Mr R. Lomas, for not only did he do some extremely clever and dangerous-looking acrobatic tricks, but he played in dumb show with an ability indicative of true histrionic power. Miss Emily Taylor gave a tasteful rendering of a pretty song entitled "Go away, Mr Crocodile," and a song and dance, "Daisy," by the Sisters Edwardes was much enjoyed. One of the features of the performance was a serpentine dance by Miss Nellie Harper. Another item which was very successful was the vigorous but dainty dancing of the Stella Troupe of dancers. The chorus was tuneful, hardworking, and intelligent, and the orchestra, under the skilful direction of Herr A. Blome, who was responsible for the arrangement of the music, acquitted itself well. The front of the house was, as usual, in charge of Mr J. Gladwin. Mr Sounes's popular acting-manager also had a considerable hand in the preparation of the pantomime.

Mr Peter Davey, the enterprising manager of the Kingston Theatre, produced his eighth Christmas pantomime at that cosy little playhouse on Boxing Night, and may be congratulated upon having achieved a decided success artistically, and one that promises to be a financial success also, judging from the crowded state of the house at each of the performances during the week. The pantomime is full of life and colour, and rattles along through its seven scenes with a fine swing, thanks to very careful preliminary rehearsals, so that there is scarcely a dull moment during the three hours it claims attention. In the first scene we are introduced to a characteristic Spanish picture of The City or Pandalusia, with a bodega, kept by a young lady named Lola. Donna Dolores finds her way here, and so do her three sons, Sancho, Pancho, and Juan, the latter a very popular youth in the city, especially amongst the female portion of the population. Juan's only heritage is a pussy cat, which accompanies him wherever he goes. King Komilfo is another personage who does not disdain to patronise the humble bodega; but Komilfo is a King without an exchequer, though he has a lovely daughter, the Princess Carita, upon whom rests his hopes of future solvency. Carita and Juan, meeting each other, fall in love, but a marriage between them is, of course, impossible under existing circumstances, so that when his impecunious Majesty offers his daughter's hand in marriage to the gallant who shall rid the country of a wicked ogre who is the terror of the neighbourhood, the prospect tempts the valiant Juan to embark on the dangerous enterprise. The Cat, however, soon sees a way of helping his master, for he meets the fairy Perdita, who promises that if he will only become possessed of a certain pair of leathern boots all things will become easy to him. In Bond-street, Pandalusia, which is the second scene of the pantomime, there is a good deal of fun with the Widow Dolores, who has started a pawnshop to help to keep the wolf from the door. One of her possessions is a pair of top boots, for which his faithful Cat evinces a strange fancy, and buying them for the animal it puts them on, and then discovers that they confer the power of human speech. In the third scene we are introduced to the home of the fairy Perdita, the Silent Pool. Eventually the Cat manfully attacks the Ogre, and succeeds in throwing him over the ramparts on to the rocks below. Juan witnesses the fight, and when the web is cleared away discovers the Ogre's hidden treasure, which the Good Fairy announces is his to make whatever use of he likes. At the Palace of Pandalusia, where his Majesty is found capable of keeping up great state, notwithstanding his depleted coffers, Juan himself arrives, with the fair Princess, now wedded to him, leaning on his arm. The pantomime ends with "The Dream of Louis Wain"—a scene composed of cats' heads—and the reunion of Perdita and Puss in Boots. Many songs, dances, duets, and innumerable jokes are interspersed with this interesting story. Mr Chas. S. Kitts was a capital King Komilfo, and worked like a Trojan to make the show a success. Miss Rhoda Windrum was a charming Princess, and received deserved applause for her singing and dancing. The part of Lola was filled by Miss Lily Gullick with a piquancy that made her a great favourite with all parts of the house. Mr Leonard Thiel was the life and soul of the production as Donna Dolores, his dancing especially causing no end of amusement. Mr J. H. Carson as Sancho, one of the Donna's sons, was successful in adding considerably to the humour of the pantomime, and in this he was ably assisted by Mr Arthur Somers, who played Pancho. Miss Nellie Willing was an engaging Juan, singing and dancing with much acceptance, and Miss Ida Lawrence made an attractive Perdita, whilst Miss Ethel Thorne won encomiums for her graceful dancing. Mr. Geo. Danvers, jun., was a great success as the Cat, and a black bull that figured largely in the pantomime was represented by Messrs Eugene and Willie, who also gave an exhibition of acrobatic fiddling in the final scene that was very clever. The chorus were admirably trained. The pantomime was devised and arranged by Mr Peter Davey, and was produced by him with the valued assistance of Mr. Chas. S. Kitts. Mrs Peter Davey again had the superintendence of the wardrobe, and deserves congratulation upon the beauty and effect of the costumes, which were gorgeous. Mr R. Entwistle acted as stage-manager. The lines, lyrics, and concerted pieces were written by Mr H. B. Pinnock; the music was selected with skill by Mr J. H. Russell, the popular chef d'orchestre—that which was new was composed by Mr Corelli Windeatt and Mr L. Hillier; the scenery was painted at the theatre by Mr Geo. Miller, the resident artist, and Mr R. Burriss, assistance being given by Mr R. Springett; and Mr G. C. Nash was the perruquier.

"CINDERELLA at the PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

Pantomime, by George Dance, Produced on Boxing Day.

Baron Broadacres	Mr VINCENT BOWYER
Bedella	Mr GEO H. LIST
Edna	Mr SAMUEL LYSONS
Buttons	Mr E. W. COLMAN

Weary Willie	Mr ARTHUR BALLARD
Tired Tim	Mr C. STEADMAN
Sunny Jim	Mr GEORGE HEYS
Alphonse	Mr EDWARD JOY
Cinderella	Miss GLADYS GUY

Mr George Dance has provided a Christmas entertainment that is greatly to the taste of Richmond playgoers, if the crowded audiences attending the theatre this week are any criterion. The first half of the programme is made up of a variety show of much excellence, and the last half comprises a dainty little pantomime with Cinderella as the heroine. An innovation made by Mr Dance is that each performance lasts just two hours, two performances being given each night. The first to appear is Mdlle. Emmy with her well-trained pet dogs. Their performance is greeted with applause. The skilfully-executed acrobatic doings by the Five Olracs deserve notice. The admirable pictures by the Vernon Bioscope and the smart singing and dancing of Miss Fifi Gordon complete the first part. In the pantomime performance Mr Vincent Bowyer scores as the wicked Baron, and Mr E. W. Colman as Buttons is alert and never misses an opportunity of adding to the fun. Mr G. H. List and Mr Samuel Lysons as the Ugly Sisters do good work. Miss Jacqueline Blaney as Prince Florizel is well placed, and Miss Gladys Guy is a fascinating Cinderella, also making a hit in a burlesque opera scene, in which she is assisted by Mr E. W. Colman. Miss Florence Plunket is good as Dandini.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 26, the Musical Play, by James T. Tanner, Music by Lionel Monckton, entitled "A COUNTRY GIRL."

At the Dalston Theatre audiences are quite in love with the pretty Devonshire landscape forming the "set" for the first act of A Country Girl, which is being so efficiently played by the members of Mr George Dance's company. The entire performance is certainly most effective and enjoyable; and the warmth and glow of the second scene, the Interior of the Ministry of Fine Arts, where so much fun occurs, is as much appreciated as the first. Miss Maud Harvey in the title-rôle is, as she should be, quite a favourite; and Miss May Glen as Nan—more of a typical rustic lass than Marjory—is another lady who touches the heart of the audience. Miss Beatrice Glynn is a dignified Lady Anchester, and Miss Nina Carlton is a success as Princess Melaneh. Closely associated with her in the course of the story is Mr Raikes (the Rajah of Bhong), a character admirably sustained by Mr St. John Hamund. His rendering of the Rajah's celebrated song proves that that quaint composition is as popular as ever. Mr Cyril Thompson is a dashing Geoffrey Chaloner; Mr H. C. Morton a precise Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr J. Osborne is, in the matter of fun, a veritable host in himself as Barry.

TERRISS THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 26, the Drama, by Walter Melville, in Four Acts, entitled "THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

This interesting drama has been well received by crowded houses. As the Rev. Robert Everton Mr Edwin J. Collins gave a masterly embodiment of the part, and Mr Wingold Lawrence as Jack England was excellent. George Purvis, a countryman, was capably presented by Mr John Wilson. As Molly Vernon Miss Ada Marius was responsible for a clever and forcible delineation. Miss Elaine Vanbrugh played with great charm as Rose Seymour, James Sutton's ward. A highly satisfactory performance was contributed by Miss Marie M'Aulay as Marian Franklyn. There is plenty of comedy in the play. Miss Nellie Brunton proved herself thoroughly at home in the part of Lucy Vere, and succeeded in conjunction with Dick Punch (Mr G. Hammond Asquin) in evoking much laughter. Mr Frank Adair's realistic rendering of Captain Geoffrey Caversham proved most effective. Mr George Ferrers was all that could be desired as Detective Weatherby, and minor parts were all well played.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—Will you permit me to correct errors that appeared in your paper of the 24th inst.? Mrs Centlivre did not write The Gamester, but Edward Moore. The Fool's Revenge was produced on Oct. 18, 1859, not 1889.—Yours faithfully, WILLIAM HOMER. 90, Lower Thames-street, E.C., Dec. 27, 1904.

TOURING IN THE WEST INDIES.

The Shakespearian répertoire and old English comedy company, organised by Mr F. R. Benson, sailed from Bristol on Friday on a three months' tour of the West Indies, playing for a week or more at Kingston, Jamaica, both on the outward and return journey, at Port of Spain, Trinidad, at Bridgetown, Barbados, and at Georgetown, Demerara. Exceptional interest is being taken at all these places in this really remarkable experiment, and in all cases the governors, chief officials, and leading residents have come forward and promised their patronage. The programme is an extensive one. In no case will any play be repeated in the same theatre, and consequently the task put upon the players is no light one, as the list of plays to be given will show. These are Hamlet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, The Merchant of Venice, Richard III., Romeo and Juliet, The School for Scandal, The Rivals, She Stoops to Conquer, and Garrick.

The cast is headed by Mr Matheson Lang and Miss Hutin Britton, who both graduated in the Benson company, and lately have won golden opinions as the leading supporters of Miss Ellen Terry, both at the Imperial Theatre and in the provinces. Of the rest of the company Miss Dorothy Green is considered one of Mr Benson's latest fortunate "finds." The "leading ladies'" parts will be divided between Miss Britton and Miss Green. The position which Mr Weir occupies in Mr Benson's chief company is not an easy one to fill. For the parts of Falstaff, Touchstone, and Tony Lumpkin the services of Mr Nigel Playfair have been secured. Mr George Fitzgerald will be an invaluable help, for he has played useful parts in the chief Benson company for many years. Miss Olive Noble will sustain the principal ingénue parts. She was in the first Benson company a few years ago, and since then has been in Australia. Miss May De Launey has shown aptitude for such rôles as those of Mrs Malaprop and the Nurse in Romeo and Juliet, though she is successful in younger characters. Mr Stanley Drewitt has had much experience in Mr Ben Greet's companies here and in America. Mr Bernard Limpus and Mr Forsyth won their spurs in the O. U. D. S. at Oxford. The general manager of the company is Mr Cuthbert Ricketts, working under the direction of Mr A. Smyth-Pigott, the general manager of all the Benson companies. Mr Ricketts visited the West Indies in the summer to make all preliminary arrangements. Mr Chas. La Trobe, who has lately been in a similar position in Miss Ellen Terry's company, will be the stage-manager, and elaborate scenery and costumes will be carried. The whole company will number some thirty-five or more. It will be readily imagined that a tour of such magnitude and importance has never been arranged in this part of the world, or for that matter anywhere out of England, America, and Australia, and it could not be carried through with any prospect of success without the cordial co-operation of the Elder-Dempster Company, whose chairman, Sir Alfred Jones, a keen Shakespearian, is taking great personal interest in the whole undertaking. The members of the company will be put to no expense during their stay in the various ports of call, but will be put up at all the best hotels, which are under the control of the steamship company. Should the tour be as successful as it promises to be, other Colonies are likely to follow the example of the West Indies, and really first-class companies will be engaged to make known what is best in British drama throughout the British Empire.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD" AT WINDSOR.

Miss Rose Moncrieff opened the Theatre Royal, Windsor, on Boxing Day with Little Red Riding Hood, in which she has previously played the titular rôle some three hundred times. For this tour the old, familiar, and always popular story has been rewritten by Mr Newman Maurice and Mr William Muskerry, and while it, of course, retains the main features of the original play, the new version bristles with up-to-date incidents, "quips and cranks," and topical allusions, accompanied and brightened by tuneful melodies, catchy songs, and lively dances. Miss Moncrieff is an old favourite in the Royal borough, and on the opening night the theatre was filled to excess by an audience who well appreciated and cordially applauded the performance all through. Appropriate scenery, gorgeous dresses, and excellent staging all round contributed materially to the success of the production, while the orchestra, under the bâton of Mr A. C. Loder, rendered the music in highly efficient manner. For the effective placing of the "show" on the boards distinct credit is due to Mr J. Hammond, acting-manager for Miss Rose Moncrieff; Mr George Tearle, stage-manager; and Mr Chris Dashwood, stage carpenter. Miss Moncrieff's Red Riding Hood is a remarkably charming and natural representation, pretty, dainty, and properly childlike. Mr W. F. Matthews as Granny is very humorous; Miss Jessie De Grey makes a delightful and handsome Prince Truelove; while Miss Nellie Montague is a bewitching Fairy Bluebell. Mons. E. Levano's Wicked Wolf is horribly realistic and therefore clever; the Coopers (Larry and Roger) are diverting and successful as Village Hooligans; and other members of the cast are equally capable and accomplished, viz., Miss Sadie Hart, Miss Nellie Culver, Miss Marie Lynch, Mr Harry Willatt, Mr George Tearle, Mr J. Hammond, Miss Eleanor S. Simmonds, Miss Hetty Avery, and Miss Maggie Abdy, the last three as pretty rustic maidens. An exceedingly pleasing incident in the play is a grand snow ballet dance, and exceptionally clever specialities are provided by Mons. E. Levano, the great Arabian whirlwind acrobat; Miss Jessie De Grey, impersonator of stars; and the Diamond Quartet of lady dancers.

Artistic effort is busy at the Court Theatre in the production of an idyllic play "for grown-up children," in which poetic beauties are to be discerned, and in which a story simple but engrossing is set to music in consonance with the theme. Prunella is a maiden over whom a trio of aunts exercise a rigid supervision. Their youngest sister had years before been sacrificed on the altar of love, and in order to shield the daughter from all temptation she is cloistered in their quaint old house. A troupe of mummers pass that way, and Pierrot gains an entry, leaves his heart with Prunella, and carries away a kiss. At nightfall he returns, and with honeyed words wakes the maiden from her sleep and induces her, as in a dream, to descend a ladder and join him and his merry companions assembled in the garden. Counselled by a statue of Cupid, which becomes animate for the occasion, Prunella, who yearns for the outside world, departs with Pierrot. All goes well for awhile, till Pierrot's fickle heart tires of his Pierrette, and with faltering footsteps she returns to the Dutch Garden, where poverty threatens the only surviving aunt. Memories of his old love cling to Pierrot, and he returns to be reconciled to his Pierrette and to preserve her old home. The charming simplicity of Prunella was well affected by Miss Thyrza Norman, whose expressive features lent themselves admirably to the varying emotions of the part, while her enunciation was admirably distinct—a virtue that attaches to all the members of the cast. Mr Granville Barker entered heartily into the lightsome frivolity of the chief actor, his varied inflexion of voice also aiding the effect of a well-studied impersonation. Humour, more or less subtle, is plentifully besprinkled in the play, and its chief exponents are a quartet of gardeners, whose remarks are characteristic of the class, and were rendered with all possible oddity by Mr Tom Paulton, excellent in make-up and delivery as Jeremy; by Mr T. Heslewood, no less droll in appearance as Samuel; and by Mr F. Cremlin and Mr F. Grove. A yokel bird-scarer was whimsically played by Mr Norman Page, sufficient of whose voice was heard in a chant of warning to the birds as to create a desire to hear more of it. The three old maids were duly eccentric and severe in the hands of Misses Violet Vaughan, Nora Greenlaw, and Agnes Hill; Mr Lewis Casson as the Statue of Love was dignified in speech and bearing; and the troupe of players, including Scaramel, who received skilful interpretation at the hands of Mr Harry Dodd, were made interesting with their capers and jesting by their various exponents. The play was tastefully dressed and mounted, and the music, under the direction of Mr S. P. Waddington was effectively rendered.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Dec. 26, the Comedy Melodrama, by Fred Moule, entitled "THE GRIP OF THE LAW.'

In lieu of the customary pantomime at this period of the year, which he has postponed until later on, Mr Samuel James has relied on the staple fare for the Christmas holidays, and in The Grip of the Law he has presented a melodrama which contains the most attractive elements for the enjoyment of his numerous patrons, who have crowded the theatre nightly to the very doors, and received the piece with the utmost enthusiasm. There is an abundance of thrilling excitement about the play, having two murders in the first act, the villain thrown into a steaming cauldron—amidst vociferous cheers, be it said—in another, and an execution only stayed at the last moment, in the final act. In addition to these, there is plenty of screaming comedy—funnier than any pantomime could possibly be. Messrs Moule and Nicholls's company has evidently been well rehearsed, for the play goes very smoothly and without the slightest hitch. The character of Dave Arkwright is very graphically rendered by Mr Henry Beauforte. The villain, Sergeant Frank Paul, is most powerfully undertaken by Mr William Matthews, who succeeds admirably in impressing the audience with the notion that he is an out-and-out scoundrel. Mr E. D. Nicholls impersonates Zeph Sorrell, a detective with a stutter, which decidedly catches on, and causes uproarious laughter, his comedy being excellent throughout. Jacob Hockaday finds a capable representative in Mr Courtenay Robinson, and a genuine success is made by Mr Sam Roberts as Andy Blunt. The mysterious Noel of the Night is well and passionately acted by Mr Herbert Evelyn, to whom much praise is due. Marion Arkwright is sympathetically played by Miss Ada Lucelle, who, in the later portion of the drama, represents Mrs Babbicombe with grace. Miss May Pratt is a charming and attractive Rose Hockaday. A bright and amusing Beulah Bliss is Miss Ada Frank. The scenery and effects are thoroughly characteristic of life in the Australian bush.

THE remains of the late Mr William Rignold, who passed peacefully away in his sleep on the morning of the 22nd, were interred in New Southgate Cemetery on Tuesday last. The funeral was of quite a private character, and no public intimation of place or time had been given. As a consequence, the attendance was limited to members of the family, Mr Rignold's medical attendant, and a few personal friends. The mournful cortége started from the late residence of the deceased at 11·0 o'clock, reaching the cemetery an hour later. The bereaved family were represented by the three daughters—the Misses Marie, Dora, and Patience Rignold. There were already present Dr. Pearman, Dr. French, Mr Thomas Holding, and Mr Monty Poncione.

MR STANDIN TRIGGS, managing-director of the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, made a happy selection in the choice of Mr George Dance's The Duchess of Dantzic company as his Christmas holiday attraction, the audience throughout the week being exceptionally large and appreciative. On Monday patrons of the Dalston Theatre will have an opportunity of witnessing this delightfully interesting romantic light opera, and following upon the enormous success achieved by A Country Girl company during the past week, Mr George Dance may rest assured that the association of his name with such an attraction as The Duchess of Dantzic will be quite sufficient to draw all classes to witness another of his exceptionally fine companies.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, DEC. 29.—We are always sure to be interested in anything by Dr. Lindau, and the popular author-manager's new play met with an exceedingly cordial reception, so that he was compelled to appear repeatedly before the curtain. It is a serious play, the title being the half of a German saying: "Wie Du mir, so ich Dir" (as you to me, so I to you), meaning tit for tat—in other words, revenge. The following is the plot:—Consul Fredrichs is a wealthy bachelor, young, an officer of the Reserve, and with the usual tastes of a successful man of the world. His private secretary, Gottlieb Küpper, is his protegé; Küpper's parents lost their lives in a fire in the factory belonging to Fredrich's father. Gottlieb himself was injured, and has remained lame and feeble ever since. His infirmity makes him morose and envious; he has but one passion, and that is his love for Klara, the girl who is engaged to him. Not that the girl returns his love; on the contrary, she is tired of his gloomy manner, and is determined to give him up. Fredrichs makes Klara's acquaintance at the house of a friend of hers—a pretty chorus singer and demi-mondaine, Lola Preetzen. He invites her to supper—together with Lola and a number of other similar companions—and tells his secretary (all unconscious that Küpper is engaged to Klara) to take a letter and flowers to the young lady. Küpper goes, and implores Klara to be faithful to him, but the girl repudiates him. The wretched man then goes to the restaurant where the supper party is to take place. He tells Fredrichs the truth, and begs him to withdraw his invitation to Klara, but Fredrichs is afraid of exposing himself to ridicule, and declines. There has been a good deal of talk beforehand about a certain officer, who, having received a blow in the face, has been so degraded that he has been compelled to take his life, and Küpper determines upon his revenge. When the party is assembled and all is going merrily he rushes in, and crying "Wie Du mir, so ich Dir," strikes Fredrichs in the face. The cause of all the mischief, Klara Bremer, faints then and there; the insulted man takes his hat and goes—we conclude to make an end of himself, for his officer's pride is wounded to the quick, and he knows he will never hold up his head in society again. A strange enough theory, it appears to the even-minded onlooker. The characters are all well drawn and natural, the dialogue is pointed and frequently witty, and the interpretation of the play was an admirable all-round one. Frau Wenck—the chorus girl's mother—was, with her genuine Berlin dialect and good heart under a rough exterior, exceedingly amusing.

"DER GRAF VON CHAROLAIS," five-act tragedy, by Richard Beer-Hofmann, met with much applause and a modicum of opposition on its production at the Neues last week. Herr Beer-Hofmann is a talented and successful dramatist of the new Viennese school, to which also Herr von Hofmannsthal belongs. He writes thoughtfully, even poetically, and he appears to have, like Hofmannsthal, a taste for ancient motifs. The play is drawn from The Fatal Lowry, by Philip Massinger and Nathanial Field, which was performed in England for the first time in 1632. There are virtually two distinct dramas in one, the first being the more appreciated by the average spectator. The Count's father died in debt, and his body has been seized by the creditors. It is condemned to decay—according to the custom of the period—without burial. The son entreats to be allowed to take the place of the corpse, so that the famous General may not be so dishonoured after death. This touching proof of affection moves the president of the council, and he pays the dead man's debts himself. Count Charolais now marries the president's daughter, the fair Desirée, and lives three years in happy wedded life. Then the tragedy begins. Desirée's cousin Philip follows her to her room in the Count's absence and overwhelms her with protestations of love. She is devoted to her husband and child, and repulses Philip with indignation until he burns his hand at the fire grate and she binds up the wound. A change takes place—why is extremely obscure—in Desirée's feelings. She allows herself to be led to a house of ill fame, and is discovered by her husband later on in Philip's embrace. Charolais kills the betrayer, and the woman commits suicide. The piece is too drawn-out, and the action fails to convince, but it was acted in a masterly manner, and evidently pleased many.

ONE of the most charming fairy-plays ever put before a juvenile audience is running at the Lustspiel-Haus three afternoons a week. It is a three-act piece by the well-known authoress, Fräulein Gabrielle Reuter; the incidental music by Max Marschalk. The production added another to the clever writer's long list of triumphs. She was "called" repeatedly and applauded enthusiastically. And it was not only the children who appreciated the delightful play; its refined and delicate humour, the poetic vein running through all the scenes—which, though full of the true spirit of fairydom, never become banal—captivated the "grown-ups" of the audience equally, and Die böse Prinzessin would certainly be successful on any stage. It is a somewhat similar story to our "Beauty and the Beast." The haughty, naughty, but beautiful Princess Jorinde gradually becomes good, finally sacrificing the dearest thing she possesses—her golden crown—to save the ugly Joringel from the clutches of a terrible baboon. As soon as this act of self-denial is performed the bewitched Prince—for Joringel is, of course, a Prince—regains his natural face and form, both alike beautiful. The dreaded forest, full of evil things, turns into a veritable fairy-wood, and the once naughty Princesschen is folded again in her loving parents' arms. The music is pretty and appropriate, the scenery and stage arrangements everything that can be desired, and the cast—with Frau Mallinger in the name-part—a capital one.

THE Trianon Theatre has made a decided hit with Die Glückliche Gilberte, three-act comedy by MM. Hennequin and Bilhaud, German translation and adaptation for the German stage by Max Schoenau. Fräulein Helene Fehdmer as the much-married heroine was particularly fascinating. The part of Achille was satisfactorily sustained by Herr Sachs, while Herr Junkermann as Antonin and Fräulein Winkler in the rôle of Odette gave excellent renderings.

At the Central on Christmas night a new operetta was produced—Die Negerlein, by Waldemar Wendland, words by Franz Arnold. It was not particularly pleasing, even to a mirthfully-disposed audience, and after several good-humoured attempts at laughter and applause, the majority of the hearers relapsed into hisses instead. The most astounding "situations" are introduced, chief among them being the taking of the consul, Tsching-Bum—an Asiatic magnate—for Consul, the famous ape, which is being exhibited at a circus. The title-rôle, Topsy, was capitally given by Fräulein Tuschkau, a new acquisition with an excellent voice and graceful action.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

THE scene of "The Fairy Orchard" in The White Cat at Drury-lane Theatre is one of the most exquisitely artistic stage pictures ever presented to the public. Our scenic artists are abandoning the old conventions which separated theatrical from other art; and Mr Henry Emden excelled himself in this lovely work, in which the tints of the apple-blossom join with the warmer hues of oranges, cherries, and other fruit with the most delightful harmony and effectiveness.

MR BEERBOHM TREE has received an offer to take over his company from His Majesty's Theatre to Berlin, and give a Shakespearian season there next autumn. Mr Tree is one of the few English actors whose familiarity with the German language is sufficient to enable him to play a part in German as well as in English; but if he goes to Berlin he will use the latter "medium of expression."

MR DENIS O'SULLIVAN, the actor and singer, who played Barry Trevor on Wednesday in Peggy Machree at Wyndham's Theatre, is the son of a native of Skibbereen, County Cork, who went out to the United States when a lad, and made his way to California. In San Francisco he rose to wealth and influence, and Mr Denis O'Sullivan was born in that city. For several years he has gone down to Skibbereen annually to give a concert for the benefit of the local poor.

MR GEORGE EDWARDES is very fond of children; and for the little ones who will visit Daly's Theatre this afternoon, he has prepared a very pretty Christmas tree. On its branches, besides other tempting articles, hang many "golly wogs," and each child in the audience will be allowed to take one of these away on leaving the house after the performance.

HIS MAJESTY has sent Mr James Fernandez a beautiful ruby pin as a souvenir of his recent visit to Windsor Castle, when he appeared as Raymond De Noirville in Mr Beerbohm Tree's special production of A Man's Shadow. Mr Fernandez will celebrate the jubilee of his début in London as Stephen Darville, in Micheal Erle, next year at the Old Queen's Theatre, Long-acre.

FURTHER particulars are to hand respecting the production of A Wife Without a Smile at the Criterion Theatre, New York, on the 19th inst. Mr Charles Frohman, it appears, had announced that the dancing doll would be "cut out," but there was a rumour, nevertheless, that this much-discussed feature would not be entirely omitted, but would be merely "toned down." Consequently, when Rippingill climbed the ladder and tied the doll to the string there was a flutter of expectation all over the house. But Mr Pinero's play had been "expurgated" after all, for the doll didn't move, and disappointment was written on every face in the audience. The suggestion of impropriety was provided, but the actual exhibition of it was withheld. One had to know all about the play beforehand in order to understand why the doll was introduced at all. Without this knowledge it seemed merely a pointless absurdity. In short, the comic situations were ruined, and the play fell flat. Mr J. H. Barnes gave a richly humorous impersonation of the eccentric promoter, John Pullinger. Mr Frank Worthing as Webbmarsh and Mr Ernest Lawford as Rippingill did excellent work. Miss Margaret Illington as Mrs Rippingill and Miss Elsie De Wolfe as Mrs Lovette played their parts well.

GERHART HAUPTMANN'S Weavers, which will be performed by the German company at the Great Queen-street Theatre on Thursday, contains no less than forty-three speaking parts. It is the most terrible picture of industrial distress ever presented on a stage, the pathos of the famished German weavers, grateful for a bit of dog's flesh, being almost agonising in its intensity.

MRS BROWN-POTTER has been presented by the King and Queen with a handsome gold pin, mounted with seventeen pearls, and bearing the initials "E. and A.," as a souvenir of her recent visit to Windsor in Mr Tree's company, A Man's Shadow.

DR. PAUL LINDAU'S new drama, So Ich Dir—"So I to You"—which was produced at the Berliner Theater, Berlin, on the 23rd ult., has an extraordinary theme. According to the law of German military honour, an officer who has been struck by a person who is incapable of giving him "satisfaction" must resign his military rank. A wealthy young officer has a sickly secretary, who is in love with a pretty girl. The officer wins the girl's affection, and the secretary, madly jealous, strikes him on the face in public, so that he will "never hold up his head in society again." The German code of "honour" is a little difficult for Englishmen to understand.

SIGNOR MICHELE ESPOSITO, the composer of the incidental music to Peggy Machree, which was produced on Wednesday at Wyndham's Theatre, submitted his first work to a London audience in 1898, when his cantata, "Deirdre," which won the composition prize in the Irish Feis Ceoil of 1897, was produced at Queen's Hall. Signor Esposito was born in 1855 at Castellamare di Stabia, in the Bay of Naples. Twenty-two years ago he became professor of the pianoforte at the Royal Irish Academy of Music, Dublin, and still retains the post.

AMONGST those present in the audience at Drury-lane Theatre on Monday were Mr and Mrs Pinero, Miss Mabel Love, Mr W. L. Abingdon, Mrs Cecil Raleigh, Mr Weedon Grossmith, Miss Beatrice Ferrar, Mr George Dance, Mr Alfred Moul, Mr James Davis, Miss Fanny Ward, and Mr W. S. Gilbert.

THE story of Gabriele D'Annunzio's new tragedy, The Ship, has just been published. The scene is laid in the Venetian lagoons in the fifth century. The inhabitants of the mainland have fled for refuge to one of the islands. Amongst the fugitives are the followers of the Gratici and the partisans of the Faletri. Marco Gratico aspires to be chief of the community, and Valerio, his brother, wishes to be its bishop. The Faletri invoke the aid of the Byzantine Emperor, and send, as an emissary, Basiliola, the beautiful daughter of Orso Faletro. She fascinates Marco, but he cannot save her from his people, and she is blinded by them with a red-hot piece of metal.

"COUSIN KATE," adapted by Mrs B. Pogson for the German stage, has been played for the first time in Germany, at the Thalia Theatre, Hamburg, and has made a decided success. Mr Bernard Shaw's comedy, Arms and the Man, was performed on Tuesday at the Josephstädter Theater, and also had a very favourable reception.

MR JAMES WELCH is as kind as he is clever. One day last week there was an exceptionally long rehearsal of The White Cat at Drury-lane. The chorus girls were at the theatre many hours, and few of them had brought anything to eat. Mr Welch and another of the principal artistes went out and sent the ladies in a big basket of sandwiches and several bottles of claret, which acted as excellent restoratives.

MR FORBES ROBERTSON and his company left Southampton on Saturday last in the American Line steamer Philadelphia, on their way to the United States and Canada.

MR OTHO STUART, owing to the great demand for seats at the matinées of The Taming of the Shrew at the Adelphi, has decided to give a special matinée there on Thursday.

MR FRANK RENDLE writes to modify a printed statement that whatever the results to the San Carlo Opera Company may have been, a considerable profit was made by him on the recent grand opera season. Mr Rendle, it appears, charged no rent at all for the theatre. He stipulated in his agreement with the San Carlo Company that a certain sum should be paid to him weekly in consideration of his paying for the stage hands and firemen, the printing, the lighting, the advertising, and the officials in the front of the house. The sums he thus received fell a little short of his actual disbursements. In order to recoup himself for the rent payable by him to the Grand Opera Syndicate for the use of the theatre, and the scenery, dresses, and properties, Mr Rendle stipulated that he should receive 25 per cent. of the receipts in excess of an agreed sum. This 25 per cent. worked out at less than one-half of the actual rent paid by him during the seven weeks that the San Carlo Company were in occupation of the house. But for the increased prices charged on the nights when Caruso sang, and for the special performance in honour of the King of Portugal, Mr Rendle would have received a merely nominal sum. The San Carlo Company made a favourable agreement with him, as they practically paid as rent for Covent-garden Theatre and the use of its large stock of scenery, dresses, and properties, only £95 per week.

IN consequence of the disastrous fire which occurred on Christmas Eve at the Opera House, Crouch-end, the pantomime Sinbad was partly played at the National Hall, Hornsey, on Boxing Night. In connection with the fire Mr Edgar J. Coyne, the stage-manager of the company, was instrumental in saving not only the properties of all the artists, excepting his own—a proof of his disinterestedness—but was also largely responsible for saving the auditorium from total destruction by stopping up certain passages with wooden blocks, which were partly burnt through, but delayed the progress of the flames. Mr Duncan Young, the lessee, with praiseworthy promptness, lost no time on Sunday morning in making arrangements for the performance of as much as was possible of the pantomime to take place, minus scenery, at the Bijou Theatre in the National Hall, Hornsey. He, in conjunction with Mr Geo. Brydon Phillips, allowed the principal artists to have the whole proceeds to help to console them for their loss of salaries. Mr Phillips, with his usual generosity, paid the whole of the chorus a week's salary, at the same time giving up his right, with Mr Young, to the bookings in aid of the fund if the public would accept in return the minor display offered. The announcement of this arrangement from the stage was followed by the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow," with band accompaniment.

THE performance naturally somewhat resembled a variety entertainment, but an idea was gleaned as to the success that would have been achieved by the production from the favourable, flattering, and sympathetic manner in which each representative was received, dressed in their respective pantomime costumes. Mr Leslie Digby, the Captain Scuttle, was the first to appear, followed by Miss Cecilia Maude, the Crystal, whose charming voice was heard to great advantage in the rendering of "Bluebell." Miss Clare Farron as the Princess Naggles and Mr Geo. F. Snow as King Tibbles kept the merriment at its height with their Negro comicalities; and Miss Rene did an admirable turn. Mr Walter King, the representative of Mrs Sinbad, was quite successful with his characteristic monologue entertainment, and his patter was very diverting. The Osmonds and Verona worked hard, and with wonderful alacrity, in their business, difficultly done owing to want of space. Miss Julia Preston, the Sinbad, with her chorus of ladies, all in costume, gained hearty applause. She was most vociferously encored, and she delivered an impromptu and touching speech.

MISS NELLIE RANDALL, who was cast for the part of Badoura, is an animated and charming comedienne, her catchy rendering of "Barney" evoking spontaneous plaudits. The Maples made their mark in song and dance. Mr Charles Pastor was happily inspired when he journeyed from the London Pavilion to Hornsey to aid with his services as an extra turn. The harlequinade, under great difficulties, was gone through, and the famous North London clown, Mr Harry Gardner, created very hearty laughter. The Athenæum at Muswell-hill is to be requisitioned for the Sinbad company next week, when it is to be hoped the local inhabitants will generously support the burnt-out artists.

MADAME CELINE CHAUMONT, having officially contradicted the rumour that she would reappear on the stage, now announces officially that she has accepted M. Hertz's flattering offer, and will play Dorine in Tartuffe, with M. Coquelin in the title-rôle. The piece will be given at the Paris Gaîté on the 5th and 12th of next month. It is many years since Madame Chaumont left the stage. In fact, the present generation only know her by name; and the appearance of this once-popular actress in classical comedy will be something out of the common. Madame Chaumont is the wife of M. Mussay, former lessee and manager of the Palais Royal.

MR EDWARD TERRY opened at the Princess Theatre, New York, on Boxing Day, in The House of Burnside, with immense success. He had fifteen calls before the curtain after the second act, and the local press is enthusiastic in its praise.

SIR LAWRENCE ALMA-TADEMA, R.A., who was recently elected an honorary member of the Scenic Artists' Association, has, as already stated, kindly promised to lend his model and sketches for "Coriolanus" to the Exhibition, and with Sir E. J. Poynter, P.R.A., and Mr E. A. Abbey, R.A., will form the Hanging Committee, and Messrs H. Beerbohm Tree, George Alexander, George Edwardes, Forbes Robertson, J. Martin Harvey, John Hare, Frederick Harrison, Cyril Maude, and other London managers have kindly volunteered to lend articles of theatrical interest, and have graciously given permission to artists under their respective managements to appear in the concert room of the Exhibition.

A CONTRIBUTION on "Christmas Customs and Games" to the current Notes and Queries contains a very ancient theatrical reference. In 1479, at Bristol, the mayor, the sheriff, and their brethren received "Seynt Kateryne's players" at their doors on St. Katherine's Eve, and gave them drink and rewards. It is added that special ordinances were made for keeping the peace during the "Christmas mumming time."

IMPROVEMENT quickly follows improvement at the Theatre Royal, Gloucester. The popular proprietor, Councillor C. W. Poole, has added a fine new lounge bar for the convenience of his upper and dress circle patrons. The bar is handsomely fitted with red plush seats, the walls being decorated with picture panels and mirrors. It was thrown open for the first time on Boxing night.

AT the Standard Theatre, Bishopsgate, has been hung a new front curtain, upon which are painted the various principal female characters appearing in some of the successful plays by Messrs Walter and Fredk. Melville.

A CORRESPONDENT informs us that the late Miss Susan Rignold was not a sister but a cousin of Mr William Rignold. She was not a daughter of the late Mrs Patience Rignold, and her parents were not connected with the profession.

MR WILLIAM GREET will, by arrangement with Mr Tom B. Davis, produce, at the Lyric Theatre, on Wednesday, a new two-act musical play, entitled The Talk of the Town, written by Mr Seymour Hicks, and composed by Mr Herbert E. Haines, with lyrics by Mr Charles Taylor. The cast will include Mr H. A. Lytton, Mr Robert Evett, Mr Powis Pinder, Mr Charles Childerstone, Mr Tom Graves, Mr A. Harrold, Mr Walter Passmore, Mr Akerman May, Mr Reg. Crompton, Mr M. R. Morand, Mr Stanley Brett, Mr A. Boielle, Mr Elliston, Mr E. Torrence, Mr Rudolph Lewis, Miss Agnes Fraser, Miss Annie Esmond, Miss Gertrude Thornton, Miss Lydia West, Miss Maudi Darrell, and Miss Olive Morrell.

MR AND MRS CARL HENTSCHEL, the president and lady president of the recently formed Strand district of the League of Mercy, superintended on Thursday a children's fancy dress ball, organised by Miss Irene Hentschel and Miss Doris Joel, the two youngest vice-presidents of the League, held at the Hotel Cecil. Countess Grosvenor, Dora Countess of Chesterfield, Lady Evelyn Ewart, and the Dowager Lady Lamington gave their patronage to the ball, which was attended by about 200 children in fancy dress. Prizes were given for the best dresses, the judges being Sir James Linton, Mr Hal Hurst, R.I., Mr S. B. Joel, Mr Jerome K. Jerome, and Miss Olga Hentschel. All the seasons were represented, and amongst the characters were Sir Walter Raleigh, Boy-blue, Faust, Bo-Peep, a Rajah, Napoleon, the Empress Josephine, a Japanese lady, Cupid, geishas, flower-girls, and fortune-tellers. Miss Irene Hentschel and Miss Doris Joel, who acted as hostesses, were attired in League of Mercy costumes. Mr Alfred De Rothschild had generously offered the use of his orchestra, which led the dancing under the direction of Mr Carl Heubert. An entertainment was provided between the dances, which included displays of fancy dancing arranged by Mrs Wordsworth. At 9·0 o'clock the children marched past the judges in procession, and subsequently the prizes were presented by Miss Hentschel and Miss Joel. Supper was served at the conclusion. Miss Hentschel's dancing was greatly admired, and Miss Doris Joel did a fancy dance which pleased the audience immensely. Special attention was given to the excellent make-up and dresses of Master Woolf Joel and Master Stanhope Joel, a very pretty Cupid.

MR EADE MONTEFIORE, who is the son of a clergyman, invited the choirs and Sunday school scholars of the Scottish churches, Episcopal churches, and the Roman Catholics to the matinée of Cinderilla on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh. The invitations were cordially accepted by the Rev. Dr. Cameron Lees, of St. Giles's Cathedral; the Rev. Father Superior Bader, of the Holy Convent of Mercy; the Rev. Canon Stuart, the Orphan Hospital; and many others. A very pleasant incident of the afternoon was the handing up to the Cinderella (Miss May Marton) a very beautiful basket of flowers from "The boys and girls of the St. Giles's Cathedral Schools;" another in Mr Maurice Isaacs, J.P., bringing the whole of the Hebrew School as a tribute to Mr Eade Montefiore, who bears a name famous among the Jews.

MR HUGH MOSS, the well-known "producer," who for the past five years has been the stage-manager for the opera at the Guildhall School of Music, has been appointed by Mr F. R. Benson as the vice-principal of the School of Drama and Acting which he has inaugurated at the Hampstead Conservatoire.

NOT many things can be safely predicted about a municipal theatre; but one thing is absolutely certain—that there will, in every case, be a large protesting minority of ratepayers, and, consequently, perennial controversy. The discussion evoked by the publication of the balance-sheet of the first year's working of Australia's only municipal theatre—Her Majesty's, in the town of Geelong—is still proceeding merrily. A rather nice and novel point has been raised. The Corporation included the rents of certain shops in the front part of the building as a portion of the revenue derived from the theatre. The protesters argue that this was an improper proceeding, as the shops have no direct connection with the theatre. On the other hand, the Corporation retorts that there would be no shops without the theatre. Will some legal light of the O.P. or Playgoers' Club say which is the right contention?

MR GEORGE DANCE'S production of Veronique at Brighton on Monday met with decided success. It is effectively elaborate, and the Brighton press is unanimous in describing it as one of the most artistic ever seen at the Theatre Royal. Mr Dance has endeavoured to send into the country an exact "replica" of the rendering of the opera at the Apollo, and the piece no doubt will carry everything before it in the country. His enterprises are numerous and popular. The Cingalee opened on Boxing Night at Croydon to a record house, and Cinderella, on the two-house-a-night system at the Richmond Theatre, has "caught on" capitally.

MR LAWRENCE GRANT AND MR MALCOLM BARRINGTON have secured all provincial rights of the successful comedy Joseph Entangled from Messrs Dauncey and Leveaux, and will shortly take it on tour. They have engaged Mrs Mouillot to play the part of Lady Verona Mayne, originally sustained at the Haymarket by Miss Ellis Jeffreys. Sir Joseph Lacey will be performed by Mr Grant.

THE fifteenth meeting of the committee of the Scenic Artists' Association was held at the offices on Wednesday evening. There were present Mr Joseph Harker, vice-president, and Messrs Walter Hann (in the chair), Edmund G. Banks, Richard Douglass, W. T. Hemsley, H. W. Owen, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, Geo. Tweddell, and Mr H. Lawrence Harris, secretary. Letters were read from Messrs W. Harford and H. W. Robinson, with apologies for inability to attend the committee meeting; from Mr J. J. Markwell-Davis, resigning his membership of the Association; from Sir Philip Burne-Jones, Bart., enclosing cheque for seven guineas from Mr S. Goldmann as a donation to the Benevolent Fund of the Association; and from Sir James Linton, acknowledging his recent election as an honorary member of the Association. Mr W. R. Buist (of Cardiff), Mr R. Caney (of Balham), Mr G. J. Dodson (of Manchester), Mr R. C. M'Cleary (of Drury-lane Theatre), and Mr Wm. Pike (of the Savage Club) were duly elected members.

THE secretary reported that since the last committee meeting he had received £30 1s. 6d. on account of subscriptions promised to the Exhibition Guarantee Fund, including cheque of two guineas from Mr R. Caney. The questions of opening the exhibition in the evenings and also of extending the dates (April 10 to 15) at present arranged were adjourned for consideration at the annual general meeting of the Association, to be held on the 9th prox. It was resolved that the secretary should arrange high-class entertainments at the Grafton Galleries on the afternoons of April 10 to 15; and he was instructed to write to Mr Edmund Gerson, of New York, and to express the regret of the committee at their inability to include in their exhibition works other than those of members of the Association and of deceased British scenic painters, and also to thank him for his offer to re-exhibit in New York, which they feared would be impracticable. It was decided to hold a special meeting of the committee at the offices at 8 0 o'clock on Friday next, the 6th prox., to arrange the agenda for the general meeting, and to receive the secretary's report respecting the details of the smoking concert.

MR TREE will produce Much Ado About Nothing on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 24. The Tempest will be performed up to Jan. 19, instead of being withdrawn on Jan. 14 as announced. There will be no performance at His Majesty's Theatre on Jan. 20, 21, and 23, the stage being required for the final rehearsals of Much Ado About Nothing. In the revival of that comedy the masked ball will take place, not in the hall of Leonato's house, but in an orange grove adjoining it. The scenes of humorous trickery will also be given in this grove; and an intermezzo, composed by Mr Raymond Roze, will be played by the orchestra. In the Cathedral scene a cleverly contrived change will be made from the interior to the exterior of the building.

AT the St. James's Theatre on the afternoon of Jan. 18, by permission of Mr George Alexander, a musical and dramatic entertainment, given entirely by children, will take place in aid of the Fresh Air Fund. The first item will be the fairy play in one act, White Magic, by Netta Syrett, with music by Dalhousie Young, and dances arranged by Mr H. Louis D'Egville. Miss Sybil Keymer will give violin selections, and Miss Myra Hess will be the pianist. They will be accompanied by the London Symphony Orchestra. Others who will appear are Miss Dorothy Neville, Miss Felicité Tree, Miss Phyllis Yorke, Miss Phyllis Monckton, and Miss Nancy Buckland. Tableaux vivants representing famous masterpieces of art in child portraiture will be arranged by Mr Richard Speight. Two scenes from The Tempest will be played by the juveniles appearing at His Majesty's Theatre. A pageant of children representing a fancy dress ball will conclude the entertainment.

MADAME SARAH BERNHARDT, when recently appearing at Bucharest, paid a visit to Princess Marie of Roumania. As she was driving away from the palace she heard the report of a pistol. Princess Marie's little boy had determined to get a sight of the celebrated actress, and had fired a blank cartridge out of a window to make her look up—which she certainly did.

THE distress in Liverpool from various causes has, during the present season, been exceedingly keen, and many families are in actual want. Consequently, any assistance that is forthcoming is urgently needed and well applied. Amongst the earliest to lend a helping hand is Mr Harris Fineberg, proprietor of the Star Theatre, in Williamson-square. Having been in the city all his life he is well acquainted with all its phases of poverty, and has resolved to afford some gratification to the many who, without employment, find little pleasure. He has arranged with the Liverpool Food and Betterment Association to provide satisfying meals to large numbers of the respectable men who are unable to obtain work, and on Wednesday some 200 of these were seated in a building attached to the theatre, where an unstinted supply of appetising hotpot and bread was served. The poor fellows had a most enjoyable time. On Friday 200 children of the slums were treated to a meal, and further happy gatherings have been arranged during January. On Wednesday the sight of the poor fellows regaling themselves with a substantial warm meal was a source of great pleasure to all who were present.

A. M. BEAULIEU is going to start a free conservatoire in Paris, to be called "L'Ecole Dramatique Indépendante." The students of this new dramatic college who pass the necessary examinations will be engaged by M. Beaulieu for his People's Theatre, and will be allowed shares in the profits of the house.

AT a special sitting of magistrates at Birmingham on Wednesday, on an application by Mr Tom Davis for the licensing of children for the Theatre Royal pantomime, Mr Howard Lloyd was present as chairman of the Attendance Committee of the Education Committee. Mr A. M. Chance, the chairman of the Licensing Bench, explained that the original application was made early in December, but the Bench greatly desired to hear what the Education Committee had to say upon the matter. The Bench, therefore, granted a provisional licence until Jan. 7, on the strict understanding that the further consideration of the licences would take place in Christmas week. In the interval the Education Committee had been approached, and they had decided that they would not offer any opposition to the application. Mr Davis had been treated with great consideration by the Education Committee. He might say that they always desired as magistrates to work in harmony with other city authorities who had a voice in these matters, and they were now prepared to renew the licence for the children in question till the conclusion of the pantomime. A magistrate said he had been to the pantomime, and had had an opportunity of seeing the children. They were very well cared for, and every provision was made for their comfort. Medical evidence as to the healthy condition of the children having been given, the licence was granted.

MISS JULIA KENT, who is the principal boy (Robin Hood) at the Grand Theatre, Islington, always designs her own costumes, some of them this year being quite unique and a feature of the pantomime.

MR ARTHUR BERTRAM will produce at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, on Feb. 20, for the first time in this country, a drama entitled Hearts Adrift, which has already been performed in America. On Feb. 27 the play will be seen at the Grand Theatre, Fulham.

MR WYN WEAVER, we are sorry to hear, fractured his ankle at Clapham-junction on Monday, and is now lying in St. Bartholomew's Hospital. He was, when he met with his unfortunate accident, in the third week of his engagement at the Crystal Palace Theatre.

"THE GIRL FROM BOND STREET" at the Opera House, Burton-on-Trent, has evidently "caught on," as a letter to a local paper proves. The writer says:—"Dear Sir,—I went to the theatre, and was one of the first six at the door. Soon the crush became so intense that one could not move half an inch any way. Just as the door was about to be opened a burly youth placed his hand on my shoulder with the evident intention of using me as a lever to get through the door. Time after time the door was blocked with three people abreast, and when they were a little over the average size it was only by one inside pulling the middle one through that an accident was averted." The eagerness to "see the show" must indeed have been intense.

MISS DOROTHY THOMAS on the afternoon of the 21st inst., owing to Miss Nora Kerlin's indisposition, played Miranda, in The Tempest, at His Majesty's Theatre at very short notice, giving entire satisfaction. Miss Thomas has been at His Majesty's for two years, and was specially engaged by Mr Tree to understudy Miranda.—Mr Blake Adams has had to put his successful dramatic episode, The Last Pitch, on one side for the present, having been engaged by Mr Cyril Maude to play his part, Captain James Barley, in Beauty and the Barge, on its first tour, starting on Jan. 16.

AT the opening performance of Siegfried at the Teatro Fenice, Venice, on Monday, the house presented a brilliant spectacle, all the boxes being filled with the Venetian nobility. The display of jewels and flowers was magnificent.

MISS JULIA NEILSON AND MR FRED TERRY will open their season at the New Theatre on Thursday with the four-act romantic comedy The Scarlet Pimpernel, by Orczy-Barstow. The cast will include Mr Rudge Harding, Mr Fred Terry, Mr Alfred Kendrick, Mr Malcolm Cherry, Mr Sydney Stirling, Mr Horace Hodges, Mr C. A. Doran, Mr Leon M. Lion, Mr L Race Dunrobin, Mr D. J. Williams, Mr Walter Edwin, Mr Ernest Imeson, Mr J. Carter-Edwards, Mr Hermann Griffiths, Miss Julia Neilson, Mrs Walter Edwin, Miss Mary Mackenzie, Miss Stuart Innes, Miss Kathleen Doyle, and Miss Marion Sterling.

MR J. E. VEDRENNE'S future arrangements at the Court Theatre include a revival of John Bull's Other Island, and production of The Cradle, an adaptation of Brieux's Le Berceau; The Thieves' Comedy, a version of Hauptmann's Der Biberpelz; and Mr Gilbert Murray's translation of The Trojan Women, of Euripides.

THE Scenic Artists' Association are anxious to obtain for their exhibition at Grafton Galleries, Bond-street, W., April 10 to April 15, 1905, specimens of the works of Absolom, Bolena, Beverley, Bough, Chambers, Cox, Cooper, Calcott, Gates, Grieve, Hunt, Leitch, Loutherbourge, Marinare, Mulready, Marshall, Nasmith, Roberts, Clarkson, Stanfield, W. Telbin, and other deceased scene painters, and the secretary, Mr H. Lawrence Harris, is inviting owners to communicate with him at 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C.

PADEREWSKI arrived in San Francisco recently from his Australian trip on the steamship Ventura. He was accompanied by his wife, formerly Madame Gorski. His tour of Australia, New Zealand, and the Antipodes has been more than successful, over forty recitals having been given since his advent in that country. At the opening of the sale of tickets for his three recitals over $4,000 was taken. On conclusion of his season in San Francisco, Paderewski was to leave for Los Angeles and Mexico, to be followed by a long tour in the Southern States of the United States.

WHEN Mr Tree's revival of The Tempest at His Majesty's Theatre is withdrawn on the 19th of next month it will have reached its 141st performance, and during its run it will have attracted close upon a quarter of a million of spectators.

MR FRED VINCENT, who has been general manager at the Leeds Grand Theatre ever since Mr John Hart accepted the control some eight or ten years ago, died at eleven o'clock on Tuesday night in Manchester. For the past few days Mr Vincent had been suffering from asthma somewhat acutely, and the end was hastened by heart failure. He had come to Manchester to undertake the stage direction of Mr Hart's pantomime, Mother Goose, at the Theatre Royal, but was taken ill on Thursday, and was unable to supervise the first performance on Saturday night. Mr Vincent was the practical designer of several eminently successful pantomimes at the Leeds Grand Theatre, and he had a happy knack of arranging ballets and dances and stage processions. He had been associated with Mr Hart for many years at Bradford and Hull before going to Leeds. Mr Vincent was about fifty-five years of age, and a widower. He leaves no family.

WE regret to learn that Madame Emma Agar, the talented composer and pianist, is lying very seriously ill at her Herefordshire home with bronchial pneumonia, pleurisy, and internal rheumatism. Music lovers will wish Madame Agar a speedy recovery.

HERR OSCAR VON CHELIUS, military attaché at the German Embassy, Vienna, has composed a new opera entitled Die Vermarrte Prinzess, which will be produced at the Court Theatre, at Schwerin, the second week in January. Von Chelius's first opera Haschisch met with considerable success at the Royal Opera, Berlin, some years ago.

MR W. A. J. A. MONTEITH-WINSTANLEY, son of Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. and Mrs Winstanley, sole proprietor of the Royal Opera House, and sole lessee of the Theatre Royal, Leicester, has successfully passed in class three, part one, the general examination for the ordinary B.A. degree.

ACCORDING to one of the Antipodean Society papers, Lord Plunket, the new Governor of New Zealand, is an ardent devotee of amateur theatricals. He has fitted up a theatre in Government House, Wellington, and regularly invites the leading society people to performances of plays in which he not only acts himself but assumes the onerous duties of stage-manager. Lord Plunket was officially connected with the Vice-Regal Court in Dublin for some years, and there no doubt he acquired his Thespian tastes and sympathies.

THE Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon has presented to the Mayor of Southwark a mulberry, supposed to be a sapling from Shakespeare's tree. The tree now at Stratford can, however, hardly be the original tree of Shakespeare, for this was cut down shortly after 1762. According to Chalmers's "Life of Shakespeare," in that year New Place, Shakespeare's home, was sold to Mr Gastrell, who, objecting to the assessment on it, shortly afterwards pulled it down, sold the materials, and left the town. He had some time before this cut down Shakespeare's mulberry tree. A correspondent of the "Annual Register," in 1760, wrote as follows:—"As the curiosity of this house and tree brought much fame, and more company and profit to the town, a certain man, on some disgust, has pulled the house down, so as not to leave one stone upon another, and cut down the tree, and piled it as a stack of firewood, to the great vexation, loss, and disappointment of the inhabitants. However, an honest silversmith bought the whole stack of wood, and makes many odd things out of this wood for the curious."

MR HENRY LUDLOW, who is at present touring The London Fireman, leaves early next year for Australia in order to support M. Auguste Van Biene. This will be Mr Ludlow's second visit to the Antipodes, having starred throughout Australia with Miss Jennie Maynard in the year 1900.

AT a recent benefit for the Charity Fund of the Associated Theatrical Managers of San Francisco, at the Orpheum Theatre there, the profits over and above all expenses were $3,500, which was applied to the relief of worthy members of the profession in the city and in foreign parts.

A COMPLETE set of pantomime pictorial postcards has been issued by Messrs Valentine depicting scenes at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, where Cinderella is playing to record business. The postcards are printed in seven colours, and the portraits and poses of Miss May Marton, Miss Fanny Wright, Miss Millie Engler, Little Zola, and the Six Lancashire Lasses have been so successful that editions of 40,000 are in circulation in Edinburgh and district.

JOSEPH HILLAM, a street hawker, living at Hoxton, was summoned at Lambeth Police-court on Thursday to show cause why certain copies of copyright music should not be forfeited or destroyed. The defendant did not answer the summons nor was he represented. The proceedings were instituted by an agent of the Music Publishers' Association. The music was seized from the defendant on Dec. 20, when he was vending it in Camberwell. In all he had with him 111 copies of various songs, all of which were infringements of copyright works. Mr Hopkins made an order for the destruction of the copies, and directed the defendant to pay 25s. by way of costs.

"PEGGY MACHREE."

Play, with Music and Lyrics by Mr Patrick Bidwell, Incidental Music by Signor Michele Esposito, and Additional Numbers by Mr Clarence Lucas,
Produced at Wyndham's Theatre on Wednesday, Dec. 28.

Lady Margaret O'Driscoll	Miss MARIE DAINTON
Hon. Emily Prior	Miss DOROTHY DRAKE
Madame De La Cour	Mrs E. H. BROOKE
Moira	Miss AGNES THOMAS
Molly M'Mahon	Miss NANCY MALONE
Nora	Miss KATHLEEN DAWN
Kathleen	Miss BERTHA SEATON
Eileen	Miss NESSIE WALKER
Sir Lawrence Borthwick	Mr E H KELLY
Captain De La Cour	Mr STANLEY PRINGLE
Alexander M'Dougall	Mr J. GRAEME CAMPBELL
Michael	Mr SHIEL BARRY
Rainey	Mr CHRIS WALKER
Larry	Mr WILLIAM WILSON
Patsy	Mr A. S. BARBER
Sergeant Bampton	Mr JOHN MOSLEY
Barry Trevor	Mr DENIS O'SULLIVAN

Peggy Machree, which was produced at the Prince of Wales's, Grimsby, early in last month, is a return—to some of us a welcome return—to the dramatic and well-written libretto. It is a comedy-drama embellished with songs—what used to be called a "ballad opera." The field of selection in the way of Irish airs is so large that it was not always easy to know whether the tunes selected by Mr Denis O'Sullivan and arranged by Signor Michele Esposito were original or ancient. The audience at Wyndham's Theatre, however, appeared perfectly indifferent to the origin of their enjoyment, and to heartily relish the melodious result which was attained. With good acting, capital vocalism, and a hearty and earnest spirit evident in all concerned in the production, Peggy Machree went with a swing from beginning to end, and was undeniably successful on its "first night" in London.

The story is sufficient for the purpose, and is neatly and crisply told. Lady Margaret O'Driscoll, a mad-cap young Irish lady, appears at a fair in the disguise of a ballad-singer. Here she is met by a "happy-go-lucky" young man, Barry Trevor, who is intended by his family to marry Lady Margaret's rich cousin, the Honourable Emily Pryor. He is attracted by the disguised "Peggy," and, in a spirit of hilarity, agrees to go through a mock marriage with her, the priest to be represented by Trevor's friend, Sir Lawrence Borthwick. By accident, a real priest performs the ceremony, and Peggy reproaches Trevor bitterly for his supposed trickery. In despair and disgust, he enlists in the army, and so the first act ends.

After five years of wars and wanderings, Trevor comes to Castle O'Driscoll in the character of a travelling fiddler, and discovers a plot on the part of Peggy's ruined relative, Captain De La Cour, to carry her off by force. Trevor and Peggy do not recognise each other at first, but in his endeavours to obstruct De La Cour's plans Barry's identity is disclosed, and in the last act Lady Margaret, after playing upon his feeling a little, enters in the ballad singer's costume, and falls into his arms.

The dialogue is brightly and naturally written, and Mr Bidwell's lines had the advantage of excellent delivery by the members of Mr Charles E. Hamilton's excellent company. Miss Marie Dainton played Lady Margaret Driscoll with admirable lightness of touch, and with an airy grace and roguish humour that were entirely effective. With the aid of clearly-distinct enunciation, she made the most both of her spoken lines and her songs, each of the latter being applauded most enthusiastically. Mr Denis O'Sullivan put an immense amount of fervour into his performance of the part of Barry Trevor, acting and singing with a heartiness which had its reward in uproarious and long-continued plaudits. The dash and vigour of his embodiment were keenly appreciated; and he carried the audience with him completely. Miss Dorothy Drake keenly suggests the ladylike gentleness of the Honorable Emily Pryor; and Mrs E. H. Brooke enacted Madame De La Cour with all the necessary polish and authority. Miss Agnes Thomas, with a correct brogue—an "excellent thing" in an Irish impersonation—made a most amusing Moira; and Miss Nancy Malone, though evidently nervous, was a pleasing Molly M'Mahon. An entirely satisfactory and judiciously restrained impersonation of the self-satisfied Sir Lawrence Borthwick was supplied by Mr E. H. Kelly; and Mr Stanley Pringle acted with commendable energy and ability as Captain De La Cour. Mr J. Graeme Campbell made a superb Scotchman, his depiction of the "dour" conceit of the major-domo being thoroughly good; and Mr Shiel Barry gave a truly Hibernian reading of the rôle of Michael. Mr H. Potts's scenery was pretty, and the furniture and decorations by Oetzmann used in the last act were most artistic. Peggy Machree was received with every symptom of success; and, though the author did not appear, there was plenty of applause at the end of the performance.

THE STANDARD.

On Boxing Day, Dec. 26, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Frederick Melville, entitled
"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

In spite of the numerous counter attractions being presented in the vicinity of this theatre, the Standard is still able to hold its own, and is being packed nightly with large and enthusiastic audiences. The production of Mr Fredk. Melville's play, Her Forbidden Marriage, as the holiday attraction, shows sound judgment and decided wisdom on the part of the managers of this house, for the drama is one which is full of interest, with plenty of movement and exciting incidents, and at the same time has a continuous supply of genuine comic element carefully worked in at the right moment. Mr Albert Ward displays considerable ability, and submits a fine study of the hero, George Madison. Mr Clarence Hague capably portrays the villainous Charles Devereux, and plays with considerable force and skill, whilst Mr Horace Hunter does good work as Geoffrey Broughton. Mr Chas. Willoughby is a satisfactory John Williams, and Mr Gilbert Heron is eminently successful as the Rev. Mr Dean. A capital piece of character acting is supplied by Mr Edgar L. Hocking as Joe Lambkin. Mr Andrew Emm does full justice to the part of Timothy Tuttutt, and he is answerable for the many hearty bursts of laughter during the evening. He is assisted in a businesslike manner by Miss Marie Kildare, who is a bright and captivating Pattie Lovejoy. Mr Edward A. Warburton is dignified and impressive as Sir George Lancaster, and gives sound evidence of his ability in this character. Miss Isla Vayne plays charmingly as Lucy, and capitally sustains the rôle allotted to her. Miss Georgette Thierry carefully depicts the malicious nature of Lady Lucretia Lancaster, and the child Lucy, is sweetly played by Little Alice. A fine embodiment of the Mother Superior is supplied by Miss Emily Hughes, to whom a word of praise is due for her capable delineation of the character. The scenery and effects are good, and the staging of the piece is excellent in every detail.

MR G. AUBREY HALL wishes us to state that all the parts have now been filled in Mr Fritz Zorn's new farcical comedy The Designers.

MR BEN GREET seems to have a genius for discovering genius in others, if one can judge by the American papers. His first Everyman (Miss Wynne Matthison) made a great hit in the East, and now Miss Constance Crawley is taking the West by storm. The following is an extract from the New York Musical Courier:—Constance Crawley in her character of Everyman is magnificent. Her acting of a most exhausting part is a mosaic of pure art. One whose judgment in such matters is taken for law and gospel here asserts that Miss Crawley is one of the greatest actresses on the stage of the whole theatrical world, an assertion that one having seen her cannot doubt.

Happy hours are in store for the juveniles who visit the Duke of York's Theatre during the career of Peter Pan, for Mr Barrie has entered fully into the joys and delights of childhood days, and has peopled his newest fantasy with the choicest personages from the pages of Marryat or Cooper, side by side with the heroes of our youth, who interpret incidents which only the most elastic imagination could conceive. The whole is impregnated by the nimble wit and facile fancy which the eminent dramatist has at command, and the blend of humour and pretty sentiment constitutes a piece that no one, old or young, could resist. The play is built upon the fairy story of "The Little White Bird," by Mr Barrie. His fancy takes a bold flight at the opening scene, which lays bare the happy home of the Darlings, where a big Newfoundland called Nana discharges the duties of nurse to the children, preparing their bath, turning on the lights, and even giving the signal for bed. He is the guardian of the children, Wendy, the eldest girl, and John and Michael, and the parents know they can go out to dinner and leave their little ones in safety. Mrs Darling, however, is troubled by the appearance at the window of a face which bodes evil. It had appeared before, but had narrowly escaped, leaving behind nothing but its shadow, which gives no clue to its identity. Nana offends his master, and is banished to the backyard and chained up, so that after Mr and Mrs Darling have gone out, the interloper has his opportunity. It is Peter Pan, the owner of the shadow, who cannot rest till he finds it. By the aid of his guardian fairy, Tinker Bell, who to mortal eyes, is a flitting light, Peter finds his shadow and is putting it on when Wendy awakes. Peter says he is a boy, who, hearing his parents deciding as to his future, determined never to grow up, and ran away on the very day of his birth to a distant land, where he and other lost boys have founded a colony, of which he is captain. Peter so gains the esteem of Wendy that both she and her brothers decide to return with him to his country. To do this it is necessary that they should be able to fly, and after a few lessons they succeed with the aid of Tinker Bell, and the whole party soar away through the open window. A happy colony is that in Never, Never, Never Land, Peter's adopted country, the only regret being that there is no mother, and it is to Wendy that that important position is assigned. But Peter has an enemy—an implacable, deadly foe—in Jas. Hook, King of the Pirates, whose lair is in the neighbourhood. He has sworn to have revenge on Peter, as it was he who cut off the pirate's arm and threw it to the crocodile, with the result that the animal follows him about in order to get the rest of him, Hook's only chance lying in the fact that the reptile has swallowed a clock, the ticking of which warns his victim of his approach. The boys have allied themselves with the Redskins, whose leader, Tiger Lily, falls in love with Peter, and does not hesitate to tell him so. In the depths of the earth Peter's family circle is modelled on the most up-to-date lines, and Wendy is called upon for a tale when the boys retire. She relates the story of her flight from home, adding a happy ending, in which they all return and are welcomed with open arms. With Peter, however, it was quite different, for he had been home again to find his place occupied by another. For fear a like fate may overtake them Wendy and her brothers determine to make for home without delay, the boys, with the exception of Peter, volunteering to accompany them. They soon find themselves in the clutches of the pirates, who hasten on board with their prisoners. Hook is about to make them "walk the plank" when the tick-tick of a clock is heard, and the Captain, with the horror of the crocodile upon him, crouches in a corner in terror. It is only Peter Pan, who has swum to the ship, and, with a time-piece between his teeth, boards the vessel and drives the enemy overboard. The return home of Wendy, John, and Michael is at length accomplished, a warm welcome awaiting them from mother and father, who out of remorse has changed places with Nana, and occupies the kennel.

No one could more befit the title-rôle than Miss Nina Boucicault, who, with all a boy's animation, preserved the spirit of the part throughout its arduous length. She was chivalrous as leader of the boyish band, yet there was an ingenuousness and a gaiety that made the droll lines of the part sharp and clear. Mr Gerald Du Maurier played with his accustomed lightness of style as Mr Darling, but he was not wanting in the part of the heavy villain, for it was to him that the rôle of the pirate chief fell. It was his lot to give several clever imitations of leading actors, and through all he did and said he was accompanied by the instant appreciation, the quick perception, and the constant laughter of the audience. Miss Dorothea Baird was a perfect embodiment of womanly grace and maternal feeling as Mrs Darling. The sincerity of her solicitude for her offspring and the singing of a little lullaby were as infinitely sweet as her passionate joy at the recovery of her lost ones was touching. A high position in favour was taken up by Miss Hilda Trevelyan as Wendy Darling. She portrayed with marvellous truth the dawn of her girlish love for Peter, and the tenderness and grace of the whole assumption was agreeably evident throughout. The brothers John and Michael Darling were made natural and appropriate and often droll by Master George Hersee and Miss Winifred Geoghegan; Miss Joan Burnett gave to the part of the boy Tootles a pleasing prominence that said much for her skill; and as the Twins Miss Pauline Chase and Miss Phyllis Beadon revealed an aptitude for dancing. Smee, the Irish pirate, was acted with grim reality by Mr George Shelton, who was droll to the last degree; and Mr Sydney Harcourt as Gentleman Starkey played a brother buccaneer with ready humour. The character of Tiger Lily, the Indian maiden, was a distinct achievement by Miss Miriam Nesbitt, whose liquid tones and graceful bearing fitted the part to a nicety; and a hit was likewise made by Miss Ela Q. May, who, as an odd and plump little slavey, spoke her lines and smiled a smile in a way that aroused roars of mirth. Mr Arthur Lupino did a marvellous piece of work as Nana, the dog, his facial expression and natural movements being a masterpiece of animal impersonation, and the crocodile also did much for the piece. The various scenes by Mr W. Harford and Mr W. Hann, who painted the first set from the design of Mr W. Nicholson, were finished examples of brush-work; and the play, produced under the direction of Mr Dion Boucicault, never wavered in its progress to success.

DEATH OF FRANK CELLI.

Mr Frank Celli, the handsome and popular baritone vocalist, died in the Robertson Ward of Charing-cross Hospital on Tuesday last. The poor fellow was suffering from a large carbuncle in the back. On Monday he was very cheerful, and joined in a little concert which the sisters of the ward had organised. He had a very bad night, however, and at 10·0 a.m. on Tuesday passed away. Recently he had been appointed a singing professor at the Guildhall School of Music, at which institution he was much liked and respected.

The following is the last letter Celli wrote:—

17, Robertson Ward, Charing-cross Hospital.
Saturday, Dec 23, 1904.

My Dear Old Friend,—It was my intention to have remained in my present state of hazy coma, but the thought struck me that I should like to speak to you a few words before buttoning my eyelids to sleep through the dear old years' retrospects. Crash away, fiddles; flood the house with lights; and ring up the curtain—whilst I sleep. Come in and see me when you can—to-day if possible.

Yours, for ever and aye,
FRANK H. CELLI.

At 10·0 a.m. on the following Tuesday the curtain had rung up, and poor Celli sleeps on!

Mr Frank Celli had many years of varied experience both in serious and comic opera. His long association with the old Her Majesty's Theatre and the Carl Rosa opera company is well remembered for the achievements and successes he made in such parts in particular as Don Giovanni and Mephistopheles, in Faust—indeed, Mr Celli might almost have been credited with having made the latter part his own. Mr Celli had acted and sung in almost every opera of note in the whole English and Italian répertoire, and in most of the great ballad operas which are very dear to the heart of the music-loving public. Some years ago, it is interesting to note, long before The Musketeers boom of a few seasons back, it was seriously contemplated by William T. Carleton, Herbert Standing, and Frank Celli—the three tall and handsome brothers—to appear together in an opera founded on Dumas' masterpiece at a West-end theatre, or at the Casino Theatre, New York, but somehow the affair fell through, and the idea was unfortunately abandoned. A Quaker by descent, Frank Celli was educated for the Civil Service, but when in his teens he took to the study of music, and resolved to do his best to get on the stage. He was about twenty when, with a very limited acquaintance with either the back or the front of the playhouse, he made his first appearance on the boards as Mat o' the Mint, in The Beggars' Opera, at the old Marylebone Theatre. Previously he had sung at one or two concerts, and those early experiences gained him some stage engagements. He sang at the Covent-garden promenade concerts after undergoing a fair course of training, and then secured an engagement with Mr Chute, of Bristol, to take the place of Sims Reeves as Francis Osbaldiston in a revival of the musical drama of Rob Roy. He played after that on the regular stage, and served a fair apprenticeship to the art His next appearance was in town at the Princess's Theatre as Lorenzo, in The Merchant of Venice, in which he sang the incidental songs. From this he went to Madame Rudersdorf for oratorio, and later was with Madame Carlotta Patti, with innumerable concert parties and tours to follow. Thence he drifted into Italian opera, under Mr Mapleson and Mr Gye. With Mr Mapleson Mr Celli played some of the most important characters of his early career, including the title-rôle in Don Giovanni; Papageno, in Il Flauto Magico; and in Lucretia Borgia and many others. His best chances came, perhaps, under the banner of the late Carl Rosa, when he travelled more or less everywhere with him.

Mr Celli at one period received high praise as a tenor singer, and then he developed into a baritone. In comic opera Mr Celli appeared in The Mousquetaires at the Globe, in Naval Cadets, Les Cloches de Corneville (as the Marquis), La Belle Normandie, Claude Duval, The Diva, and The Bric-à-Brac Will at the Lyric in October, 1895. At one time in his career Mr Celli, having saved money, and having had money left him, retired from the stage for a time, and went in for different speculations, all of which did not turn out profitable. So he went an the stage again. Truly can it be said of this actor-author-vocalist that he met with many adventures both by flood and field.

Mr Celli had a turn at almost everything in his time, and had some long and pleasant engagements in the halls. Some years ago he sang "Rorke's Drift," "Ordered Abroad," and other songs. In 1899 he went in for reciting, and gave "The Stowaway" on the occasion of the Carl Rosa Testimonial Fund performance in Dublin. Five years later he presented at the Palace Theatre a series of living pictures, called "Heroes of the Empire," the matter being written by Mr Cayley Calvert, and composed by Mr W. G. Eaton. He was some six years ago a member of the late Augustin Daly's company in New York, and later appeared at the Albambra in The Handy Man. Mr Celli was the author of several songs and plays, Stirring Times, in conjunction with Brian Daly, being one of the most notable. He also wrote Happy-Go-Lucky and The Opera Singer, which contained many incidents from Mr Celli's own life and experiences. We regret to say that four children have been left totally unprovided for. The funeral will take place at Highgate Cemetery at 1·30 on Tuesday next.

ON Tuesday was produced at the Theatre Royal, Lincoln, for the first time in England, for copyright purposes, a drama, in four acts, by Hal Reid, entitled At Cripple Creek; or, The Silver Shaft.

PRESENTATION.—After the initial performance of the Kennington Theatre pantomime Aladdin on Saturday last, the staff presented their manager, Mr Harold Entwistle, with a brilliant diamond stud and breast-pin combined, as a mark of their esteem and goodwill.

Elily Blake	Miss MONICA KELLY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This play, which is the latest from the prolific pen of Mr J. W. Whitbread, is founded on the stirring and historical events connected with the Williamite wars in Ireland. In dealing with the subject the author has made the piece pure and simple melodrama, and the excellent style in which it was rendered by Mr Kennedy Miller's company made it a complete success. The drama opens with De Genkle, the Commander of King William's army, and several officers of his staff, discussing, in view of Limerick, the siege just raised, and Sarsfield's gallant defence of the city from William's desperate assaults. As they move away an old woman, Molly the Pishogue, appears with her pretty daughter Elily, who, on account of her good looks, becomes at once the recipient of offensive attentions from the Duke of Wurtemberg, but is saved from further insult by the opportune arrival of Sarsfield. The latter is immediately attacked by the enraged German Duke, the attack, however, quickly terminating by the sudden appearance of Lady Honor De Burgho and her cousin, Lady Rose Sydney. Lady Honor, of whom the duke is deeply enamoured, learning the cause of the fracas, is greatly incensed thereat, her dislike for him becoming the more pronounced, while her admiration for Sarsfield, whom she had not heretofore seen, though long her hero in secret, quickly develops into a tenderer feeling. Lady Rose, also smitten with the personal charms of the chivalrous Irish general, and already grown jealous of the attention he has shown her cousin, schemes with the Duke to have her captured by some of "Kirke's Lambs," and by their brutality terrorised into giving her consent to marry him—the Duke. The attempt is frustrated by Sarsfield, who has received timely warning from his faithful henchman, "Gallopin' Hogan," a bold rapparee.

In the next act matters have progressed so far that Sarsfield is the acknowledged suitor of Lady Honor. She is expecting his return from one of his numerous hurried visits to Athlone and Galway in performance of his arduous duties. It is All Hallows Eve, and, imbued with the superstition associated with this eventful night, she has hung from her window her glove in the hope that her gallant lover will obtain it, thus doubly, in accordance with the ancient legend, securing him to herself. Lady Rose, however, in her jealous spite, has changed it for her own, having arranged with the Duke to bring in her cousin's glove, while hers will be left for Sarsfield; but Molly the Pishogue, having observed the proceedings, changes the gloves again, and Sarsfield arrives, gladdening the heart of his lady love with the sight of the gage of affection in his possession, leaving Lady Rose chagrined and disappointed at the failure of her ruse. The scene between the lovers is, at her instigation, rudely broken in upon by the Williamites; Sarsfield is taken prisoner, but, with the aid of Hogan, is freed from his bonds, and though surrounded by foes, openly defies them to attack him. Escaping, he makes his way to the trysting tree, where Lady Honor had promised to meet him. The assignation, however, is known to Lady Rose, who at once skilfully sows the seeds of distrust in the hearts of the pair. She accuses each of falseness to the other, ingeniously gives them apparently ocular proof of the truth of her statement, but her schemes, though near success, are rendered abortive by the watchful solicitude and care of their two faithful servitors.

In the following act Sarsfield and Lady Honor are married. Owing to the exigencies of his military duties and his enforced presence in Limerick during its second siege by the Williamites, husband and wife are practically separated. Taking advantage of this Lady Rose, who is more terribly embittered against Lady Honor than ever, intercepts a note written by Sarsfield to his wife. This, under equivocal circumstances, she intentionally allows Lady Honor to discover. The latter, in face of the evidence she possesses, at once suspects her husband of an intrigue with Lady Rose. She watches him, sees him arrive, and climb the ivy to Lady Rose's chamber. Fully persuaded of his infidelity, she bursts into the room, only to have her suspicions confirmed by finding Lady Rose in his arms. Convinced of his faithlessness, she, despite his protestations of innocence, spurns him from her side, calling upon the Duke, who also has climbed into the chamber, to avenge the insult to her heart and honour. He assaults Sarsfield, but is quickly disarmed, and the Williamite officers appearing, Sarsfield, with doubts as to his own wife's fidelity, created by the inuendos and carefully arranged plans of Lady Rose, hastens from the scene. Subsequently, Lady Honor, learning of the trap she has fallen into, determines on crossing at all costs to Limerick to make her peace with her husband. She narrowly escapes abduction by the Duke, but with the assistance of the faithful Hogan eventually reaches St. John's Castle, only to find, however, that her cousin has preceded her, and to hear herself accused of having voluntarily fled with the Duke. She exposes the treachery aimed at her life and happiness, but the Duke appearing and corroborating Lady Rose's statement, she appeals to her husband to believe in her innocence. He does so, is at once attacked by the Duke, but is run through the body by Sarsfield. Under the impression that he is a dying man, the Duke confesses the truth. Lady Rose, enraged at his perfidy and cowardice, is about to stab him; frustrated, she turns her rage on Sarsfield, who only escapes death by an accident, the knife of the Duke's servant, intended for him, being buried in her own bosom. Following quickly on this, we have the capitulation of the city, the signing of the celebrated treaty, and the departure of Sarsfield with the Irish army for France.

The title-rôle was in the capable hands of Mr Robert Faulkner, who gave a most energetic and spirited rendering. Mr Dane Clarke was responsible for a capital impersonation of the exacting character of General De Genkle; as the Duke of Wurtemberg Mr Albert Sinclair played with great judgment; and Mr Ion Ireland's assumption of the part of General Talmash was excellent. As Hans Oosterman Mr Harry Richardson has a part to which he did full justice; and Mr James O'Brien as Terry Hogan, better known as Gallopin' Hogan, has a part that affords him ample scope for the display of his humorous abilities. Miss Maud Tremayne as Lady Rose displays much ability; as Lady Honor De Burgho Miss Annie Hylton is sympathetic; Miss Arnott, as Molly the Pishogue, is responsible for a capital delineation and Miss Monica Kelly makes a pert Elily Blake. The incidental music has been carefully selected and arranged by Mr P. M. Levenston.

"LEAH KLESCHNER."

A Drama, in Five Acts, by C. M. S. M'Lellan, Produced at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, Dec. 12.
(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT).

Mrs Fiske has scored a great success in the title-rôle of this play, which was written by the author of The Belle of New York, and has received most favourable consideration in the newspapers. Leah Kleschner is the daughter of a burglar, who, when the play begins, is known as Mons. Garnier. The girl has been trained in crime, and is herself a housebreaker. Raoul Berton, the dissolute son of General Berton, wants Leah to become his mistress, and Kleschner acquiesces, even trying to persuade his daughter to do what Berton asks. But Leah has treasured the recollection of a man whom she once met under peculiar circumstances. She and another thief named Schram were passengers by the steamship Marseilles, which was wrecked and lost in the Mediterranean Sea. The passengers embarked in a lifeboat. The storm was fierce, and the captain was swept overboard and drowned. One of the imperilled passengers seized the boat's helm and took command, pacifying his panic-stricken companions in danger and effecting a safe landing. The hero of this adventure was Paul Sylvaine, a member of the French Assembly. The action of the play begins a year later in Paris. Kleschner and Schram attempt to rob Sylvaine of his family jewels, sending Leah into his house at dead of night to commit the crime, but they are baffled by Sylvaine's discovery of the thief, and by Leah's simultaneous recognition of Sylvaine as the hero of the shipwreck, whom she has since secretly worshipped. Sylvaine has ideas of his own regarding criminals. He pities them, believing that none are beyond redemption. And so, instead of calling the police, Sylvaine talks to Leah, appeals to her moral nature, tells her she is really good at heart, and sends her away weeping and repentant. Before she leaves, however, Raoul Berton, who is on a midnight spree, enters in a drunken condition by the window, and, finding Leah there, accuses Sylvaine of immorality. Leah tells Berton why she is there, and for the first time he learns that she is a thief and the daughter of a thief. The revelation sobers him. Sylvaine goes with Leah to the door, and during his absence from the room Berton pockets the jewels that Leah came to steal and takes his departure. Sylvaine shortly discovers the loss, and suspects Berton, but as he is engaged to marry Berton's sister he is placed in a difficult position. But he stands by Leah, refuses to give her up to the police, and offends the Bertons so that they break the engagement. Young Berton, pursued by the police, nearly involves the Kleschner gang in ruin by coming to their rooms to beg for shelter. Leah declares her intention to quit the life of crime, and meets with strong opposition from her father, who threatens to keep her a prisoner, but finally has to let her go in order to save himself. By her coolness and ready wit she deceives a detective who is waiting below, and enables her father and associates to escape. Then she returns to the little place in Austria where she was born and brought up and works in the lettuce fields. Three years later Sylvaine seeks her out, and she consents to become his wife.

The play is admirably acted. Mr Charles Cartwright, who came over from London to appear in this play, gave a powerful and vivid portrayal of the professional thief, Kleschner, and held the attention of the audience from the outset. Mr George Arliss as young Berton, a clean-shaver, mean-looking Frenchman, exhibited another clever make-up and added a superb characterisation to his répertoire. Mr John Mason was at his best as Paul Sylvaine, and played the part with fine dignity and distinction. Mr William B. Mack was an excellent Schram. The final scene, showing the lettuce fields bathed in sunlight, is a stage picture of surpassing beauty.

BIRTHDAYS OF THE WEEK.

Most heartily we wish many, many happy returns of the day to the following ladies and gentlemen:—

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Dec. 26, the Drama, entitled
"A GREAT SENSATION."

Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company is the attraction here this week in the above drama. It is remarkably well acted throughout, especially by Miss Beatrice Isaacson, who is most successful as Eva Dale, and Miss Edith Wallis, whose performance of Sidonie is both powerful and attractive. Miss Marian Mayne is clever; Miss Vic Raymond is good as the waif; and Miss Ruby Carlton is a bright and pleasing Hortense. Among the gentlemen Mr Sydney Hallows comes first with an earnest and manly rendering of the part of Jack Damer; Mr Alexander Isaacson presents a clever portrait of Bunko Bates, the millionaire; Mr H. Clayton is a dignified Stephen Damer; Henry Esmonde is well acted by Mr Tom V. Mustoe; Mr Frank Venn is excellent as Robin Dale; Mr William Ames gives a good rendering of Wiley Jones; and Mr Cecil Morand plays Peter satisfactorily. Mr George Collinson does all that is possible with the part of Bruce. The remaining characters are in competent hands, and the drama is well mounted.

AT the Theatre Royal, Aldershot, My Lady Molly has been played for the first three nights of the week by Mr Arthur Hart's company. Miss Agnes Tandy gives a fine enactment of Lady Molly, and her winsome manner and marked ability cause Miss Maude Thorne's Alice to stand out prominently. Miss Sybil Thorne's Hester is well played, and a good portrayal of Harry Romney is contributed by Mr Edmund Sherras, who is vocally successful. Mr Frederick Hobbs gives a capital personation of Sir Miles, and Mr Stuart Alexander as Lionel Brand does well. Mr Arthur Powell keeps the house in a merry mood by his irresistibly funny Micky O'Dowd, and Messrs Thos. R. Norbury (Reubin) and Mr Chas. Burney (Judge Romney) are successful in every way. Misses Sophie Grundy, Maude Mandlek, Maud Lucy, and Messrs Alf Grant and Donald Logam are in minor rôles, and a number in the chorus add a share in the musical portion and evolutions.

WILLIAM HENRY TANNER died on Dec. 23 at the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, Old Kent-road, aged seventy-three years, and was interred in his private grave at Brompton Cemetery on Thursday. He was at one time co-lessee, with Mr Parkes, of the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and also had the Montpelier at Walworth for a considerable period. Mr Tanner was well-known in the profession also as an old-time performer and trainer of dogs. The funeral arrangements were entrusted to Mr P. Dunkley, of the Obelisk.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE Market-yard, West Hartlepool, which is generally admitted to be one of the best all-round pitches, is busy for the festive season. W. Murphy's gondolas are in full swing. Blakey's wrestling booth introduces Purvis and Luni, W. Davies' colliery exhibition is a draw, and in addition to these are Kitson's shots, kokers, and darts, and R. Smith's footballers and boxers; and in Lynn-street Randall Williams's pictures attract crowds, who thoroughly enjoy the steady pictures and the magnificent organ.

MR HENRY JOHNSON, who has just attained his ninety-eighth birthday, and is living in retirement at Grantham, is a gymnast who has performed before three Sovereigns of England. At the age of fourteen he became associated with Sanger's Circus, and afterwards entered into partnership with the Chinese juggler Mullaba. About the year 1830 they performed before Baron Rothschild, at Aylesbury, and while in that town received a communication from King William IV. commanding them to appear before him and his Court at Buckingham Palace. His Majesty rewarded them with £50 each, and granted them a royal licence to play in any market place, town, or hotel. Subsequently they gave an exhibition before the late Queen Victoria, then a girl, and the Duchess of Kent at the Royal Hotel, Tunbridge Wells. Mr Johnson has also appeared before King Edward VII., when Prince of Wales, at Sandringham.

AT the Wonderland in Mealcheapin-street, Worcester, Messrs Barker and Bell opened on Monday with their premier marionettes and numerous attractions, and are doing good business.

AT Samuels' Exhibition Palace, Dublin, the Imperial French marionettes (Messrs Chester and Lee) are announced, and are a great success. At the World's Fair, Dublin, Mr C. A. James is presenting Messrs Pettigrove and Sons' marionettes in a version of The Babes in the Wood; George Harcourt, descriptive vocalist; and Eugenie. At 9, Mary-street, Captain Eagle Davis and his lady knife throwers are showing to crowded houses

PRESTON Christmas Pleasure Fair was held on the market ground, when the following travellers attended:—Mr George Green, switchback horses; Mr Jno. Green, switchback gondolas and gallopers; Mr Wm. Clark, jun, Cinématograph and Phantoscope; the veteran Jas. Norman, electric pictures; Mr Tom Harrison, turnover boats; and Mr Jno. Green, park swings. A large variety of games, &c., were presented by Messrs Garlicks, J. Wilson, Jas. Dewhurst, Tom Taylor, W. H. Taylor, J. Richmond, F. Harrison, Jas. Taylor, and others. A very successful fair.

THERE are two fairs or carnivals only, recognised by authority, in Norwich, one at Easter, the other at Christmas. The Easter fair opens on Maunday Thursday, continuing on the Saturday and Easter Monday and Tuesday. This fair was originated by Charter, dating many hundreds of years ago, and is called or known by the name of "Tombland fair." It is especially interesting to the county of Norfolk, and is held at the same time as the sheep and horse fairs. The other fair is held at Christmas, and opens on Boxing Day and continues two days afterwards, except when Sunday intervenes, when it is continued on the Monday and Tuesday. This is the Citizens' Fair, and its origin is unknown. It has existed, however, for a considerable period, and the orthodox rule is, every citizen and his family should visit the fair on Boxing Day. This year it is most successful owing, no doubt, to the energy and efforts of Mr Barker, the esteemed vice-president of the Van-Dwellers' Association. Mr Barker, with Mr C. Thurston, Mr J. Crichton, and others, really make the "pleasure" of the fair. Among the principal shows are those of Mr J. Crichton, Mr C. Thurston, and Messrs Barker and Thurston's Royal Cinématograph entertainment. Messrs Barker and Thurston have also three magnificent gondolas, whilst Mr Crichton and Mr Stocks have horses and gallopers. There are smaller machines by Mr Cheeseman, Mr Hurn, and Mr John Holmes. Mr C. Semmence and Mr C. Wheatley respectively have boxing saloons, Mdlle. Levita gives a snake-charming exhibition, and the shooting saloons belong to Messrs E. Osborne, H. Westrop, H. Parkins, and John and R. Holmes are attractions in themselves. Mr Ingram's dog and monkey circus and other muscular stands make up a good fair, which has been well patronised all round. Messrs Barker and Thurston continue to occupy the Agricultural Hall (there being no circus there this year), and will continue after the fair is over. It is satisfactory to say they are all doing well. Many expressions of regret were heard among the fair people at Norwich at the death of Mrs Emma Bostock (née Wombwell), whose death we recorded last week, and sympathy generally is felt for the bereaved relations.

LIEUTENANT R. H STAINES, the lion tamer, was married to Miss Curtis at St. John's Church, East London, South Africa, on Nov. 9. After the ceremony all concerned adjourned to Fillis's Circus, where a photograph was taken, the bride and bridegroom remaining in the lion's den, where speeches were given.

MR. WM. BIDDALL and the Editor of The Era will be pleased if Mr John Barker will communicate with them "in care of The Era Office" concerning the Elliott children.

FAVOURED with fine weather, the Garrison Field Carnival at Sunderland has passed its twenty-second year of existence under the partnership of Messrs Murphy and Cooper, the pioneers of showland in the north of England. The Garrison Carnival has an ideal fair ground, centrally situated, well sheltered, ashed, and dry. Amongst the shows and showmen present we noticed Mr William Murphy's Golden Venice, Baker's twin yachts, Hamilton's horses and ostriches, Wingate's cycle track, and Kaye's miniature horses and swings. Along the exhibition circle we noticed the new theatre of Messrs Mackney Brothers as popular as ever, Cooper's well-known Bioscope, Sahib Leo's exhibition, with wonders from the land of the Pharaohs; Mrs Birch's combined midget and swimming exhibition, and Prof. Moore's male and female athletes. In the boxiar-terrace we noticed the fair-ground games of Messrs J. T. Cooper, Sheerans, Bliss, Smith, Mitchison, Wilson, Hancock, and Veti. Messrs Malton's Empire photographic studio occupied a prominent position at the entrance.

AT Hillkirk-street, Beswick, Manchester, are Sedgwick's No. 1 menagerie, Dennis's circus, and various novelty ground booths. The machines on the ground were the famous farmyard set of T. Hurst, the lessee and manager of the fair; Holden's steam yachts, Geoghan's hurdle leapers and range of park swings, with the usual coker, emmas, and other throwing games.

THE Hyde-road, Ardwick, ground, under the management of Hibbert, had the following exhibits:—Hague's fine arts, Professor Carl Hartley's show, and Gal Hague's school of boxers, black and white. The Hibbert aggregation included the Newmarket riding school, the African ostrich farm, and the skyscrapers. The White Family exhibited various novelties; Ingham Brothers with novelty stalls; and varieties in abundance by the Harringtons, the Jennings, the Mitchells, and Messrs Smith, Beckett, Wright, Whiting, Fenton, Mulhearne, Foster and a host of others.

THE principal concerns on the Trafford-road grounnd were Chippendale's menagerie, Layland's marionettes, Proctor's circus, Weston's athletes, Relph's novelty booths, and others.

THE machine list included the well-known concerns of Messrs Holmes, Hodder, Humphrey, Richards, and Hurst's No. 2, with the usual attendant throng of the providers of minor novelties.

AT Ordsall-lane are Whiting's gondolas, Biddall's circus, Kirley's park swings, with the usual array of minor novelties, to the full capacity of this excellent small ground, which was, as usual, under the management of John Whiting, lessee.

AT Rochdale for the Christmas holidays were Ralph Leyland's marionettes and the No. 2 Cinématograph, Hancock's fine art academy, and the roundabout concerns of Messrs W. Mitchell, Thomas Mitchell, John Geoghan, J. Sharp, and Sam Robinshaw, Winchester ranges and rifle saloons by Messrs Sharp, Jewell, Henshaw, Wilson, and Hancock; other varieties by Messrs Thomas, Dearden, Langton, Ingham, Henshaw, Hoadleys, Leyland, and Wilson.

AT Lillie-road, Fulham, under Mr Bedford's management, are Curley's varieties, Warwick's fine art and Renton's novelty booth, Wilson's four-abreast galloping horses, Parr's big boat, and Edwards' swings and Winchester range; the minor novelties, all the fun of the fair, were by the Pickards, Mr Coates, Miss Clark, and others.

THE subscriptions to the Guild funds we acknowledge this week are from Mr George Green, of the Glasgow carnival, £2 2s.; Messrs J. Bibbey and Co., 10s. 6d.; and Mr Fred Bibby, 10s. 6d. Will other subscribers send in their money to the Guild secretary, 48, Herbert-street, Hoxton, N., at once? The slowness with which the outstanding subscriptions are coming in prevent the books being sent to the auditor.

LET committeemen also make a note of this, and facilitate the audit by prompt dispatch of the members' money they hold in hand.

WE reiterate that we do not write history, or pretend to chronicle actual facts in the series of tales now appearing in The Era, under the general title "Stories of Showman Life." We take it as a compliment that people think they are true. That is the glory of good fiction, that it reads like the truth.

AT Worcester Christmas Carnival we have Mr H. Strickland's Grand National steeplechasers, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle shooters, &c.; also Mr T. Scott's steam roundabouts, park swings, egg and globe shooters, cokernut sheets, and other numerous attractions.

AT Astwood Bank Mr Holloway's New Empire Theatre is still drawing large houses. This week we have had hot-pudding eating for a purse of silver; also one evening the oldest lady visiting the theatre was presented with a Christmas present of a fowl, and the oldest gentleman with a quarter-pound of tabacco and pipe. A very successful season is now drawing to a close.

MR HOLLOWAY'S New Empire Theatre, Astwood Bank, has had a very successful season of ten weeks. Mr Holloway applied for a licence for another month a week or two ago, but the authorities would only grant a week. Mr Holloway was very generous during his visit—£10 to the Hospital Society and £3 to the Children's Christmas Party.

IN South Wales amusements are many and varied. At Pontypridd Messrs Wadbrook's fine Electrograph, with Mazzoni, the handcuff king, and Sydney Stewart, a clever pianist, are appearing. In the same town are Messrs Danter and Wright. At Ton-y-Pandy the Hippodrome and Crecraft's Bioscope and lion show are the chief attractions. At Aberdare Mr Haggar's Biograph is paying its usual Christmas visit. Mr S. White's aerial flights and tunnel railway are at Landore. Messrs Hy. Studt's amusements in Swansea are always welcomed by young and old. Madame D'Arc's waxworks, now in Cardiff, have many improvements. Mr Stoll's Panopticon is quite up to date. Mrs Harry Scard, just recovered from a serious illness, has rejoined the concern. Wadbrook's Cinématograph and variety theatre at Pontypridd. Mrs Scard feels unable to answer the great number of friends whose kind inquiries have cheered her in her illness.

WE record with deep regret the death of a well-known London showman, John Brock. We also are sorry to know that, owing to his long and serious illness, the family are in poor circumstances, and we trust that his fellow travellers in the London district will send help. He passed away on Monday, the 26th, at 22, Shipton-street, Hackney-road.

HOCKEY.

MISS WINIFRED BRADLEY'S (LADIES) ELEVEN v. JACK LEONARD'S (GENTS.) ELEVEN.

Played near Clifton Downs on Saturday, Dec. 17. Miss E. Bowman, although far from well, played a very plucky game in goal for the ladies' team. The following were the players:—

Miss Winifred Bradley's (Ladies) team—Miss E. Bowman, goal; Miss E. Francis and Miss M. Hamilton, back; Miss L. Norris, Miss C. Fowler, and Miss L. Coles, half-backs; Miss B. Godfrey, Miss W. Bradley (captain), Miss K. Montgomery, Miss F. Hooper, and Miss N. Lawrence, forwards.

Jack Leonard's (Gents.) Eleven. M. Leonard, goal; F. Hodges and B. Green backs; J. Leonard (captain), F. Thorne, and J. Lewis, half-backs; E. Hutchings, H. Webber, H. Slade, A. Mattock, and A. Foley, forwards.

Referee, Miss E. Lewis (of Cheltenham). Result:—Miss Winifred Bradley's (Ladies) Team, two goals; Jack Leonard's (Gents.) Eleven, five goals; Misses L. Norris, B. Godfrey, Messrs B. Green, H. Webber, J. Leonard, and H. Slade (two), scored the goals.

AT West Ham Police-court, on Saturday, George Williamson, a coster, was charged with breaking and entering the Theatre Royal, Salway-road, Stratford, with intent to steal. Early on Saturday morning Constable Pauline, 305 K, was in Angel-lane, Stratford, when he heard a crashing of glass. The noise emanated from the Theatre Royal, so the officer went to the cashier's house close by, and that man accompanied Pauline to the theatre, and they entered, the cashier opening the door with his key. On arriving at the manager's office, the constable saw the prisoner in the room and asked what he was doing. He replied, "You do very funny things when you are drunk." An examination of the place showed that nothing was missing, and it was found that an entry had been effected by breaking a window and then climbing through it. The prisoner was remanded.

PRESENTATION.—Mr Henry Tweedie, Miss Olga Nethersole's business-manager, was on Christmas morning the recipient from her of a massive silver cigar box, inscribed "Henry Tweedie, from Olga Nethersole." This memento of Miss Nethersole's second company of Sapho, of which Mr Henry Tweedie was in charge, will prove a precious souvenir of a very happy tour.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

EASTBOURNE.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr A. Standen Triggs.—Mr George Dance's company is appearing here in The Duchess of Dantzic. As is usual with Mr Dance's ventures, the company is of the highest class and the dresses and scenery of the very best. First mention must be made of Miss Rita Presano, whose fine voice and skilful acting make a fine performance, which ranges from broad comedy to deep passion. Miss Alice Coverick is a pretty, graceful, and girlish Renee, Miss Amy Burton is a bright and lively Lisette, and the Misses Edith Carlyle and May Harris are sufficiently imperious as the sisters of Napoleon. Mr Frederick Moyes is an impressive and dignified Napoleon. Mr Mackeasay Cullen works hard as Lefebvre. Mr Colin Mackay is a quaint and hardworking Papillon, whose singing and dancing are excellent. Mr Thomas C. Maxwell, in addition to capable acting, uses a fine voice in a most artistic manner, and he is an unqualified success both as Phillipe and Adhemar. Space does not permit of the mention individually of the remaining members of the very long cast, but all the help is well given. The large chorus and augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr B. J. Patterson.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—Mr Hayes has supplied the patrons here with a very delightful and seasonable entertainment in The Fairy's Dilemma. The company is that of Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux, and the excellent work of the members together with the cleverness and refinement, comprise an admirable performance. Miss Estelle Winwood is a most attractive Fairy Rosebud, whose pretty face, voice, and manner are capitally used. Miss Gertrude Hope is a prepossessing and pleasing factor as Clarissa, and Miss Ada Homer does capital work as Lady Angela, while Miss Frances Wood and Miss Florence Adale do all that is necessary as Mrs Crumble and Nursemaid. Mr C. H. Hewetson is a most expressive and effective Demon Alcohol; Mr Frank Stanmore invests the part of the Rev. Parfitt with a great deal of humour; Mr Frank Collins as the judicial wit Justice Whortle provides many hearty laughs; and Mr Asheton Tonge is an excellent Colonel Sir Trevor. The pretty transformation scene is a source of wonder and delight to the juveniles. The Conversion of Nat Sturge precedes. In this Mr A. Tonge is a most amiable Bishop; Mr Frank Collins a realistic Burglar; and Miss Eva Turnour an appropriate Julia.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—The capital holiday programme here is attracting very large audiences, and crowded houses have been the rule. Miss Rosie Lloyd charms and amuses with her extensive powers as a comedienne; Mr Cyrus Dare provides one of the most popular turns of the evening, and his very clever child studies quite capture the audience; Miss Lottie Siegenberg is extremely smart in her quick-change act, and she dances well; Messrs Burke and M'Voy supply an expert tumbling and acrobatic performance; Mr Max Sterling is a clever illusionist with novel methods; Mr Charles Danton is equally good as a successful comedian and an accomplished dancer; Mr Maurice Hoffman and a lady appear in a very amusing sketch, The Mad Inventor; the Hippodrome Pictures provide a pantomime in film; and Caban's Ponies complete the programme.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford. Robinson Crusoe is the annual for this season, and is produced by Mr Mouillot's company under the direction of Mr Guyton Heath. The author, Mr F. Leslie Moreton, tells the story very much on the same lines as Defoe, but introduces several dramatic scenes in order to bring it up to date. The production has been well rehearsed and went excellently. Local topics occupy a prominent place, while other matters of interest are frequently introduced. The company is a good one, and there are plenty of capital songs with swinging choruses. The title-rôle is filled by Miss Rose Helene, who is sure to establish herself a prime favourite. Man Friday is capably filled by Mr Bert Barry. Mr Mat Melrose makes an excellent dame. The principal girl (Miss Mary Conroy) as Crusoe's sweetheart has a bewitching manner. Mr Percy Cahill (Will Atkins) and Mr Charles Stephenson (Robin's brother) combine well with Man Friday and the dame in keeping the funny business up to date, their patter being very clever. Miss Rene Phillips and Mr Eric Phillips impersonate Britannia and Neptune well. Of the specialities the Almonte Troupe gave a smart sketch, and the dancing of the Florodora Girls is very graceful. The music, composed and arranged by Mr W. J. Damant, is attractive and quite up to date. The chorus is a good one and the ballets are effective. The scenery and dresses are smart.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—The pantomime season was opened in Falkirk on Monday, when Messrs Little and Darcy's company put before a packed house the good old story of Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves. The company was large and competent. The chorus, numerically strong, sang very nicely. The dresses were pretty, the scenery gorgeous, the ladies charming, the music and singing catchy and sparkling, and the dancing vivacious. Mr Dan Agar appears as Ali Baba, and he, along with Mr James Ferguson as Ali's wife, provide much of the merriment. Miss Minnie Silcott as Abdallah, the captain of the thieves, makes a captivating chief. Miss Violet Silcott and Miss Marie Silcott fill the respective characters of Ganem and Morgiana very cleverly. Other notables are Mr Ted Wootton, Mr Malone, Mr Conley, Mr Louis Scott, and Mr Ernest Brown. In the course of the pantomime there are a number of variety turns. No better or more accomplished trick cyclists can there be than the Daunton-Shaw Troupe (five in number), who, in picturesque Australian garb, perform daring and marvellous feats on the wheel. Then the Three Woodbee Wonders as acrobats would be difficult to eclipse. Their performances are not only clever, but entertaining. The Tivoli Quartet of dancers also charm, and the contributions of the Sisters Silcott are much appreciated.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Mr Frank Curzon's company, with Sergeant Brue, is the holiday attraction. Mr Willie Freear is humorous as Sergeant Brue; Mr Percy Rogers acts and sings well as Michael Brue; Miss Constance Lait is charming as Aurora; Miss Eliza Earle is very funny as Sarah; Mr Arthur Stroud does remarkably well as Gerald Treherne; Mr Cecil Burt as Mr Crank deserves praise; Mr George Barratt is exceedingly clever and amusing as Crookie Scrubbs; and Miss Violet Dene fills the part of Lady Bickenhall with ability.

GATESHEAD.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—An attractive variety programme has had the effect of drawing crowded audiences during the present week. The bill is headed by Auto Atlas, strong man, and the Three Seabornes provide a wonderful equilibristic act. Gerald Mount, vocalist and mimic, is responsible for a good turn, as also is Ernesto, juggler and musical equilibrist. The M'Kays provide an amusing turn, and the Albano Troupe give an interesting musical speciality act. Other good turns are provided by Andy Burn, comedian and dancer; the Crown Trio; Fred Casburn, quaint comedian; and Grey and Welford, comedians.

GAINSBOROUGH.

KING'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr E. Greaves.—Mr Arnold Bell and company opened on Boxing Night in Ben-My-Chree. Mr Bell repeated his powerful rendering of Dan Mylres, and Miss Francis Campbell was a charming exponent of Mona. Mr Dan Farrough was an impressive Bishop. Mr Barlow as the Deemster and Mr C. Imrie as Harcourt, the governor, were good; and Mr W. Reid was excellent as Davy, the fisher lad. The other characters were all capably played. The latter part of the week was occupied by The Fatal Wedding company.

ROYAL HALL.—Manager, Mr Robert Kirk.—Mr Gus Livesey's company appeared here on Christmas Eve in the drama entitled The Crimson Club. The principal characters in the hands of Mr Livesey, Mr Lionel Thompson, Mr Herbert Belmore, Mr J. E. Reed, Miss May Wynlard, and Miss Francis Waring were excellently played. Mr Percy Shaw introduced a clever whistling turn.

GILLINGHAM.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Transfield.—The Frances Harrold sketch company is here, including Mr W. J. Mackay, their contributions to the entertainment being A Christmas Eve and Happy and Comfortable. Other turns are Charles Bignell, comedian; Harry Lynx, comedian; the Sisters Transfield, instrumentalists and dancers; Grace Drew, comedienne; Jean Smedley with illustrated songs; and pictures by the Bio-Tableaux.

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—The pantomimes are all running merrily, but The Forty Thieves takes pride of place for spectacular effect, and could scarcely be surpassed for refinement of taste in scenes, dresses, and grouping. The word magnificent may truly be applied to this pantomime, and the management is reaping a fitting reward.

GRAND.—Cinderella continues her successful career here, and Mr Dan Rolyat has installed himself first favourite. The pantomime, which is charmingly staged, goes with a merry swing.

KING'S, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—Mr George Edwardes's company in The Duchess of Dantzic opened here on Monday. The company is under the direction of an old Glasgow favourite, Mr J. B. Gordon. It is the first visit of the opera to Glasgow, and, judging from the number and enthusiasm of the audience, a most successful run is assured. Miss Amy Augarde appears in the title-rôle, and both vocally and histrionically renders the part of Sans Gene in first-class style. The appearance and manner of the great Napoleon are strikingly realised by Mr Matthew Brodie, and another admirable performance is the Lefebvre of Mr Herbert Clayton. Mr Reginald Kenneth doubles the parts of Phillipe and Adhemar very cleverly, and Mr T. W. Volt extracts a deal of fun from the part of Papillon, while in the characters of Captain Reginer and D'Alegre Mr Morgan Williams bears himself well. Miss Lillian Digges sings and acts charmingly as Renee, as also does Miss Luna Love as Lisette. Miss Mabel Lorrell gives distinction to the part of Josephine, and Napoleon's sisters are played with sufficient haughtiness by Misses Kate Traill and Doris La Tour. The parts of Flageot and Gildon are well filled by Messrs F. W. Bowes and Jocelyn Hope, and Mr Alex. Brask makes a good Montmorenci. The chorus and orchestra are well up to Mr Edwardes's standard, and are under the direction of Mr P. W. Hatton.

PRINCESS'S.—Goosey Gander has fairly caught on here. Fun of a wholesome kind is the predominating feature, but at the same time the costumes are very rich, and the entire production most pleasing in its general effect. Ten rows of stalls having proved inadequate, several rows more have been added to meet the demand.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Between the Lights is this week ably interpreted by a company under the direction of Mr Arthur Read. Mr Alfred Adams as Captain Robert Hinton, the hero, plays excellently, and Miss Nesta Sandford as Violet Warren acts charmingly. Mr Hubert Pearson presents a much-detested villain; Mr Charles H. Fenton undertakes the dual-rôle of Oswald Warren and Ben Armley with marked success; Miss Kate Froude gets a good deal out of a strong part; Mr George Lyttleton, jun., plays Gerald Warren carefully. Much amusement is supplied by the efforts in the comedy parts of Mr Weedon Ross as Jimmy Tickle, Mr H. G. Brandon as Charley Stott, and Miss Florence Barnes as Kitty.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—Mr Alexander Loftus and his company are here with The New Barmaid, in which Mr Loftus successfully sustains the part of William White. Mr Joseph B. Montague as Bertie White is responsible for much of the fun; Miss Nance O'Neil is charming as the New Barmaid; and Miss Violet Osmund makes a very engaging Dora Heather. Mr Frank Melroyd as Monsr. Bonsor adds his quota to the fun, and his eccentric dancing is much enjoyed. Mr Arthur Rodney as Colonel Claymore acts with military dignity, and Miss Jean Gilmour is a very aristocratic Lady Moulton. Mr Leslie Austin as Captain Lovebury gives entire satisfaction, and the other parts are all well filled.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss's, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Aldin.—The programme for the holiday week opens acceptably with a selection from The Orchid, after which follows a clever turn by Toko and Koko, in which novelty in equitation is well illustrated. Vosper is a clever mimic in the facial sense; National songs and dances are well illustrated by the Sarnthalers; Cline and Clarke have had a warm greeting; Tom Edwards, ventriloquist, is at once original, quaint, and clever; the Sisters Jonghmans' concerted singing is a veritable treat; the Driscoll and Beattie Troupe in a very enjoyable sketch add to their reputation, while Keene and Adams ingratiate themselves into popularity by tuneful singing and better dancing; Griff is funny as usual. The performance closes with a thrilling gatling gun parade, the drill, discretion, and military precision of which are notable features.

TIVOLI AND QUEEN'S.—Lessees, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; General Manager, Mr S. King Alexander; Acting-Managers, Mr T. J. Colquhoun and Mr R. Ewing.—A first-class company this week includes the Four Garganis, acrobats; Geo. Formby, comedian; a capital sketch by Verno and Voyce; Bob Nicol, mimic; Regal, juggler; George Bendon, the White Coon; Musical Silvo; W. B. Wheelan, dancer; Two Manzanares, balancing act; Lily Turner, comedienne; Chas. Rose, comedian; Lil Hartley, vocalist; Ralston and Francis, musical scena; and Benson's Bioscope.

PALACE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harry M'Kelvie.—That peculiar comedian Alf Lawrence is again in Glasgow and gives a varied turn. Mons. Brinn's strong turn, Pastimes on a Battleship, includes some marvellous feats. The O'Learys give their smart Oriental acrobatic turn. The Sutcliffe Troupe of pipers, dancers and acrobats contribute a varied display. The Hilgart Argas Combination are smart acrobats and balancers. Bros. Teviotdale, athletes; Alfred Barker and his circus turn; George Rennie, ventriloquist; Johnny Morgan, comedian; and the animated pictures complete a good programme.

BRITANNIA.—Lessee, Mr Jas. Anderson; Manager, Mr Geo. Saphrini; Assistant Manager, Mr Harry Hemfrey.—A first-rate holiday company are at the "Brit." this week. Bob Sloan demonstrates his popularity as a Scotch comedian. The Sisters Terry make a good impression; and two other ladies who share nightly in a generous measure of applause are Miss Jessie Fraser, who has a telling soprano voice, and Miss Olive Poole, a clever burlesque artiste and a capable dancer Tony Freedman remains a favourite with Glasgow audiences as a versatile comedian. Eccentric business of the burlesque order is furnished by Steve Clemont. A film shown by the Bioscope evokes great interest. The Cedrics and Fred Smart, comedian and dancer, complete the bill.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr Wm. Biggam.—Jim Harte's sketch company in Black Justice; the Scouller Family in their clever musical selections; Bendon's Bioscope with new films; Bessie Walters and J. H. Gibson in sentimental ballads; and comedy items by Jack Lorimer, Bob Sloan, Ned Dorans, Jack Mills, and the Merlin Four make up an interesting programme here.

GLOUCESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—On Boxing night for the first time in this district was presented the late Wilson Barrett's play, The Never Never Land, by Messrs John Hart and H. Armitage's company. Mr Edward Rochelle makes a capital Nat Rudder; Mr Edmund F. Kennedy gives a fine embodiment of Jack Mowbray; Jack Landale is excellently impersonated by Mr George M'Kenzie; and Tom Hewley has an able representative in Mr Arthur Bolton. Miss Caroline Barrett is charming as Sybil; Miss Lilian Mason plays in artistic style as Lady Walgrove; Miss Kathleen Barrett acts with grace as Lorna Mannerley; Mr Selby Burrell is capable as Dan Murphy; as is Mr Benson North as Raphael Moses Wolff; Miss Julie Kennard acts skilfully as Sol Berker; Mr Cecil Elgar looks well as Lord Thorland; Caerwon Moody and Wong are well enacted by Messrs Simon D. Ord and Eric Longley respectively.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—Messrs Forge and Dalton's fairy pantomime Cinderella was successfully produced on Monday, and is attracting full houses each evening. In the title-rôle Miss Lizzie Primmer acts delightfully, sings effectively, and dances prettily, and Miss Chummie La Mara is a dashing Prince Paragon, and uses her fine voice to the best advantage, securing innumerable encores Dandini is charmingly represented by Miss Julie Alexander, whose songs are capitally sung; Miss Louie Dennison makes a pretty Fairy; Baron Bunker finds a resourceful representative in Mr Johnny Chippendale; Mr Chal. T. Chaloner is irresistibly comic as Peter Pickles, and sings and dances well; the Ugly Sisters are amusingly portrayed by Mr Fred C. Brooks and Little Tony; Nabber and Nailem are humorously enacted by Mr John Forge and Mr Ted Lemiere; and specialities are supplied by Gertrella, the Quartano Troupe of dancers; Mr Geo. Bright, speciality dancer; Gipsy Blackett; the Swift Trio of bicyclists; Messrs Forge and Lemiere; and the Musical Japs. The scenery is elaborate and effective, the dresses bright and pretty, and the electric lighting effects brilliant.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert.—An exceedingly liberal programme is provided, and much applause greets the various items. Mdlle. Eloina gives an exceedingly clever performance on the high trapeze; the Musical Savonas show themselves accomplished musicians, and a tremendous ovation awards their efforts; the Four Andys provide a smart acrobatic act; six performing bears and a troupe of monkeys give a fine demonstration of what animal training can accomplish; the Six Cycling Elliotts contribute a capital turn; and the Brothers Laure excel as comedy acrobats. Fun is supplied by Bob Anderson and Little Rabbit, the latter of whom also supplies a clever riding act as Senorita La Castania. The pantomime of Santa Claus in colours on the Bioscope is much admired.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr George Dance's company opened a fortnight's engagement at this theatre on Monday with A Chinese Honeymoon. The play is excellently presented by a first-class all-round company, and is drawing crowded audiences. Mr Philip Haydn distinguishes himself in the part of the Emperor, Hang Chow, and uses a fine voice with telling effect; Mr P. Allerton Turner makes an amusing Lord Chancellor; Mr Fred Payne as Hi Lung is quaintly humorous; Mr Percy Yorke is a dashing Tom Hatherton, his singing being much appreciated; Mr Foster Courtenay keeps the audience in a constant ripple of merriment by his amusing antics as Mr Pineapple; Miss Jose Collins makes a captivating Mrs Pineapple, and is a charming dancer; Miss Alice Drummond gives a capital impersonation of Mrs Brown; Miss Nellie Wigley is a sweet and attractive Soo-Soo, singing delightfully; and Miss Vera Vere as Fi-Fi carries off the honours of the evening by her delightful breeziness and genuine humour. The chorus is strong and well balanced and the singing is particularly good.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—Miss Ella heads the bill here and puts a number of trained lions through their paces in an astonishing manner; Bandoni, the one-man band, performs tunefully on several instruments; Chorley and Connor are breezy comedians and dancers; the Great Linton gives a marvellous bounding turn on the slack wire; Bolano is a clever club juggler; and Mr and Mrs Paul Knox prove a most acceptable turn with new songs.

GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr J. H. Curry; Assistant Manager, Mr S. Tolfree.—The melodrama As Midnight Chimes proved a popular Bank Holiday attraction at this theatre. It is the work of Mr Edward Marris, and is played by the author's own company. Prominent amongst the latter is Mr Melville Bickford, who finds plenty of scope to exercise his abilities as a character actor in the part of Luke Dezzard. Mr Frank E. Petley gives a manly interpretation of Dave Stannard, whilst Ezra Gamble, the old smuggler, is picturesquely played by Mr Walter Wilby. Miss Gertrude Price is good as Mary Stannard, whilst commendation is due to Miss Iris M. Ward as Zamorah and Miss Nita Imeson as Suzette. Mr James Salter has caused much merriment as Tat Spavin, a facetious railway porter.

NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—The thrilling cycle sensation "Whirling the Whirl" has been presented here this week by Tom Grave. Crowded audiences have been drawn to witness this daring performance, which has occasioned much interest. The amusing, and at the same time skilful, exhibition of Zarmo, described as a juggling comedian, has proved a highly popular item of the programme. The Dandies, a quintette of musical artists, have given an entertainment that is as remarkable for its excellence as its refined character. Harry Carlton's company has caused much laughter with their absurdity, Obliging a Lady. Charles Bowker, the singing cobbler; the Clarkes, banjo duettists; Fatmah Diard, operatic artist; and Carne Curre, with his educated dog, have completed an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; General Manager, Mr H. F. Millar; Assistant-Manager, Mr H. H. Watson.—Much wonder and interest have been caused by the experiments of that marvellous modern discovery, liquid air, which have been made at the Hippodrome this week. The "Magic Kettle" was especially appreciated. Herr Fritz has also caused much mystification with his illusions. His horse and jockey trick was particularly remarkable. A laughable sketch, That French Woman, has been given by Matt Wilkinson's company. A display of chair vaulting and tumbling was given by the Bros. Levette, whilst the Seltina Troupe were responsible for another capital gymnastic performance. Other turns have included Caselli and James, banjoists; Charles Somers, comedian; and Cribb and Cribb, in a burlesque.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr William Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Crowded houses rule this week. A great attraction is Bud Snyder, trick cyclist. The company also includes Tom Eno, mimic; Beattie Worth, comedienne; Bastow Brothers, gymnasts; Sam Shipley, comedian; Leah Arden, ballad vocalist; Barry Stave, with a novel electric musical speciality; and Simms and Simms, musical grotesques.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—A mystifying illusion, Dida, is the prominent feature in this week's performance, which also includes some capable work by Ada Fawn, burlesque artiste; Stanley and Greenop, banjoists; W. H. Clemart, ventriloquist; Wyotti, juggler; Sivronis, burlesque artistes; W. Permane and his wonderful bears; and Valvere, with his rapid painting and mechanical effects.

VICTORIA HALL.—Manager, Mr. H. Drake.—The Carl Rosa opera company is paying its annual visit, and is meeting with gratifying success. The répertoire for the week includes Faust, Bohemian Girl, Lohengrin, Don Giovanni, Tannhäuser, Rigoletto, Carmen, and Maritana.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—The annual pantomime was presented on Monday afternoon to a capital house. Cinderella is the subject chosen. The book is by Mr Hickory Wood, and the special music is the work of Mr Albert Vernon. Miss Eily Helene in the title-rôle is excellent, and her rendering of the song "Bluebell" caused her to be the recipient of unstinted applause. The principal boy is Miss Hilda Guiver, and her success is beyond dispute. She is a brilliant vocalist and renders her songs admirably, her first song, "Navaho," meeting with great applause, and the duet between Cinderella and the Prince. "I will be true," being one of the most enjoyable items in the entertainment. Mr Morny Cash is seen to advantage in pantomime, his stories, singing, and dancing all being really humorous, his song "Who Killed Cock Robin?" making quite a hit. Miss Rose Snell is the Fairy Godmother, and the outcome is a performance of much excellence. Miss Nora Emerald as Dandini is well placed, her singing and dancing adding to the general success of the pantomime. Miss Madoline Rossiter deserves much praise for her clever dances, which are greeted with much applause. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., as the Baron is quite a host in himself, and the two Ugly Sisters (Messrs Harris and Russell) cause roars of laughter. The New Macs are a great feature in the performance. The Donaldson Brothers introduce their menagerie and make a huge success, the whole of their performance being exceptionally clever. Such items as "You can't do Mac," "Bluebell," "I Always will be True," "Down at the Old Bull and Bush," "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," are sure to be popular. Mr J. Richardson is the general manager and Mr Lindsay-Edwards is the assistant-manager. Much praise is due to Mr Horace Corbyn for such an excellent production, and he is ably assisted by Mr G. Martinengo.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr C. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—The premier position is held by Charles Prinz in his wonderful trained lion show. George Gilbey makes his appearance and achieves a huge success. Gracie Morton is a capital ballad vocalist. Little Ino, a juvenile comedian, meets with much success. Mr and Mrs Harold Findon are seen in a good farce, A Desperate Remedy. Imro Fox, a conjuror of much excellence, does remarkably well. Arthur Gill, comedian, is highly successful. The Three Rickards are gymnasts of extraordinary ability, and the Grand pictures are, as usual, excellent.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—"The Mysterious Grotto" and fire dances by La Roland is a weirdly pretty show. The hand-balancing by the Brothers Belong is smart and decidedly original. A persistent encore is well earned by Sandy and Carl for their tumbling act. Mdlle. Florence's performance on the rolling globe is one of the hits of the evening; a favourable impression is made by Copeland and Son, clog dancers; and acceptable turns are contributed by Geo. Edney, Allea Douglas, and Burns's Bioscope.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr W. F. Morton.—An instantaneous success has been achieved by Mr Morton with the pantomime The Sleeping Beauty, produced under the direction of Mr J. F. Elliston. There is much to commend; it is pretty, and clean in dress, dialogue, and action. It has some charming scenes and a clever colour scheme in costumes, and the ballets are pretty. Messrs W. J. Churchill, Alf Bishop, and Jas. Chippendale are comedians of the right sort, and Miss Esme Gordon is an admirable pantomime Prince. Miss Daisy Stratton is as dainty as a Princess should be, and to Mr Lonnen Meadows, the stage-manager, much praise should be accorded.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wynn Miller.—With a firm faith in musical comedy Mr Hart has chosen The Orchid as his Christmas attraction, and if the full house afternoon and evening of Boxing Day be any criterion, then he will have full cause to be satisfied with his choice. Especially meritorious is Mr Charles R. Walenn, whom we welcome back to Hull as a comedian above the average merit. Noteworthy, too, is the Caroline of Miss Madge Lucas, whose songs have just the right swing. The dresses are gorgeous, the scenery artistic.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; Manager, Mr Geo. Morton.—A Woman's Pluck is a play that has all the features necessary in it to make a successful holiday attraction. Miss East-Robertson is an artist who fills her rôle with considerable distinction, whilst Mr Jas. Willard displays talent as Dick Darrell.

PALACE THEATRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Local Manager, Mr A. Graham.—The scena The Great Glove Fight is a most realistic episode. Leo Stormont is gifted with a capital voice and sings his song with style and finish. Four charming vocalists are the Schutzenlieserl'n.

SYLVESTER'S EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Sylvester Sage.—Rezel tops the bill here in a sensational aerial performance; the Two Ashtons gain much applause in a singing and dancing act; Corney Card is a very smart comedian; Loudoun Cameron, conjuror, performs some neat tricks; the Valmores are responsible for much laughter in a comedy act, entitled A Restaurant Up to Date; Blake, Cohen, and Elsie Page keep their audience interested; and Miss Dolly Vince and Miss Alice Adeson complete a good company.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

BERLAW.—The Crystal Palace Pantomime of 1888 was Cinderella: in 1889, Aladdin; in 1890, Whittington; in 1891, The Forty Thieves. In 1888 the principals were Edward Righton, John and Emma Dauban, Clarence Hague, Susie Vaughan, Amy Liddon, and Edith Bruce. In 1889 the Daubans and Misses Bruce and Vaughan appeared. These ladies also appeared in 1890, with J. J. Dallas, Mat Robson, and Alice Bruce In 1891 the principals were Edith and Alice Bruce Kitty Loftus, Kate Chard, Sam Wilkinson, and William Hogarth.

E. J. B.—The play, under the title of Gold, was originally produced at Drury-lane in 1853. Subsequently Charles Reade turned it into a novel and called his work "It's Never Too Late to Mend." The first adaptation of the novel produced in London was by George Conquest at the Grecian in the summer of 1865. There was a version by J. B. Johnstone at the Surrey soon after Reade's own version, which had had a trial trip at Leeds in the previous year, was produced at the Princess's, Oct. 4, 1865.

CHRIS.—(1) An English version by H. J. Byron called The Pretty Perfumeress, was produced at the Alhambra May 18, 1874. (2) An adaptation of Le Voyage dans la Lune, by H. S. Leigh, was produced at the Alhambra April 15, 1876.

S. P. G.—He did not take up the part until the play was transferred to the Garrick.

OLD STAGER.—The benefit performance was given at the City of London Theatre, and the programme included A New Way to Pay Old Debts. Brooke played Sir Giles Overreach, and Mr W. Searle was the Marrall

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I. COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II. PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III. INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV. MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V. INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

SONGS FOR PANTOMIMES.
Published by JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Limited.
* "CURATE AND THE MAIDEN,"
Written by F. C. Smale. Music by G. H. Stone.
(Very Original and Humorous.)
REFRAIN:—
And she looked so neat on her little oak seat,
So thought the curate when
He carefully blessed her, with all the rest,
And the little maid sighed "Amen,"
* "IN DE CORNFIELDS,"
A Coon Ballad, by Ernest Newton.
† "WHY?"
(Valse Song), by Felix Desgranges.
Latest Parisian Success!
English Version by Clifton Bingham.
† "JOHNNIE BOY"
(Character Ballad), by Mary Ropes and Lionel Elliott.
* "GIVE ME ONE THOUGHT"
(a Pure, Simple Haunting Strain),
Written by Arthur Anderson, Music by John Neat.
Give me one thought whene'er the way seems lonely,
When dark clouds gather, gather round the sun,
What time you need one true companion only,
Contented I to be that one.
‡ "HANDS ACROSS THE SEA"
(a Song of Greater England),
by Byron Webber and Florian Pascal.
* "LAZULI,"
by Gunby Hadath and Pierre Duchênes.
A Beautiful Sentimental Ballad,
† "PICCANINNY'S WALK"
(a Coon Song), by M. E. Winchester.
† "DANCING"
(Character Song, Valse Refrain).
By Adrian Ross and Florian Pascal.
REFRAIN
Oh, heigh oh! for thus and thus we go,
An ankle revealing half way to the ceiling,
And so, and so, and so!
Oh, heigh ho! for thus and thus we go,
With Johnnies and Tommies, and breaches of promise,
And so, and so, and so!

TO THE READERS OF "THE ERA."

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having conducted "The Era" for over forty years, I have, after a very serious illness, been advised by my medical men to retire from the management of this journal. I have, therefore, disposed of it to Mr. William Arthur Hamar Bass, of 145, Piccadilly, and Byrkley Lodge, Burton-on-Trent, who will retain the present staff.

In saying farewell to the readers of "The Era," I wish to offer them my most hearty and grateful thanks for their generous support. During the long period I have conducted the paper, I have endeavoured to assist every deserving case of distress in connection with the Dramatic and Musical World, and have given all my energy to advancing the interest of the Profession.

My only wish is that the paper and the Profession may continue to prosper in the future as they have in the past.

EDWARD LEDGER.

THE DRAMATIC YEAR.

Looking backward over the year that has just passed away, one is struck with the absence of sensational productions, and with the general excellence of most of the "output." The great dramatic event of the year has undoubtedly been Mr BEERBOHM TREE'S revival of The Tempest at His Majesty's Theatre, and his "re-creation" of the character of Caliban. We have already dealt pretty thoroughly with this remarkable performance, so immensely creditable to Mr TREE'S enterprise and artistic sense. Next in importance is Mr OTHO STUART'S production of The Taming of the Shrew at the Adelphi. It is, indeed, an encouraging "sign of the times" that such a really loving and intelligent rendering of SHAKESPEARE'S work could have been given by a company chiefly composed of our younger and rising dramatic artists. Two Shakespearian revivals of such excellence are no bad record to begin with. Unfortunately, there is no "halfway house" in our estimate, unless we consider Mr JAMES BERNARD FAGAN'S Prayer of the Sword, produced at the Adelphi in September, to stand between SHAKESPEARE and the "musical glasses"—i.e., the large number of excellent comedies and comedy dramas which have seen the light in the past year. The most successful of these was, undoubtedly, The Duke of Killicrankie, which had such a long run at the Criterion. While we may congratulate ourselves on the favour with which so bright and clean a work was received, it is not entirely satisfactory that one of the "hits" of the year should have been made by so light and frivolous an "entertainment of the stage." However, if the class of the work presented in 1904 has not been particularly high, the quality has been first-rate. Playgoing during the past year has been extremely interesting. Runs, as a rule, were short; and the number of agreeable and acceptable experiments was consequently great. A characteristic of several of the clever comedies presented was the "free-and-easy" treatment of the divorce question; but there was nothing unsavoury in the handling of matter which might easily have been made offensive. In The Freedom of Suzanne, the heroine was hair-brained, but honest; and the "tendency" of most of the plays provided in the past year has been irreproachable. But the word "interesting" is truly descriptive of the great character of the past dramatic twelvemonth. What a "chapter for the curious" was the production at the Garrick in February last of The Arm of the Law—a translation of one of M. EUGENE BRIEUX'S philosophic criticisms of French life! It shows the enterprise and scope of the English actor-manager that such a piece could have been played—and very well played, too—at a house chiefly devoted to comedy. But Mr ARTHUR BOURCHIER has the courage of his opinions in a very marked degree; and his audacious presentation of the satire on the "smart set" called The Walls of Jericho proved this to the hilt. How eclectic is the Garrick policy was exampled by the performance there of The Fairy's Dilemma, a characteristically "Gilbertian" piece of drollery.

It is not very cheering to notice that, while there do not seem to be any "coming men" to exactly take the places once occupied by Mr A. W. PINERO and Mr H. A. JONES, those two gentlemen have not done themselves justice of late. Mr PINERO'S regrettable descent in A Wife Without a Smile, with its "doll" detail and the controversy which followed it, are not pleasant things to remember; and Mr H. A. JONES'S Chevaleer and Joseph Entangled did not add many leaves to the author's laurels. The parties which have raised their records most this year are those of the "eccentrics" and the "antiquarians." If it may truly be said that Mr. BERNARD SHAW'S John Bull's Island was formless and uneven, there can be no denial of the fact that parts of it were delightfully and originally funny. Then there was the revival of The Way of the World at the Court in April, and that of VANBRUGH'S Confederacy at the Royalty in November. As for importations from Germany, they have been supplied with a liberal hand by the German Theatre company at the Royalty and Great Queen-street Theatres.

The musical play market has been brisk and bright. The Earl and the Girl at the Adelphi and The Cingalee at Daly's were both "well spoken of;" and that the taste of the British public in such matters cannot be very far wrong was proved by the success of MESSAGER'S delicate and artistic Veronique at the Apollo.

We must not, however, allow the dazzling vogue of this popular class of entertainment to blind us to the amount of good work done in other directions. "THOMAS RACEWARD'S" play of Sunday, done at the Comedy in April, was strong and effective, if conventional in design; Mr ISRAEL ZANGWILL'S Merely Mary Ann, at the Duke of York's in September, was worthy of warm praise; Mr ROBERT NEILSON STEPHENS'S excellent romantic comedy Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, which was seen at the Imperial in April, deserved its success; and Messrs W. W. JACOBS and LOUIS N. PARKER'S Beauty and the Barge opened a fresh field at the New Theatre in August. It is not, however, altogether satisfactory that the most promising presentment at the St. James's this year was the recent revival of Lady Windermere's Fan. Our rising dramatists do not appear to have reached the GEORGE ALEXANDER standard; and he has had to go to Germany of late for his originals. What with pieces in German at two playhouses and Rosenmontag and Alt Heidelberg translated for the St. James's, the outlook in certain directions is rather depressing. Farcical comedy has not been much in evidence in 1904, Mr GEORGE ROLLIT'S Moneymakers standing out prominently by reason of its genuine excellence in this department. A "new departure" in the theatrical world was the assumption by the German Theatre, for the moment, of the part which has traditionally been allotted to the Paris Palais-Royal. The recent production of Das Thal des Lebens at the Great Queen-street Theatre certainly altered all our preconceived ideas of the "proprieties" as observed in the "Fatherland."

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

When it was announced a few weeks ago that Mr Arthur J. Barclay had successfully applied for a dramatic licence for the Palace the general opinion was that he had done so not so much with a view to the production of stage plays, but to protect himself against the somewhat irritating laws pertaining to "sketches." Everyone looked for a production at Christmas time, and nobody was disappointed. It has taken the form of a pantomime on the popular lines of Cinderella, which was performed on the afternoon of Boxing Day, and played three times in the course of a few hours. This has been looked after by Mr Espinosa's company, and right well they have done their work. We have seen many Cinderellas, from Kate Vaughan at the "Lane" to Miss Ellaline Terriss at the Lyceum, but have never beheld a prettier exponent of the part than Miss Eva Kelland. Unfortunately, on the occasion of our visit, at the initial performance, nervousness deprived the lady of her voice, but her acting throughout was distinguished by many graces. The author of the present version has certainly not made the part a strong one, but the charming young actress made the most of her limited opportunities. The same remark applies to the Prince Amorel of Miss Kate Brandon, who is reduced to a mere show character. As the ugly sisters, Messrs Benson Cleeve as Iris and Billy Farrell as Selina did their best to make bricks without straw. Perhaps the most artistic triumph was achieved by Miss C. Stroud Wilson as the Fairy Godmother, her singing being of the highest order. Dandini had a delightful exponent in Miss Dora Harrison, who thoroughly entered into the fun of the part and took her share of the music most artistically. Mr Arthur Medwin made a distinct hit as the page, Peter. In the course of the performance Ginnett's Rejected Remounts appeared to the delight of the audience. The Escaladors performed nimbly on their ladders, and Orpheus played delightfully on various instruments, of which the oboe was, if possible, the most popular. The pantomime opening was followed by a short but lively harlequinade, in which the harlequin was Mr Rob Desplaces, the columbine Mdlle. Estella, the pantaloon Mr Paul Peters, and the clown the Great Little Evardo. The music has been selected and arranged by Mr H. Petersen, who has displayed his well-known ability. The manager for the Espinosa Troupe is Mr Guy Hughes.

AT St. Julian's Hall, Guernsey, on Bank Holiday Messrs Carlton and Armitage's company appeared in In the Ranks. Mr Edward Lloyd is highly satisfactory as Ned Drayton. Mr Arthur Byron as Joe is responsible for the comic element, being ably assisted by Miss Harriett Russell (Mrs Buzzard). Miss Edith Blair Staples is successful and attractive as Ruth Herrick; Miss Daisy Norman is effective and impressive as Barbara; Mr Herbert Cecil scores as Gideon Blake; Messrs Arthur Palling and A. W. Chappel as Colonel Wynter and Captain Holcroft are both meritorious performances; while the dissolute Richard Bellon is capably acted by Mr Walter Wilson.

AT Highgate Police-court on Monday, Charles Haranda, fifty, an independent gentleman, of Ferme-park-road, was charged with obstructing Police-constable Haldane, 137 Y, whilst in the execution of his duty. When the fire at the Crouch-end Opera House broke out on Christmas Eve between forty and fifty policemen were placed on duty in the neighbourhood, under Sub-Divisional Inspector Thomas. Fire-engines were at work at the front and rear of the theatre, and it was necessary to run the hose through Elder-avenue, a short thoroughfare connecting two main streets. Policemen were told off to prevent the public from going through the avenue. When the fire was at its height defendant attempted to go into the avenue in order to get a view of the fire, and was stopped by Haldane. As he persisted in his attempts and would not go away he was arrested. A fine of 5s. and 10s. costs was inflicted.

THE three artistic wooden bedsteads of fumigated oak, in which recline the charming children in Peter Pan the Boy who Wouldn't Grow Up, at the Duke of York's Theatre, must have been noticed and admired by all visitors to Mr J. M. Barrie's play. The quaint nursery will supply a pleasant memory to many mothers who take their little people to see the pretty play. It is furnished by Messrs Oetzmann and Co., who have shown their customary good taste. Doubtless, many parents will wish to have their nurseries similarly adorned and embellished.

PRESENTATION.—At the conclusion of Miss Olga Nethersole's Sapho tour, Mr Hodgson Taylor, stage-manager, was presented with a silver card-case and a pair of gold sleeve-links.

AFTER a short Christmas vacation Mr Lilford Arthur will resume his tour with Jones's Jaunt and Mr Charles Collette, opening on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Margate.

PRESENTATION.—Mr G. H. Beagle, general manager of the Grand, Sheffield, had a pleasant surprise on Saturday night, when the staff of the house presented him with a cigar-holder and a box of cigars.

THE MANCHESTER HIPPODROME.

Those who were fortunate enough to be present at the private view on the 23d inst. of Manchester's latest place of amusement were quite willing to believe that for beauty of design, unique arrangement, and luxurious furnishing, the Manchester Hippodrome is equal to any thing of the kind in the kingdom. Mr Stoll, the managing-director, has already given the public a taste of his catering for their comfort and amusement by the erection of a palatial music hall at Ardwick, but for novelty of design and luxury this has been surpassed at the New Hippodrome in Oxford-street. The architects are Messrs Frank Matcham and Co., of London, who designed the London Hippodrome and the Coliseum, and the site selected is an exceptionally good one, being in the centre of Manchester. The front faces Oxford-street and the side Great Bridgewater-street, and the back of the building abuts on the canal, which has been covered in, and thus forms an additional roadway for exits. The block includes, in addition to the Hippodrome, a handsome restaurant at one corner, the building of which is designed on up-to-date lines, and is fitted up with every luxury. The whole of the fittings are of polished mahogany, and brilliant cut-glass makes for a rich appearance. On the other side of the Hippodrome front is a large shop, with offices over, the elevation corresponding with that of the restaurant. The shop is being fitted up as a booking-office, as it is intended that everyone, even to the occupants of the gallery (or balcony, as it is here called) shall have the privilege of booking their seats, and as the office is to be opened early in the morning, a workman or business man can call and book his seat on the way to his daily occupation, and thus go to the Hippodrome in comfort, and without waiting, in the evening, to enjoy the performance.

The three buildings have been designed to form one large block. The Hippodrome in the centre, although not carried so high as the others, is treated with such boldness and dignity that it stands out well in importance. Wide rusticated piers are carried up with a bold arch over, the corners terminating with equestrian statuary; and in the centre is about to be erected an iron structure, consisting of a bold column with circular wings or sides, the whole terminating with a large globe to which will be attached electric letters forming the word "Hippodrome," and which, when revolving at night, will form a very effective advertisement. Over the front is a wide colonnade, and the sides over are curved back, giving an effective outline to a very artistic design. The two ends of the building are flanked with bold façades, carried up with piers containing windows between, and terminating with a bold moulded cornice and pediments, with flag poles on the apex. The elevation to Bridgewater-street is similar in design, but more plainly treated. The walls are faced with a dark red brick with buff terra-cotta mouldings, piers, and ornamentations, and the whole is well worthy to rank with any of the architectural buildings of Manchester. The three frontages are lighted up with electric arc lamps, which are very attractive at night.

The principal entrance is through the front colonnade, which is approached by marble steps and white and black marble pavements. The walls are covered to a height with coloured Italian marbles, having a rich frieze over. A wide marble staircase, flanked with marble ballustrading and columns supporting richly carved Arabesque arches, leads to the foyer, which is in the shape of a half-circle. These entrances contain ornamental and panelled ceilings, mosaic floors, and electric fittings, all in Arabesque design, and beautiful decorations in oriental colours and gold give quite an Eastern effect. On either side of this staircase oriental figures representing music and dancing are surrounded with flowers and palms. Settees of quaint design furnish these rooms, whilst the foyer is covered with a rich Turkey carpet. From each side of this foyer polished doors open into wide handsome lounges, the walls being panelled and filled in with oriental silk tapestry, the ceiling being coned and richly ornamented; the floors are covered with velvet pile carpet, and doors covered with velvet and fancy copper nailing open into the private boxes. From the lounge a wide staircase leads to a large balcony overlooking the foyer; this is a very happy idea, the effect being particularly artistic. The decorations and furnishing are continued into this part. From the balcony is approached a large smoking lounge, richly decorated and furnished with divans, tables, and curtains, and all in Eastern style. This room overlooks Oxford-street, and is a very attractive apartment.

The stall seating radiates from the curve of the ring fence, and contains fourteen rows. At the back of these are eight handsomely upholstered and draped private boxes, four on each side, with wide, airy lobbies at each end. In the centre is the grand orchestra, to accommodate twenty-five performers, and under this is the central approach to the ring, two others being at the sides. The grand tier contains eleven rows of tip-up seats, and these are divided into different blocks by wide gangways giving direct access to these seats. At the rear is a wide promenade, and in the centre a raised balcony is formed, from whence access to the smoke room is obtained. The ceilings are panelled out, and are rich in decorations; the walls are covered with an eastern raised design of leather paper. The balcony contains ten rows of velvet seats, with cushioned backs and arms, and these are divided into blocks with wide gangways. The ceiling is lofty and artistically decorated, and in the roof are two large ceiling lights, giving ample light and ventilation.

It might here be mentioned that the ring is not placed entirely in front of the proscenium, as it is at the London Hippodrome, but that only a little more than half projects into the auditorium, the remainder occupying a portion of the stage space; and this enables the management to lower the curtain and set the scene similar to that in a theatre, and not in sight of the audience, as is usual in circuses. The mat, also, which covers the arena is not the usual one, but is of coarse fibre and stained green, giving the effect of grass. No description of the building would be complete without reference to the mechanical stage and arena. The latter is 42ft. in diameter, and contains below the arena floor level 70,000 gallons of water. The arena floor is lowered and raised by a hydraulic ram, and by a special device varying depths of water, from 1ft. to 6ft. 6in., can be obtained. The water is warmed to a temperature of 70 degrees. Special arrangements have been provided for fountain displays, eight being of telescopic form, which enables them to rise automatically from the bottom of the tank through 6ft. of water, until the nozzles show above the surface, when powerful jets of water are then thrown towards the ceiling. On the arena floor, and slightly submerged, are five triple sets of concentric fountains, by which marvellous combinations of colour effects are obtainable by the aid of electric light, which is projected on to the columns of water. The stage is entirely unique, being the only one of its kind in existence. The rear portion is hydraulically lifted, whilst the front portion is run from under and over the tank by electricity, thus enabling a full size of stage to be obtained, which can either wholly or partially be worked in conjunction with the arena or water display. Another feature is the mechanical manipulation of the arena mat, which weighs upwards of some four tons, and is 42ft. wide and 50ft. long. It is drawn on and off the arena table by electric machinery, thus doing away with the employment of manual labour. In some cases no less than thirty men were required for this operation. The whole of the seating has been supplied by Messrs H. Lazarus and Son, London.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Geo. H. Gaze.—The special company organised by Mr Trevor Lowe to perform Alice in Wonderland opened its tour here on Monday, and gave two performances to well-pleased houses. The company is personally directed by Messrs Leonard Pagden and Lewis Gilbert, with Mr Louis Beaufort as musical director, and stage-managed by Mr Thomas Pauncefort. Alice was very prettily played by Miss Rosie Dane, who proved an accomplished little actress. Miss Minnie Luker, who gave much pleasure by her dancing, appeared as the Lobster, and Miss Lina Nazeby as the Spirit of the Play recited her lines in the two prologues with much ability. Mr Lewis Gilbert proved the possessor of a good voice, and appeared as the White King. A good performance was contributed by Mr Joseph W. Worley as Executioner and Walrus; Mr Frank Lincoln as the Mad Hatter was amusing; and Messrs Pauncefort and Worley as Tweedles Dum and Dee created much merriment. Master Leslie Gordon as the Cheshire Cat deserved recognition, as did also Mr Jas. P. E. Hussey for his Knave of Hearts. Mr E. H. Paterson as the Hare proved a good comedian; Miss Maude May Murray was well received in the second act for her dance illuminés; and the children's gavotte in the first act was a pretty performance, and creditable to Nolan's London Training School, which supplied the troupe. The scenery is by Mr John Leonard.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Manager, Mr R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr J. D. Hunter.—Mr J. D. Hunter's twenty-sixth annual Christmas pantomime, Aladdin, may rank with any of the previous seasons' successes. The nursery legend has been turned to the best account. Excellent acting and singing, clever dancing, bright dialogue, and pretty scenery are its prevailing characteristics. The story has been admirably preserved throughout. The popularity of the manager is testified by the hearty reception he is accorded, and as the Widow Twankey Mr J. D. Hunter's natural humour asserts itself and finds abundant opportunity for provoking laughter. Miss M. Sadie in the title-rôle is a bright and attractive heroine; her singing and dancing are delightful. A most attractive Princess is found in Miss Elsa Brull, whose soprano voice is listened to with great pleasure. Variety turns are introduced, of course, some of them being exceptionally clever. Mdlle. Bartenelli is a skilful and novel contortionist, Mr Fred Boulton an able banjoist, the Verona Jap Quartet do well as dancers, and the Four Sisters M'Queen, operatic vocalists, have pleasing voices. The pantomime is of the best, the charming story is faithfully told, and there being plenty of drolleries and whimsicalities, there is never a dull moment.

ST. LEONARDS KURSAAL.—Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Miss Gertrude Maxted is the vocalist engaged this week. Her pleasing manner and charming soprano voice are delightful additions to Mr Val Marriott's orchestra, and the pavilion is well filled at each performance. Alternately during the week Mr Owen Clark, the well-known society entertainer, and the Gordon Boy Pipers also appear.

HASTINGS HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—An excellent holiday programme is furnished here, and is opened by Miss Lal Cliff, an attractive dancer and comedienne. Mr Harry Mier gives a decidedly amusing turn. The Three Sisters Gilbert are exceedingly pleasing and graceful dancers. Quite a novel feature is given to the acrobatism of the Harlem Brothers. A marvellous exhibition of strength is shown by Mr John Grun Marx. Miss Dot Hardy is very successful as character comedienne. Mr Walter Wallis, comedian, is much applauded. The comicalities of Messrs Cavern and Cave in their comedietta are thoroughly enjoyed.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr N. A. Jackson; Acting-Manager, Mr Thomas Robson.—The reopening of this theatre with a first-class variety company was on Monday night attended by a large and enthusiastic audience. At the top of the bill is Mike Gray, comedy juggler, who, along with his dog, is warmly appreciated; Martin Henderson, the blind musician, is a fine concertina player; the Henderson-Stanley Quartette make a welcome return visit; Thos. Johnstone is a good actor-vocalist; Belford and Mars are effective as comedy vocalists; and J. H. M'Cann, roller skate dancer; J. Heffron, expert dancer; Akbar, ring performer; Giglo, illusionist; Bella Leaburn, comedienne; and Eileene Moore, singer of illustrated songs, are also in the programme.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—In place of pantomime we are having as a holiday attraction a return visit of Florodora, played by Mr Tom B. Davis's company. A house packed to discomfort assembled on Monday evening to renew acquaintance with the merry piece, the leading parts being sustained by Miss May Desmond as Dolores, Mr Albert Bruno as Tweedlepunch, Mr T. Ellis Buxton as Gilfain, Mr Cyril Dane as Abercoed, Mr Derick Knowles as Arthur Donegal, Miss Daisy Byford as Angela, Miss Rene Steadman as Lady Holyrood, and Mr Lionel Williams as Leandro. The chorus is smart looking, and a section received a well-earned encore for the number, "Tell me, pretty maiden."

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—"The finest pantomime ever seen in Hyde" was the unanimous verdict on the initial performance of The Babes in the Wood, given on Christmas Eve by Mr Peter Thompson's company, and packed houses on Monday afternoon and evening expressed the same opinion. The book has been specially written by Peter O. Dicks, and contains many local "hits." The scenery is charming and elaborate, the dresses pretty, the humour of the piece is irresistible, the dances smart and effective, and the numerous vocal and instrumental items tuneful and popular. To Miss Maude Beaumont is entrusted the rôle of Robin Hood, and she plays with dash and spirit, and sings with artistic effect, her rendering of "Bluebell" and "It's the truth or a lie" being nightly encored. Miss Molly Hackett invests the part of Maid Marion with charm and grace, and in solos and duets with Robin proves herself a gifted cantatrice. A vivacious and capable exponent of Will Scarlet is Miss Fanny Humber, and Miss Minnie Moran is a dainty Dorothy Dimple. Bertie and Cissie, the two babes, are cleverly impersonated by the Sisters Graham, and Polly Primrose has a charming representative in Miss Rose Walmsley, whose artistic dancing is a feature of the production. Praise is also due to Miss Kate Lever, who looks attractive and sings with sweetness and expression as the fairy, Bluebell, and Miss Nellie Hilton, who makes a smart Little John. The Baron is played with distinct originality by Mr J. Templar Ellis. Uproarious merriment is created by Mr Fred Danvers as Evalean; the Danbys are extremely funny as Tim Tired and Willie Wearied, and Mr Willie Barrett extracts many a laugh by the humorous interpretation he gives to his lines as Simple Pimple. Mr Tom Carter's make-up as Friar Tuck is admirable. The chorus is thoroughly up to the standard. The speciality turns include N. T. Kioto, a clever and sensational Japanese equilibrist; the Yankee Quartet, who give a dexterous exposition of dancing; Miss Rose Walmsley, skipping rope and acrobatic dancer; Little Renee, male impersonator; the Danbys, Hungarian dancers; and Miss Fanny Humber, musical specialty.

HORWICH.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Holyoake.—Mr Charles Carte is paying a return visit this week in A Noble Brother. The piece is again excellently staged, and the company is a good all-round one. Mr Carte in his impersonation of Jerry the Tramp is irresistible, the audience apparently thoroughly enjoying his efforts. Nana Leigh is most artistically rendered by Miss Doris Brookes; Jack Elsworth is capitally presented by Mr J. A. Wilson.

HOYLAND.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Owner, Mr Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Geo. S. King.—Dan, the Rake, is being well played here by Mr J. Rice Cassidy and company. Mr Rice Cassidy causes much amusement in the title-rôle; Mr Frank Copeland is in every way suited to the part of Lieutenant Charles Kavanagh; Mr F. Orchard does good work in the part of Colonel Flamer; Mr F. Biron acts with dramatic force in the rôle of Tom Cooper; and Miss Ada Roscoe is deserving of praise in the character of Mrs Donelly; and Miss Lillian Clare is an amusing Madge.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—For the holiday week A Beautiful Fiend has been chosen, and it lacks nothing in the hands of Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company. Mr Beaudyn himself plays in capital style as Ivan, whilst Miss Irene Munroe secures admiration as Nadine. Miss Sidney Crowe makes an impression in the title-rôle, and Mr A. G. Polson Turner provides all that is necessary as Count Fedor. The other artists do their work with equal success.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Joe Richards.—Gaertner and Weston, comedy artists; Frank Archer, impersonator of leading celebrities; Mona May, ballad vocalist, &c., are the acceptable turns engaged for the week.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr G. W. Fisk.—Goody Two Shoes is the title of this year's pantomime, produced by Mr Peter Davey on Boxing Day. Miss Lingard in the title-rôle was charming and graceful, and Miss Maude Nichols as the principal boy was satisfactory. Mr J. G. Taylor as the Wicked Earl was very droll, and others rendering effective assistance to the piece were Messrs Harry Calden, T. C. Haverly, Graham Morrison, and Miss Ethel Beech.

HIPPODROME.—In the programme here are Four Herberts, clever acrobats; Fred Land, comic; the Autos; Frank and Violet Payte, in a sketch called Also Ran; Carle and Carmanelli, in a novelty termed the electric moulding mill; Miss Rosie Newport, juvenile vocalist; and other interesting turns.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson.—Mr Frank E. Burdett's company is here this week with The Indian Mutiny. Mr H. Ryeland Leigh gives a good account of Lieut. Manley; Mr Reginald Fox is quite at home as Capt. Manley; Major Ingleby is cleverly taken by Mr W. S. Tindall; Mr John Hignett gives a droll rendering of Terry O'Brien; Miss Kate Bruce is a capital Mrs Major Ingleby; Miss Agnes Kingston is winsome as Kate Ingleby; Mr Villiers Stanley makes a powerful Nebu Singh; Mr J. S. Shedden is well placed as Abul Khan, and as Ra Goonga Mr Ernest Keand proves himself a most capable actor; and Miss Maude Digby gives a striking portrayal of the part of Ghuznah.

JERSEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. Robert Perkins.—Mr Mouillot's company is here in A Message from Mars. The part of Minnie Templar was prettily played by Miss May Saker, and Miss Flora Hastings made the most of her opportunities as Miss Parker. Mr Bruce Lindley displayed ability in depicting the Tramp. Mr William H. Brougham represented the Messenger from Mars with telling effect, and Mr Rawson Buckley was a convincing Horace Parker. Mr W. Maxwell was cast for the part of a policeman, and Mr Frank G. Dunn for Arthur Dicey. The remaining characters were in safe hands.

KEIGHLEY.

QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—A return engagement of Messrs Carson and Granville's company in The Heart of a Hero has given the liveliest satisfaction to Keighley playgoers. Mr Fred W. Goddard gives a forcible and manly rendering of the hero, Jem Rosdale. The rôle of Wilfred Marl is ably embodied by Mr Chas. E. Johnson, who makes Marl a callous scoundrel. Mr A. B. Mackay is an earnest and impressive Mark Marl. Mr Brady, an excellent comedian, fairly revels in the character of Timothy Heighno. Mr Harry Dunning scores as Jack Collinson, and Mr Eric Forth deserves praise as Detective Pritchard. The part of the Miser is realistically acted by Mr Harry Scotchard, and additional interest is lent to the character, Mr Scotchard being a native of the town. Miss Cissie St. Elmo makes a welcome reappearance as Nell Rosdale, and worthily sustains her reputation. Miss Lilly Langley and Miss Ida Mackay complete an excellent cast.

KENDAL.

ST. GEORGE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. F. Chorley; Manager, Mr J. W. Butler.—Miss Lillie Mowbray's pantomime Robinson Crusoe is having bumping houses this week. The pantomime is arranged and produced under the direction of Mr Arthur Lee Todd, and the mounting and dressing are highly creditable. Miss Lillie Mowbray as the hero fills the part in a graceful manner, and is highly successful in her songs. Miss Alice Campbell is a dainty Polly Hopkins, and Miss Lily Harris as the Fairy has a nice voice, which she uses to good effect. Mr Claude Morton capably fills the part of Dame Crusoe, and Mr J. C. Chant works hard as Will Atkins. Specialities are provided by the Eight Sunbeams, speciality dancers; Chump and Chant, comedy artists; Martell and Ward, contortionists; and Vic Verney, the marvellous whistler.

KETTERING.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—Mr Ernest Abbott and company are here this week with the comedy drama, A Wife's Triumph. This was originally produced at the Pavilion Theatre as The Betting Book. Mr Geo. Doughty gives an admirable rendering of Frank Wilton; Mr Abbott is responsible for a fine piece of character-acting as Squire Dewhurst; the villainous Ellis Jordan is powerfully portrayed by Mr W. H. Garbois; and Miss Ada Abbott claims the sympathies of the audience by her fine acting as Jessie. The comedy parts are in the capable hands of Mr Edwin Keene and Miss Constance Medwyn.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. Fowkes.—The Christmas attraction here is Mr Ben Greet's company in La Poupée. Mr Bert Danson keeps the audience in roars of laughter by his clever impersonation of Hilarius, and Mr Algernon Lee as Launcelot is a decided success. Mr Stanley White as Chanterelle and Mr Harry Bishop as Loremois add very considerably to the fun. Miss Cissie Wade is an excellent Alesia and Miss Alice M'Farlane scores in the character of Madame Hilarius. A word of praise is due to Mr Joseph Brull for his singing as Father Maxime.

KILMARNOCK.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Hales.—This week we have a visit of Mr Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests. Mr R. H. Kitchen is a great success as Sergeant Lightning; Mr Charles F. Howard gives a lifelike impersonation of Lord Easem; and Mr Wellesley Smith makes a typical Mr Miffin. Miss Jessamine Newcombe is very good as Lady Maude Easem, and Miss Jennie Housley makes a sweet and natural Dolly Miffin.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

MR THOMAS BARRASFORD'S largest variety house—the Lyceum—will open this afternoon at 2·30, and a glance at its interior, which has already been illustrated and described in these columns, will at once convince the visitor that it is one of the finest and best-appointed people's theatres in the United Kingdom. It will be an important addition to the Barrasford circuit, which includes Paris, Glasgow, Liverpool, Manchester, Brighton, Leeds, Hull, Newcastle, and other towns. By its establishment Mr Barrasford has introduced the now popular two-houses-a-night plan into the Strand. At 6·30 and 9·0 o'clock every evening the public will be admitted to enjoy a continuous programme of twelve turns, giving a varied entertainment of unvarying excellence.

Among the chief attractions of the new place will be the Lyceum operatic company, including the following artistes of high reputation:—M. Ansaldi, tenor, from the Grand Opera, Paris; M. Rey, baritone, from the Grand Opera, Nice; Mdlle. Van Parys, soprano, from the Grand Opera, Paris; and Mdlle. Dasty, contralto, from the Théâtre La Monnaie, Brussels. We remember Charles Santley's voice ringing out clear and mellow and strong in the old house in the music of Vanderdecken in a production of Wagner's Flying Dutchman, but the public may be assured that the very best operatic traditions will be sustained by this admirable quartet in a selection from Rigoletto, which will include the famous dramatic quatuor, "Un di si ben," one of the finest pieces of concerted music ever written by Verdi.

IN another great attraction of the opening performance to-day the author, Mr J. P. Harrington, has gone for his inspiration to the late Lord Tennyson, and has written a new musical sketch round the pathetic story of "Enoch Arden." The title-rôle will be played by Mr George Leyton, the well-known actor-vocalist, who hitherto has mostly been associated in his stage work with the impersonation of naval and military heroes. The production will be in three scenes—the first a seascape, with Arden's cottage in the foreground. A fisherman's song, "Hauling in the Nets," is heard as Enoch Arden enters, and he proclaims his devotion in a solo, "Angel of my home." Selling his boat, the hero departs to win fortune, and is next seen as a ragged and bearded castaway on a tropical island. In a vision he witnesses the marriage of his supposed widow with Philip Ray. The last scene is in front of Philip Ray's house at Christmas time, and the original ending of the story has been preserved. The music is by Mr Bennett Scott.

THE musical director of the new Lyceum is Mr Louis De Reeder, who will have an orchestra of forty under his bâton. He intends to make high-class musical selections a feature of the programmes, and the band will be one of the best in London. Mr De Reeder was musical director at the Shaftesbury Theatre for six years, and conducted the original performances of The Belle of New York at that house. The manager is Mr Alfred Selwyn, from the Hippodrome, Glasgow, and the stage director, Mr H. Crocker, from the Hippodrome, Liverpool. Both the houses mentioned are important units in the Barrasford circuit. Mr Barrasford will institute matinées on Wednesdays and Thursdays at 2·30 o'clock.

THE Coliseum's method of advertising its numerous attractions on the front of the fine façade in St. Martin's-lane has been watched by thousands of people during the week. The names of each performer and of each incident, episode, or spectacle are seen in rapid succession, the brilliant incandescence of electricity shining out in most effective fashion, even in broad daylight. Nothing more effective in the way of advertising a show could be possible.

THE new Coliseum reminds us of the old, which was known as the Royal Colosseum, Regent's-park. It was situated in Albany-street, and about fifty years ago was one of the sights of London, with its weird imitation stalactite caverns and its representations of "London by Day" and "London by Night." It had some famous theatrical memories, for on its stage was first brought out the drawing-room entertainment—illustrative and musical—of Distant Relations and Home for the Holidays, in which the chief parts were sustained by the Sisters Kate and Ellen Terry. This was in 1860. The little company included the father and mother, Mr and Mrs Ben Terry, and the quintet was completed by Mr Sydney Naylor, the pianist and conductor, who afterwards became famous as the accompanist of Sims Reeves. The entertainment ran for thirty consecutive nights, during which more than thirty thousand people paid for admission. It was afterwards toured.

FOR many years, down to a quite recent period, a variety house has flourished in Melbourne under the style and title of the Royal Colosseum. It was a popular resort of lucky diggers at one time, and gave them spicy forms of entertainment that would not be tolerated nowadays. Its last proprietor died a couple of years ago, leaving a considerable fortune for distribution amongst churches and charities. He left a special bequest for a memorial stained-glass window in his parish church.

MR ARTHUR ROBERTS and his little company played a flying matinée at Bournemouth on Wednesday. It is the seventh visit the popular comedian has paid to the town this year. He was greeted with a crowded house, and appeared in Captain Basil Hood's Arthurian romance, Brummagen Jem, and Mr Harry Grattan's rattling farce, Packing Up. The fall of the curtain is mentioned in "the tag" of the former piece, but as there was no curtain at the Winter Gardens two members of the company entered with screens at the finish, and drew them round the table where Mr Roberts and Miss Celeste were seated—a happy thought that was highly appreciated by the audience.

THERE is more scope for pretty dresses in Jack, produced by Arthur Roberts at the Palace last week, than is usually the case with sketches in the halls. Miss Ruby Celeste looks very charming in a girlish pink silk frock, with a full skirt, gauged for several inches below the waist, with a soft folded belt and wide lace collar and yoke. Her hat is a mingling of velvet and chiffon, trimmed with roses and tied in a fluffy bow on the left side of the face. Miss Lucy Webling wears a spotted muslin with a wide fichu, and knots of brown silk ribbon, and a white felt hat, adorned with black velvet and white satin ribbon, with a narrow steel buckle. Miss Aynsley Cook, as the severe maiden aunt, appears in pale blue satin, with a white lace yoke and pink coral ornaments.

MR JAMES TAIT, brother of Mr Charles Tait, the manager of the great Melbourne music publishing house of Allen and Company, is spending a few weeks in London, Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter's establishment being his headquarters. The gentleman is on the look out for first-class concert artists, and is empowered to offer lucrative terms to leading performers desirous of visiting the Antipodes.

"THE WAITER" has before been chosen as the subject of a song, and the name of the late Mr Dan Leno immediately rises to the lips in that character. Mr Ernest Shand has an excellent song with the same title, which he is singing at the Camden Theatre, in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Mr Shand is appearing as Will Atkins, and his success in this new number, which is by Mr Mark Lorne, is very marked.

MR W. F. FRAME, the Scotch comedian, who is a Glasgow man, will occupy the chair at the dinner of the Pencil and Pen Club in St. Mungo City on Wednesday, Jan. 11. Hooch aye!

THE Grand Theatre, Boscombe (owned by Mr Moullot), one of the finest theatres in the provinces, is to be turned into a first-class hippodrome, and will shortly be opened as such with a well-known music hall manager directing affairs.

MISS VIOLET FRIEND took her annual benefit on Thursday and Friday, the 22d and 23d inst., at the New Empire, Dudley. The proceeds were generously given to the poor of the town. Many of her friends will be sorry to hear that the popular lady's health has been very indifferent of late, and she has been ordered by her medical adviser a trip to Australia.

THE Manchester Hippodrome, the magnificent house opened on Monday by Mr Oswald Stoll, has been seated throughout with the patent chairs of Lazarus, the famous expert. No less than 2,000 have been supplied in the stalls, dress-circle, grand tier, and balcony. They are upholstered in light gold velvet, and the Hippodrome patron will be able to loll in luxury in the balcony for the modest sum of sixpence.

THE new house is designed by Mr F. Matcham on the lines of the first building of this description that he erected in Leicester-square, and contains the usual arena for circus performances, the water show, and the spiral fountains. A great feature of the management of the entertainment is the mechanical manipulation of the arena mat, which weighs upwards of four tons, being 42ft. wide and 50ft. long. It is drawn on and off the arena table by electric machinery, thus doing away with manual labour. In the centre of the front portion of the ceiling is a large oval opening nearly 30ft. long, and round this is a gallery with open balustrading, whence different coloured lights are manipulated and projected into the arena or on to the stage. The value of this arrangement for spectacles will be incalculable.

THE proscenium, which comes nearly over the centre of the ring, is 48ft. wide, the sides being of Scagliola marble, as are also the columns flanking the side private boxes and chorus galleries. These galleries will, of course, be occupied by choristers—as at the Coliseum, London—who will join with the orchestra in the descriptive music of the scenes to be portrayed. The arena is 42ft. in diameter, and below its floor, which is lowered and raised by a hydraulic ram, is stored 70,000 gallons of water. By a special device varying depths of water, from 1ft. to 6ft. 6in., can be arranged.

THERE were three performances on Monday, the opening day, and it is calculated that at least 10,000 people attended these. Tally Ho! the hunting sketch that was so popular at the London Hippodrome, was the principal attraction. The variety turns included Max Gruber, with his horse and elephant; the M'Connell Trio of musical sketch artists; the Noisetts, on the whirling table; Manning's entertainers; Post Mason, the American baritone; Elsie Clare; and Werner and Banks. Features were also made of Bioscope pictures and the Hippodrome choir. The acting-manager is Mr E. P. Morgan; Mr Albert Haines directs the fine orchestra; the assistant-acting-manager is Mr H. Hall; and the experience Mr Harold Hilliard is the stage-manager.

THE King's Theatre of Varieties, Roscommon-street, Liverpool, opened on Monday with a matinée and two houses in the evening, the house being packed to overflowing at each performance. The management received innumerable telegrams of congratulation on the opening, which they desire to acknowledge in these columns.

CONCERNING the Star Theatre, Liverpool, Mr Spence Lees writes: "Mr William Ambrose was the founder of the New Star Music Hall, and about thirty-five years ago Mr Noah Lees became the re-founder, and through his indomitable perseverance and ability made the concern what it undoubtedly was, a financial success. About ten years ago the sole proprietors, Messrs Isaac Fineberg and Noah Lees, sold out to a syndicate for £62,500. They retired from the scene and had no further interest, with the exception that they were joint mortgagees to the extent of £20,000—a portion of the purchase money. The syndicate then floated the concern into a limited liability company with a capital of £70,000. Unfortunately they entirely altered the building, which remained closed for a long time, and when reopened it had lost caste. It was a failure, and eventually the property came back into the hands of the joint mortgagees, Isaac Fineberg and Noah Lees. Mr Harris Fineberg then obtained a lease and converted the place into a dramatic house."

A SYNDICATE of local gentlemen is running the Hippodrome, Castleford, of which the general manager is Mr Charles Moore. The opening on Monday saw a packed house, and there seems to be every prospect of a successful season. Mr J. Arnold, dramatic and variety agent, Rochdale, has taken up the position of entertainment-director, and his wide experience will enable him to set a high standard of entertainment.

AN alarming fire occurred at the Ulster Hall, Belfast, on Monday evening. Our Army and Navy No. 1 Animated Photo. Company, consisting of a capital display of living pictures, commenced a week's engagement at this hall on Monday, and during the progress of the entertainment one of the films of the cinématograph, which was placed in the front balcony, took fire, and in a few minutes the box containing all the films was ablaze. Some one in the large audience thoughtlessly shouted "fire," and immediately a rush was made for the doors; but, fortunately, with the exception of a few bruises, the audience escaped without injury. The caretaker, police, and volunteers made prompt use of the hand-pumps, &c., pending the arrival of the fire brigade, and the fire was almost extinguished when the steamers, hose, carriage, &c., reached the hall in charge of Mr Geo. Smith, superintendent, and W. Stafford, assistant superintendent. A jet of water was speedily laid on from the main, and in a short time the outbreak was extinguished.

MR RICHARD HOGAN, the Cinématograph operator, in his attempts to put out the flames, sustained severe burns to the hands and face; and a lad named Hugh Rolston is also suffering from burns. Both were admitted to the local hospitals—Mr Hogan to Royal Victoria Hospital and the boy Rolston to Mater Infirmorum Hospital. Some of the windows in the hall were smashed, and a number of chairs were broken; but the only damage to the building is the blackening of the ceiling immediately over the fire, and the scorching of the paint on some of the woodwork.

THE popular Dunedin Cyclist Troupe were the principal attraction at the Casino, Monte Video, in November and the early part of this month, and they took their benefit and farewell on Wednesday, Dec. 7, when they were presented with gold medals from the Impressarios.

MR JAMES E. DONEGAN, the paternal manager and trainer of the troupe, has made many friends during his stay here, but, unfortunately, has to cancel several of his London contracts in consequence of illness. The doctors say it will be some time before he will be able to cross the ocean, and the troupe will not leave without their dad.

MR H. E. MOSS, who will be released from the harass of directorial cares of the vast aggregation known as Moss Empires after Jan. 1, will early in the new year take a trip to Egypt.

WE regret to have to announce the death, after a long and painful illness, of the little daughter of Mr and Mrs Walter Gibbons, aged one year and ten months. The little one passed away at 8·30 a.m. on Friday. We are sure the whole profession will sympathise with the bereaved parents in the loss of their only child.

MR FRANK CELLI, whose death is announced in another column, came to the music halls about twelve years ago. He accepted an engagement at the Oxford that was offered him by the late Chas. Brighten, and he soon became a favourite, his broad phrasing and robust style admirably suiting the heroic stanzas that he mostly affected. He appeared at the Alhambra in the vocal ballet Jack Ashore, in the character of the hero. He sang with much success a number by Mr G. W. Byng, entitled "Jack's the Man." He made his last appearance on the stage at the Tivoli, Manchester. He belonged to a famous stage family, one of his brothers being Mr Herbert Standing and another Mr Carlton, who was for many years a popular opera singer in the States.

MISS LOUIE FREEAR met with a warm reception at the Oxford on Boxing Night, and sang her three songs—the inimitable "Twiddly Bits," from A Chinese Honeymoon, going, perhaps, the best—with all her customary humour and skill. She has been taking a six weeks' holiday, and looks much better for the rest and quietude of country life. Miss Freear does not make up in the least, and her stage costumes are never made to order. She picks them up in all sorts of odd places, and this is undoubtedly the reason why they look so characteristic. The big old boots that she wears for "Twiddly Bits" are only equalled by the black bonnet, with one crushed red flower, and shabby little jacket, in which she sings of the sobriety of "John James Perkins," and for her final ditty, concerning the actress "who just walks on and just walks off," Miss Freear appears in her most popular character, that of the over-worked little servant, with a tiny cap and a huge apron.

MR JAMES HOWELL, of the Tivoli, has been absent from his post during the week in consequence of an attack of influenza. He has been confined to his bedroom, but is rapidly mending, and will return to business on Monday.

LONDON is a city of wonders, and in no phase of its multi-coloured life is this more apparent than in the entertainment world, the recently erected buildings rivalling each other in the magnificence of their proportions and the sumptuousness of their appointments. A case in point is the vast and beautiful new Coliseum in St. Martin's-lane, a veritable palace among metropolitan places of entertainment. Nor is the artistic note confined to the building. The items in the programme are presented in the most charming fashion. In Mr R. A. Roberts's clever sketch Dick Turpin there is an interior scene at the famous old Spaniards Tavern at Hampstead, rich and picturesque in antique carved oak, and in another scene there is shown a very handsome Louis Seize suite of furniture. Both of these excellent stage pictures are supplied by the well known house of Oetzmann and Co., of Hampstead-road, W., and are thoroughly artistic and attractive.

MR FRANK WEEKS is busy making arrangements for his third annual free treat to the poor children of Southwark at the South London Palace on Friday next. The hall is situated among a dense population of toilers, many of whom are unemployed, and the action of the popular manager will afford a few hours' real enjoyment to a number of kiddies, many of whose lives are overshadowed by penury.

MR WORLAND S. WHEELER, the secretary of the Paragon, who was married to Miss Godden on the 17th inst., has been presented by the staff of the house with a handsome timepiece with bronze ornaments and an assortment of cutlery. Mr Charles Beecham made the presentation. The happy couple have also received many other well-chosen gifts from friends.

THE shareholders of the Coliseum, Limited, were informed by the chairman, at a private meeting on Thursday, that the advance bookings for the Christmas week had been of an exceptional nature, and that the performances had gone on well. The report submitted was agreed to.

THE Alhambra management on Monday next will present the Tachin-Maa Troupe of Chunchasses, conjurors and jugglers, who are alleged to come direct from the Russian lines on the Shaho and Mukden, who will make their first appearance in England. The Boganny Troupe of Hungarian vocalists in their military displays and national songs and dances will also make their début in London. An entirely new series of Urban pictures is another attraction.

MR REMBGES, who has recently married, has received a very handsome cheque from the London Entertainments' Protection Association, through Mr Henri Gros, its president. This pleasant surprise is a deserved recognition of Mr Rembges' work as assistant secretary to the Association.

SAM MAYO is called the immobile comedian, but he has made himself responsible for a "moving" record by fulfilling a larger number of turns in different parts of London in the space of four hours than has ever been known. On Monday, travelling in a motor-car, he was able to appear at the Chelsea Palace at 6·50; at the Bedford at 7·25; at Camberwell, 8·5; at Gatti's, 8·30; again at Chelsea, 9·15; at the Metropolitan, 9·40; at the Middlesex, 10·20; finishing up at the Bedford at 10·50.

THE Alhambra management intend giving daily matinées of a novel character from Jan. 9. The entertainment, entitled Urbanora, which will last from three to five o'clock, will be almost exclusively of a bioscopic character, and will include pictures of scientific, geographical, and educational interest, blended with others in lighter vein. The programme will be divided into two parts by vocal or instrumental music, or a specially selected "turn." No smoking will be allowed in the auditorium, and afternoon tea will be served. Half-price will be charged to all parts of the house, except the gallery, which will be closed.

MANY of our older readers will hear with regret of the death of Mr William Tanner, who was some years ago a partner with Mr Parkes in the proprietorship of the Elephant and Castle Theatre. For some time past the deceased gentleman had been an inmate of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum. He was interred on Thursday at Brompton Cemetery.

MISS DAISY DORMER, "the coon impersonator," is playing principal girl this year at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, where she was such a favourite two Christmases ago as Goody Two Shoes. She has three excellent numbers in "Navaho" (which bids fair to outrival her popular "I'll be your Butterfly") "The gambling man," accompanied by one of those dances which has made her so popular on the halls, and a pretty little love song, "If I had a girl as nice as you." Miss Dormer's dresses are the talk of Glasgow, and "Navaho" is being sung all over the town. All the three numbers are published by Messrs Francis and Day.

MDLLE. ADELINE GENEE has been commanded to Chatsworth to appear before their Majesties the King and Queen, therefore the production at the Empire of the new fairy divertissement, The Dancing Doll, has been unavoidably postponed to Tuesday next. The chic Genée is a countrywoman of her Majesty's, and is the first solo dancer who has been commanded to appear before her.

BODIE may say with the great Cæsar, "Veni, vidi, vici!" The crowds which have besieged the entrances of the Duchess, Balham, and the Canterbury have testified to the doctor's powers of attraction. "Standing room only" has been the notice put outside these halls soon after the doors have been opened. Next week, in addition to evening performances at two halls, this wonder-worker has been engaged to give matinées at the Royal each day at 2·30.

IN Peggy Machree, at Wyndham's, a character called Sergeant Bampton, according to the bills, is played by "Mr John Morley." And the "Sisters Asquith" have been performing in the music halls. We shall soon be having the "Chamberlain Family" in an astounding quick-change act.

SUMMONSES were granted at Southwark police court on the 23rd inst. against the proprietors of the South London in respect to the performance of sketches which were alleged to be stage plays. Mr Paul Taylor remarked that one of the pieces—Big Ben—seemed very trivial, and he did not think it would occupy more than a quarter of a hour in its performance.

THERE are better known names in the music hall world than Whit Cunliffe, but he added greatly to his reputation on Boxing Night at the Tivoli. He gave no less than three songs, and, owing to the insistent demands for encores of his last number, he sang no less than eighteen verses. If this is not a music hall record, it will be interesting to learn the name of the comedian who has beaten it.

MR HYRAM TRAVERS finished up his three months successful South African tour at the Tivoli, Cape Town, where he was presented with an 18-carat gold repeater and a pair of gold Kruger coin cuff links, with an affectionate inscription, from the Boys of Cape Town. Hyram is now enjoying a couple of weeks' steeplechasing as a holiday.

MR ARTHUR LENNARD has been unable to appear at Hull this week owing to the dangerous illness of Mrs Lennard, who is in Bradford. Mr Frank Allen at once kindly released Mr Lennard to enable him to stay with the sufferer, who has now taken a decided turn for the better.

THE members of that excellent fraternity the Terriers' Association will hold their annual dinner at the headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, on Sunday, when the treasurer, Mr Douglas White, will be in the chair.

MISS SADIE MAX, who won first prize in a recent singing competition at the Cambridge, has decided to adopt the profession. Recently she deputised at the Paragon—on the first occasion for My Fancy, and on the second for Booker and Narbis—and was complimented by Mr Charles Beecham on her performance.

SNOW AND FARRON gave a concert at Camberwell on the 17th inst. for the benefit of the unemployed. They are members of the Sinbad company which should have been playing at the Opera House, Crouch End, and their disinterested action has prompted the following letter from the Rev. H. G. Veazey, vicar of St. Mark's, Camberwell:—"Christmas Day.—To Snow and Farron.—Dear Sir and Madame,—Grateful thanks for your splendid effort for the unemployed. The result is forty families are having a Christmas dinner in their homes."

MISS REBA KAUFMAN has no reason to regret having remained in London when The Prince of Pilsen company returned to American, as her engagement at the Alhambra has been extended for another three months. A former contract will, however, oblige the little toe dancer to leave London next week, but during a fortnight's absence her place is to be filled by her sister, Miss Inez Kaufman, whose short experience includes a Shakesperian engagement with Mr Nat Goodwin, when she played Mustard Seed in his revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream.

MISS FLORENCE YAYMAN has returned to the Alhambra for two weeks. A clever eccentric comedienne, she gives perhaps the best coon song and dance in London, and appears in a striking costume. It is made of velvet and chiffon of an unusual shade of rose red, with very fluffy, short skirts, a band of full-blown flowers round the top of the flounces, a big crescent of sparkling jewels at the back of the waist, and sleeves consisting of a band of velvet just above the elbow and a frill of chiffon. Her picture hat is trimmed with pale pink roses, a big cluster also being worn in the bodice of the dress. A pair of long black gloves gives the finishing touch. Miss Yayman resembles Yvette Gilbert in her fondness for long black gloves, for she always wears them. Not the least surprising part of her turn is the shrill, loud cry that she suddenly gives during her dance. It is a strange, uncanny sound—Miss Yayman herself calls it "a cultivated screech"—that comes from the throat, and is as difficult to describe as it is to copy.

"LITTLE FLOSSIE," as Miss Florence Yayman was called at the beginning of her career, was born in Trenton, New Jersey, and was discovered by a couple of friends, before she was five years old, giving imitations of the well-known American artistes, Miss Maggie Cline and Miss Georgie Parker, with herself in the looking-glass for audience. Mr Tony Pastor was her stage godfather, and before he obtained permission to "bill" so very young a performer she used to be announced every evening as a "special extra turn." Little Flossie came to England in 1888, and gave a trial show at the Grand Theatre, Liverpool, followed by a month's engagement. Since that time she has figured in leading parts in more than one pantomime, toured the English provinces, paid a couple of return visits to the United States, and played a season in South Africa. Miss Yayman has a gift for designing and making stage dresses, but the idea of doing so occurred to her mind in quite an accidental manner. She was engaged for second boy in a suburban pantomime, and the dresses provided were so very unbecoming that she determined to try her hand at remaking them with new materials after a pattern of her own.

IT rarely happens that a child actress takes a part seriously enough to forget her lines, for real "infant phenomenons" are the most practical and business-like little people in the profession. When Miss Yayman was a very little girl she succeeded in turning the death of Eva, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, into a screaming farce by emphatically refusing to die at the right minute. She has a clear recollection of taking the gravity of her fellow actors very ill, and when Uncle Tom burst into tears and exclaimed, "Hush! little missy is dying!" she suddenly sat up in her bed and answered, "Oh, I can't bear this! I'm too young, and I want all you folks to understand I won't die!" Miss Yayman is the wife of Mr Henri Cazman, to whom she was married in Boston some years before she left her teens behind. Her husband is equally well known as agent and artiste. They have three clever children. Mr and Mrs Cazman have just taken possession of a pretty house in Denmark-hill.

"A BRIDE FOR A LIVING."

An Episode of Domestic Martyrdom, by John Lawson, Produced at the Middlesex on Monday, Dec. 26.

Louie Faber ..... Miss CISSIE LAWSON
Josephus Faber..... Mr BAILEY COHEN
Lucas Poulten ..... Mr E. S. VINCENT
David Faber ..... Mr JOHN LAWSON

The principal novelty of Mr J. L. Graydon's Yuletide programme at the Middlesex is Mr John Lawson's sketch, A Bride for a Living. Any production with which Mr Lawson's name is associated is sure to be of a startling nature, and his "episode of domestic martyrdom," as his latest playlet is billed, is certainly no exception to the rule. The scene is the living-room in an humble abode in the Hackney-road, and the time 8·30 on the morning of the Derby. David Faber, a young mechanic, comes in apparently too late to have any breakfast, but not too late to make and take up to his wife Louie a cup of tea. He also manages to find time to call his brother Josephus, a lazy, sneaking cur, who makes up the other member of the household. When he has gone Joe lounges in, and after a few unimportant remarks lounges back—to bed. Then the wife comes on the scene, a slatternly, pale-faced female, with draggling skirt, unkempt hair, and blouse unfastened. It is a ring at the bell that has brought her down, and she imagines it to be the milkman, but her visitor is Lucas Poulten, a "universal provider," otherwise a flash "tally-man," with whom she is obviously on very familiar terms. She owes him money, and he in return is allowed to make her presents and dishonourable proposals, kissing and caressing her, and even offering to give her a pair of garters—and put them on. David's precious brother is a witness of most of these proceedings, and not only countenances, but encourages, the disgraceful conduct of his sister-in-law. She would like to go to the races, but her wardrobe is apparently not smart enough, so Poulten produces a new costume, intimating that the payment will do any time. She goes to her apartment to change, and after a brief interval Poulten too makes his exit—by the same door. David returns unexpectedly just as his wife has come on the scene in her new apparel, and she immediately disappears, and when she again confronts her husband it is as her old untidy self. David has good news. The firm where he is employed have recognised the value of his invention, and he is offered a partnership. He has brought home clothes for their little one, their only child, whom Louie is too lazy to tend, and who is put out to nurse for 3s. a-week. The prospect of a brighter and more affluent future which David holds out to his wife has, however, no charm for her. She is sick of being "a bride for a living" and of the continual drudgery of housework—a remark which is certainly not justified by appearances. Her doting husband does all he can to conciliate her, his only protest—a very mild one—being that she might try and clear up the washing, which has been lying about all the week, and look after the child. It is evident that any affection she might have had for David has entirely disappeared, and her only ambition is the pursuit of pleasure. After she has gone to an adjoining apartment, Poulten emerges from the bedroom, but David does not see him till he gets to the street door, and then imagines that he has just called. The "universal provider" endeavours, vainly for a time, to get David to purchase clothes on the instalment system, and the pair eventually disappear. Joe presently comes in with the news that David is drinking at a neighbouring "pub" with Poulten, and the wife writes a note to her paramour, of which Joe is the bearer, that he (Poulten) is to make her husband drunk or poison him. She also concocts a horrible scheme for getting David completely out of the way. She will kill him when he returns intoxicated. No one will suspect murder, and the unspeakable Joe, who calmly falls in with the idea, will share in the insurance money! David and Poulten return decidedly inebriated, and after a time David half promises to buy clothes from Poulten, who induces David to try on his coat to see if it suits him. Poulten also changes into the mechanic's smock, and presently falls on the bed in a drunken sleep, David disappearing in the other's apparel. At a signal from Joe Louie enters, and eventually places a sheet over the body she imagines is her husband. A screen in front of the bed partly obscures all her doings, but it is evident that she attaches a rope hanging from the ceiling round the neck of the prostrate figure. She then fixes one end to a mangle, and slowly turns the handle, and the lifeless body is gradually raised to view. When she has completed her work, David returns sobered. He has found her letter in Poulten's coat, and accuses her of being his mistress. He also sees the body and cuts it down, bringing it to the front of the stage. The sight of the body and her husband's ravings finally prove too much for Louie, and she falls lifeless to the ground—there had been a hint at heart trouble previously—David going out presumably to find his child. Mr Lawson's embodiment of the patient and sorely tried young Jew was marked by much sincerity and conviction, and the part of the slovenly wife was admirably played by Miss Cissie Lawson, the discontent and utter indifference of the heartless woman being very cleverly indicated. The unthankful rôle of the apostate brother, Josephus, was adequately portrayed by Mr Bailey Cohen; and that excellent actor Mr E. S. Vincent was entirely satisfactory as Lucas Poulten. Like all sketches with which Mr Lawson is concerned, A Bride for a Living was most completely and carefully put on, every little detail having been apparently well thought out and executed; and that the gloomy and gruesome episode impressed the audience was evident from the start, the hitherto rather noisy galleryites subsiding into silence after the first line or two, and enthusiastically applauding at the conclusion.

THE variety stage in the near future—when a sane act for the regulation of places of entertainment has been passed—should be able to command the best of writers. Even in its present restricted conditions it has been able to secure the services of that clever playwright Captain Basil Hood, who gave to the Palace stage Brummagem Jem. Possibly one day we may see a revival on the same stage of Captain Hood's earliest work Gipsies, which was produced at the Lyric more than a decade since.

MR RUTLAND BARRINGTON, too, who has very much advanced his reputation of late, does not disdain to write for the variety stage, and his pretty little piece, called Her Chance, was produced at the London Pavilion on Boxing Day with undoubted success. It is introduced by Miss Edith Houseley, who plays the principal part—that of an ambitious little actress, who has to languish as an understudy, until one day she gets her opportunity and replaces the principal. It is an agreeable trifle, delicately and cleverly played.

MR HENRY JOHNSON, an acrobat, is able to boast that he appeared before King William the Fourth, the Sailor King, in 1830. The hale old gentleman has just celebrated his ninety-eighth birthday. May he score a century!

MR BANDURRIA desires to publicly thank Mr Frank Macnaghten for his kindness in paying full salary at the Palace, Bradford, to him during Mr Bandurria's late bereavement

MR CHAS. COVERDALE, who made his first appearance at the London Pavilion on Boxing Night, scored so great a success in his original stories and burlesque imitations that he was immediately secured for three further weeks by Mr Frank Glenister until Jan. 21, 1905, and also for future dates

THE COLISEUM.

The opening of the Coliseum on Saturday, after being twice unavoidably postponed, was a notable event in the history of London's popular places of amusement. This new and magnificent pleasure resort will become, one may with confidence prophesy, one of those sights of the city which every visitor to the metropolis must on no account miss. And from whatever part of the world he may come he will return with reports of the wonderful size and the marvellous beauty of the new palace of pleasure. Of its appearance we have already given a full account, and there only remains to be noticed the programme of amusements. The first entertainment started at twelve o'clock, the audience rising as the orchestra struck up "God Save the King." The singing was led by the two contingents of chorus, consisting of about fifty men, women, and boys arrayed in white who occupied the marble alcoves on either side of the stage. The orchestra having given an admirable rendering of "The Entry of the Gladiators," the curtain rose on a pretty scene, representing "The Banks of the Ganges." Here Indian maidens sang a love-song, "Oowana," the refrain being taken up by a number of youths and girls in the background, who also joined in the accompanying dance. The Princess and her lover were ably represented by the Sisters Meredith. This was followed by the American-Indian song, "Laughing Water;" and then came a charming picture of a Mediterranean watering-place, before the Casino of which the Debreans gave a neat display of Japanese juggling, and an amusing exhibition of sicography. The next item was an Irish scena, "Barney in Connemara," written by Roland Carse, with music arranged by W. Slaughter; and the audience saw for the first time the revolving stage. The machinery worked with perfect smoothness, and the quick change of scene was greeted with a burst of applause. Miss Decima Moore was a charming Irish colleen, and sang and danced with much spirit. She received valuable support from Mr Keino Johnston, Mr Allan Morriss, and others. The Reiff Brothers were recalled for their smart step dancing, and next was presented a musical scena, words by Preston Hope, music by N. Lambelet, entitled The Pickle Girl. The scene was among the pickle jars at Brosse and Clackwell's. Mdlle. S. Sablanc in the character of Miss Chutney sang a ditty, other pickles being represented by Mesdames Nellie Beryl, Bessie Ruth, Marjorie Skelly, Amy Long, K. Martin, Stevenson, Jenkins, and Nainby. No. 7 in the list was a musical scena by Arthur Sturgess entitled The Last Load, an episode descriptive of rural life in the early Victorian era. For this Mr N. Lambelet had composed the music. Very animated was the picture with its carriage and pair, its mounted riders, and crowd of gamekeepers, farmers, dairymaids, shepherds, and gleaners all engaged in celebrating the ingathering of the harvest. Mr J. C. Piddock as the squire on horseback sang an appropriate ballad, and Miss S. Sablanc was a comely squire's daughter. The Boissets next appeared in their well-known pantomime comedy act, The Bricklayers, and again showed how labour and fun could be mingled in the most eccentric fashion. The Troubadours having given a proof of their ability as vocalists, the comedy sketch A Bachelor's Dream was brightly played by Miss May Edouin and Mr W. Edwards. The popular song "Bluebell" was sung by Mr Allan Morris and the auditorium choir, with illustrations thrown on the fireproof curtain. The last item on the programme was the musical spectacle "Port Arthur," but in place of this was given "The Derby." In this representation the full extent of the enormous stage was for the first time shown. The curtain rises revealing a "bit" of Epsom Downs as it appears just before the historic race is run. A throng of people of all sorts and conditions—from the bookmaker and the three-card-trick expert to the youthful "plunger," and the costermonger on pleasure bent—are seen parading about the ground, when suddenly the bell rings and mounted policeman enter to clear the course and incidentally to save a "welsher" from the fury of his victims. Then the scenery begins to move across the stage, and a great shout proclaims that "they are off." Immediately one hears the roar of the crowd and the thud thud of the gallop of the approaching field. The stage, which is covered with a carpet made in the likeness of turf, is now revolving rapidly, and presently, making difficult headway against the revolutions of the stage, the racers and their jockeys are seen through a gap in the front cloth, which soon disappears to give a view of the grand stand. The horses are evidently moving at their best pace, and the spectacle undoubtedly begins to be thrilling as the jockeys struggle for leadership. But the proper climax was never reached at the noon performance on Saturday, owing to a mishap natural to a first representation. The imitation turf managed somehow to ruck up, so as to form an obstacle in what should have been a flat race. It was an untoward incident, but, thanks to the promptitude of the stage-manager, the presence of mind of the jockeys and stage hands, and the high-training of the horses, the serious accident that seemed imminent was avoided.

The second programme opened with The River Girl a summer idyll. Miss Berthe Palisser appeared in the title-rôle, and Mr J. C. Piddock as a gondolier; and the singing of these artists was much appreciated. The scene painted by Mr Julian Hicks represented The Thames Near Marlow. Cooke and Miss Rothert gave an eccentric performance, which was well received. This was followed by the appearance of Miss Millie Hylton as "Dairy Mary," supported by a chorus of dairymaids. In a scene at Monte Carlo Miss Hylton scored as the leader of the Belles' Parade. The charming and tasteful costumes of the ladies were greatly admired. Miss Madge Lessing gave a spirited military ditty, "Good-bye, little girl, good-bye," in which the singer had the able support of the pipers and drummers of the Caledonian Boys' Band and a detachment of Highland soldiers. This she followed up with a novel scene named "The Witches," of which the action is supposed to take place in the Catskill Mountains. Mr Eugene Stratton gave Mr Leslie Stuart's latest composition, "My Little Black Pearl," supported by Miss Bessie Butt and the sixteen special dancers of the Coliseum stock company. The pleasing ballad, "The Missouri River," pictorially illustrated by the magic lantern, and well sung by Miss Berthe Palliser was loudly applauded, and so, too, was the highly trained horse and troupe of performing dogs introduced earlier in the afternoon by Miss Tina Clementa. Time did not permit of Mr R. A. Roberts's sketch, Dick Turpin, or the acrobatic feats of the Three Bounding Pattisons being given. The afternoon performance, like that of the morning, concluded with the Derby spectacle, from which, however, some of the preliminaries were omitted, as the appointed hour for the beginning of the third performance had been overpassed.

THE EUSTON ANNIVERSARY.

Dull and drear was the Euston-road and its vicinity before Mr George Adney Payne and a few enterprising gentlemen raised up the elegant temple of varieties opposite the King's-cross station. It has proved a boon to those whose avocations lie in the work of the great railway termini, while the other residents of the district have availed themselves eagerly of the opportunities afforded them of taking their pleasure cheaply, amid luxury undreamed of by variety lovers in the past. To Mr Fred M'Avoy, who has from the first borne the responsibilities of general manager, has been due in no small degree the secure position which the hall has attained, and his cordiality and business acumen have won him a great popularity. The house was rendered still more attractive on the 23 inst., the occasion of the fourth anniversary, when the outside was made gay by pretty illuminations, while the boxes and balconies within were decorated with flowers and plants in a way that reflected excellent taste. Mr H. E. Davis alone represented the directors, Mr Henri Gros being unfortunately indisposed and Mr Adney Payne being out of town. The entertainment went merrily at both houses, and was supplied by performers well up in the public regard. Mr Austin Rudd took an early opportunity of stimulating mirth with a parody on "Pansy Faces," the funny points of which never failed. A rousing reception awaited Mr Leo Dryden when he emerged from the wings after singing a verse of the ever-green "Miner's Dream of Home," and nobly did the audience respond in the rendering of the popular refrain. Mr Dryden's voice has stood the test of a remarkable career, and the notes of his fine baritone ring as full and clear as ever. Miss Lily Langtry kept the house in high glee from the moment she tripped on to tell of the delights of "Hampstead Heath" and to astonish with her vitality and her drollery. Brief but pithy and piquant burlesques on the drama and opera were given by Boyd and Gilfain, who gave way to the enthusiastic applause, and presented a travesty of a Scotch lad and lassie which was highly relished. Terry and Lambert cleverly presented in "Mamie Maclone" the American prototypes of the Cockney coster and his "Donah;" Miss Dora Lyric sang expressively a pathetic ballad; the sentiment of Mr Edgar Romaine's lay of "Pennies" was appreciated; and the Sisters Wingrove proved a source of rare delight in a song with a peculiar chorus, which by some inscrutable means the audience laid hold of sufficiently well for the captivating ladies to dance to it. Kopski claimed that he is the first pianist to leave the concert platform to play classical pieces on the music hall stage, and his confidence in the improved taste of the public was justified by the attention and applause which they devoted to the "Grand March" from Tannhäuser. Miss 'Del Levey in the carnival costume of the coon sang of a prospective bride whose qualifications were to be extraordinary. Mr Alf Chester pleased everyone with a favourite effusion; the sensational elements of Sally in Our Alley were brought out vividly by Mr John Lawson and company; and the programme was made up by the Sisters Oswald, Nina Martino, Garnet Chandler, Fanny Wentworth, Hamilton Hill, Fred Herbert, Alf Chester, Amy Clevere, the Allisons, Three Sisters Chester, the Harvey Boys, Edith Courtney, Starr and Leslie, Gladys Archbutt, Joe Archer, and Dolly M'Calla. The Original Vivians played their pretty sketch Life's Reverie, in which a burlesque of "The Bard" is carried out in a humorous way, and Hamlet and Romeo feint vigorously in a sword combat while Ophelia and Juliet faint interestingly at hand. The stage was smartly managed by Mr A. Jackson; Mr Charles Wellman bore his added duties cheerily as acting manager; and the band was kept well in hand by Mr Victor Opferman.

THE ELLIOTTS AND SAVONAS

ARE RECEIVED WITH THUNDERS OF APPLAUSE AT THE HIPPODROME, YARMOUTH.

The trend of a large number of holiday-makers yesterday afternoon and evening was Hippodromewards, where a well-lighted and well-warmed house, together with a liberal programme, attracted as big an afternoon audience as we remember to have seen since the building was opened, while in the evening there was a full house. The great turn for the present week is that provided by the clever Musical Savonas. These artistes (eight in number) give a performance of extraordinary magnificence. One side of the building is entirely occupied by their orchestrion, which combines a triple clarion-organ and other effective musical appliances. The principal piece performed was a grand scene from William Tell, in which silver trumpets, trombones, saxophones, giant xylophones, and numerous other instruments were brought into use. The great storm scene was a splendidly worked-out tone-picture, and was received with thunderous applause. This was followed by a further performance of a humorous character, the party finishing up with a new and sensational bell driving act. The Savonas are accomplished musicians, and their act, which lasts for over half an hour, is one of the finest of its class to be seen anywhere. Hundreds of electric lamps brilliantly illuminated their special staging, and heightened the effect of their lovely white satin 18th century Court costumes. At the conclusion of their performance the audience awarded them deafening applause. The six cycling Elliotts gave another brilliant turn, and did some extraordinary feats, one of the troupe descending a high staircase on a single wheel. Mdlle. Eloina, a lady gymnast, gave a fine performance on the high trapeze, and vastly pleased her audience. The fine 30 horse-power motor now to be seen in the town is owned by the Elliotts and Savonas, who made the journey from Darlington to Yarmouth (a distance of about 200 miles) in this splendid carriage to carry out their Hippodrome engagement.—Eastern Daily Express, Norwich, Tuesday, Dec. 27, 1904

The motor-car was specially built for them (at a cost of £1,100, by Messrs Waddington and Hall, Middlesbrough) for their third tour round the world, and is fitted with all the latest and best-known improvements.

AT the Palace, Derby, this week the star turn is provided by the Mannon Troupe of American pantomimists. Their production, Uncle Yank, is highly diverting, and some very elaborate trick scenery is used. The lady artist dances very effectively. Another very praiseworthy item is supplied by the Wartemberg Brothers, double-foot experts, who are particularly clever and entertaining. May Moody, piccolo soloist, performs in acceptable fashion, and Della and Orford are truly labelled, an "inimitable duo." The Sylvesters, hand balancers, &c., are thoroughly deserving, and Charles Paver is a patter comedian of ability. Francisco, a smart novelty juggler, and Tom F. O'Neil, a droll comedian, complete the bill.

MR JOHN TERRY (Terry and Lambert) is mourning the loss of his mother, who died in Charing-cross Hospital on Boxing Day, and was buried in Kensal-green Cemetery on Thursday.

THE usual monthly committee meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the York Hotel on Wednesday next at 2·0 p.m.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of the pantomime of Robinson Crusoe here, you speak in terms of praise of the song-scena "The Waiter." Will you kindly mention the fact that it was specially written for me by Mr Mark Lorne, and is only "introduced" into the pantomime. It is, therefore, my property, and the rights are fully protected.—Yours faithfully, ERNEST SHAND. Camden Theatre, N.W.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

MR. THOMAS BARRASFORD APPEALS.

The words Music Hall Home bring to the minds of our readers the necessities of the aged members of the profession who did their work on the variety stage in its early days long before the era of prosperous empires and palaces. These were the times of hard work and small salaries; when, indeed, the remuneration of stars rarely reached double figures. The benefits of the Home are well known to the variety entertainers, by whose exertions it was established; but its work is unobtrusive, and at this season of charity, when the blessed message "peace and goodwill" wings its flight through the world, it is our privilege as well as our duty to once again emphasise the usefulness of a refuge for the aged and the real need of help to its exchequer. We appealed to the profession three years ago with a success that encourages us to repeat the experiment, and we have the warm approval of Mr Thomas Barrasford, the excellent president of the fund, in opening our columns for another appeal for shillings. We have before us a letter from Mr J. J. Fruin, in which he states that there are now six inmates in the Home, which is at 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E. "Two of them are cripples, and the others very old, the majority being over seventy, and quite unable to work!" What a pathetic record! Imagine, if you can, the hopelessness of the performer, once a favourite of the footlights, stricken with age and infirmity, and then think of the blessing of his being able to spend his declining days in comfort, supported by an institution that is financed by his brother and sister artistes. No one was more alive to the need of such a charity than the late Mr Dan Leno, who had in his early days one of the hardest struggles that ever fell to the lot of an entertainer. We can never forget the eloquence of his appeal for the Fund, to which he was a constant contributor. It is gratifying to think that other staunch friends have been stirred by his fine example, and to their noble exertions the report of the annual meeting which appeared in our issue of Sept. 17 bears witness. Mr Thomas Barrasford, the president, has shown, too, a great interest in the Home. In every one of his halls he has had collecting boxes placed, and on two occasions, when damages have been awarded to him in actions at law, he has arranged for the amounts to be paid to the Fund, and in this way no less than £35 has found its way into the exchequer. A pleasant experience for the committee was the visit paid to the Home on Christmas Day at the dinner hour. The inmates were enjoying roast goose, which was followed by the traditional pudding; and beer and spirits were also provided. The hearts of the old folk were cheered, too, by a bit of bacca, given to them by a veritable little fairy godmother, Miss Nelman, daughter of Mr Fred Nelman, the well-known ventriloquist, and each of the smokers was endowed with a brand new briar pipe. We have said sufficient, we think, to bring the claims of the charity to the attention of our readers. The institution is in great need; and we ask the thousands of our readers to send their shillings to us, and to remember that "he gives twice who gives quickly." There is no greater pleasure in life than giving, and each contributor will have the satisfaction of knowing that every penny will be wisely spent. Collecting cards may be obtained from Mr J. Fruin at the Home, 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, or that gentleman will be pleased to forward them to applicants. We may add that parcels of cast-off clothing are very acceptable. In our charitable crusade we have great faith in the influence of the ladies of the profession, for a reference to the annual report shows that they are capable of excellent work, and in this connection we may mention Miss Lily Burnand, who again shows her kindly interest in the Home by sending along forty-two shillings. Subscriptions may be forwarded to the Editor, The Era. They will be duly acknowledged in these columns.

At Thames Police-court, on Monday, the manager of the Queen's, Poplar, applied to Mr Mead for a licence enabling three little girls to perform there for a week. In answer to the magistrate, it was stated that the children would appear in a school scene for about ten minutes each night. The children came from Brixton, and Lady Mansell was their guardian. They had been under that lady's care for some years. Mr Mead—Lady Mansell has a very large family of that sort, has she not? It was explained that the lady had adopted six children, and they lived with her at 15, Albert-square, Clapham-road. A private omnibus was engaged to take them home each night. The children's education was well looked after. Sub-Divisional-Inspector Cuff said that there was no objection on the part of the Commissioners of Police. The children, who looked remarkably well, were called forward, and, in answer to the magistrate, smilingly said they liked going to a theatre better than stopping away. Mr Mead granted the application.

ASHTON'S ROYAL AGENCY has secured contracts for Les Ados, Nelson Jackson, Les Basques, and Max Langslow.—Meier and Mora have been specially engaged by Mr Thomas Barrasford for the Alhambra, Paris, next month, with the Lyceum, London, to follow.—Little Zola, who has suffered considerable anxiety concerning the health of his little girl, who was lying seriously ill in St. Thomas's Hospital, now rejoices in her complete convalescence.

LEADING LONDON DAILIES.

THE TIMES says:—

"THE VERY MAN FOR DRURY-LANE."

For the great Drury-lane pageant is this year as wonderful as ever, its fooling as lively as ever, and its duration longer than ever. Its new hero is Mr Harry Randall, an indefatigable worker, and the very quintessence of drollery. He is the Fairy Asbestos, guardian of the Princess Aurora, who is the sweetheart of the gallant Prince Peerless. But Mr Randall is not content with being a fairy, all spangles and pirouettes; he is also a barmaid, a much-admired barmaid, who is wooed by Prince Peerless's brothers, Patter and Plump, and, indeed, by several other gentlemen; and when Mr Randall has had enough of being a barmaid he becomes a landlady of the classic type—we mean the type that is classic in "the Halls"—the landlady who has "gentlemen lodgers," and is an expert in tariffs, domestic cookery, and local scandal. To see Mr Randall washing the baby—or rather scrubbing and polishing the baby—should be a liberal education for young wives and mothers. But we have not yet done with Mr Randall. He is at his very best when he frankly abandons his character and comes down to the footlights to sing a "topical" song ("Oh, what a happy land is England!"), or to burlesque a "coon" ballad, or to let loose a torrent of humorous "patter." We would say of him as of another famous character, that his face is his fortune—a variegated face, an indiarubber face, a whole Mercator's Projection of a face—if it were not for his agreeably (or at any rate, not disagreeably) strident voice and his extremely eloquent, versatile, and vivacious legs. In a word, Mr Randall is the very man for Drury-lane, all over the stage at once, and heard all over the house. Humour at Drury-lane must be laid on with a lavish hand; and Mr Randall is gloriously prodigal of it.

THE TELEGRAPH PAYS A TRIBUTE TO THE ROLLICKING HUMOUR OF HARRY RANDALL, AND SAYS:—

This will be the more easily understood when it is added that the Fairy Asbestos was, in reality, that immensely droll comedian, Mr Harry Randall. . . . Mr Harry Randall as Asbestos delivers a most effective parody of the celebrated "Panama" song, to a chorus composed of dustmen. Of the efforts of the principals mention has been made en passant, but tribute must still be paid to the rollicking humour and inexhaustible spirits of Mr Harry Randall.

THE HIPPODROME.

The resources of the Hippodrome arena and stage—mechanical and otherwise—were never more strikingly exemplified than in the latest spectacle, Butterflies in Fairyland, which was produced to a crowded audience by Mr Frank Parker, the stage-director, on Tuesday evening. The novelty is in seven events, each of them emphasising the progress of the struggle between good and evil in the insect world. According to Mr Parker, there are misshapen rock demons, who are for ever plotting the destruction of all that is beautiful in nature and the Demon Fly and some adventurous bats give them material help. They find all the necessary opportunity for carrying out their nefarious designs, when Spring awakens, and feathered songsters sing anthems of thankfulness on bough and bush. We see the early scenes of the spectacle projected upon a circular curtain, and after witnessing the play of fountains, whose ever rising columns of water are illuminated with colours of ravishing beauty, we are enchanted with a view of the 'garden of life," fronted by a translucent lake, with statuettes, and backed by a cascade. Here we assist at the advent of the butterflies. The Demon Fly endeavours to frighten away the winged creatures, but he does it in a half-hearted way. He is too bewitched by their beauty to be in real earnest. They flit into space; they peep from bowers of electrically lighted roses, and most fascinatingly assert the buoyancy of spirit that belongs by prescriptive right to the butterfly kingdom. The representatives of the pretty insects are members of Heidenreich's famous flying ballet, from the Opera House, Paris. The gossamer winged 'lepidoptera" form a harmony of pink and orange, and an admirable foil to these hues is found in the dark colours of the dragon flies and beetles. The butterfly queen very gracefully rules the light-hearted festivities in the "garden of life," and her aerial flights form a very attractive feature of the principal scene. The spectacle, lasting about half-an-hour, is very beautiful in its colourings, and the dances, arranged by Edouard Espinosa, are cleverly conceived and executed by a number of fascinating ballerinc. The whole production with its kaleidoscopic illumination, its shimmering rainfalls of gold and silver, and its flashing fountains is a dream of magnificence, and its glowing pictures and chaste colour effects should draw all London. At its conclusion on Tuesday evening those principally concerned in its invention and staging were called to the footlights and warmly complimented by an audience enthusiastic in its praise. The vocal and instrumental music is by Mr Clarence Corri, the clever director of the excellent band of the establishment; the scenery is from the brush of Mr Ernest Howard, the costumes by Harrison and Co., and the properties by F. Labhart. The work of the chief engineer, Mr H. W. Hawkins, is also of great importance in such a production. In the direction of the whole spectacle we see the genius of Mr Frank Parker, who has secured another triumph for the Hippodrome.

The well-arranged variety entertainment, which has many excellent numbers contributed by old favourites, is enriched by the doings of the famous Chinese conjuror, Chung Ling Soo, who on Boxing Day made his second appearance here. His latest feat is that of catching bullets fired by a posse of riflemen. The scene is set, and represents a fortification in a garrison town in China. A procession of archers, spearmen, tiger-men, and riflemen, followed by the Mandarin in his chair of state, with his retinue in real state Chinese dress, comes on the stage. Chung Ling Soo as the Mandarin in his gorgeous robes alights, and a committee is invited from the audience to inspect the guns, and the bullets are passed round to the audience to be marked. The committee, after examination, place the bullets in the guns. The riflemen then line up and fire at the Mandarin, who catches the bullets on an ordinary china plate. Another most ingenious trick is the magic orange-tree. A girl places herself on a table under a large cone, which, on being lifted, reveals instead an enormous pot with a large orange-tree planted. The girl immediately comes from the side of the stage, and the fruit is distributed among the audience. The same girl is placed in the muzzle of a gigantic cannon on wheels, and then as an extra charge a large ball is placed in the muzzle. The cannon is then pointed at the audience and fired, but only the ball is seen to leave the cannon. The girl has disappeared, but immediately reappears among the audience. There is another puzzling feat with steel rings, and the show throughout has a smartness about it that is quite European.

A feature of the variety bill is the cleverly trained animals. We have Leon Morris's pretty ponies Banner and Maddison, who wrestle in the most playful spirit with a Negro named John Hedge. They also do an excellent liberty act with several companions. Early in the evening Charles Leb presents what he calls quite appropriately a zoological pot-pourri, shared by monkeys, dogs, and cats. The antics of the simians are very amusing, and their acrobatic tricks are quite interesting. The most marvellous exhibition of mammal intelligence is that of Woodward's seals. These aquatic carnivora form a very happy family, and one of them is quite a Cinquevalli in its way, for, after a game of push-ball with an intelligent companion, he balances on his snout a billiard cue placed on a ball with a tempting raw haddock at the top of it, Keeping his eye fixed on the fish he waddles to his pedestal, throws the cue into the air, and catches the delicious bait in his mouth. The sea-lion band is an amusing piece of cacophany, which is added to by the curious cries of the phocæ, which are liberally fed by the tamer, of whom they seem exceptionally fond. It is a unique performance, and just one that will delight the children home for the holidays. Paul Sandor utilises a number of large hounds, made up as diminutive ponies, for a most amusing burlesque circus act, and smaller dogs are dressed up in an ingenious way as humans, and serve the purpose of ventriloquial figures; for Mr Sandor is an excellent polyphonist. The evolutions of his troupe with dummy riders, splendidly costumed, cause much amusement, and he is responsible for a most original act. The Hoopers show no little comicality in their ridiculous juggling, and their hoop-rolling is decidedly smart; their finale, the "Storming of Port Arthur," affording much amusement. The Leslie Brothers are excellent musicians, and one of them is a capital clown as well. Their chief instruments are the cornet and saxhorn, and on these instruments they play a plaintive melody entitled "Nevermore." As a piece of nonsense the tune of "Annie Laurie" is beaten out of metal pots. As musical clowns the Brothers Webb have won a high reputation, which they are ever increasing by their ingenuity, and their droll fooling and capital selections enable them to score most unmistakably. Miss Selma Braatz is quite a female Cinquevalli, if we may judge by the difficulty of her balancing tricks, which include the billiard cue and ball feat, for which the charming artist is much cheered. The Klein Family of musical bicyclists have a show that is always smart and entertaining, and no end of fun is thrown into it by a Nigger lad, who seems to be infected with the joy of living, so full of life and spirits is he. The one-wheel riding of the chief of the troupe is very fine indeed. The Three Nevarros include a girl contortionist who does her graceful bending tricks in skirts. The two men are responsible for some really admirable gymnastic feats, and are perfect artists in their equilibristic business.

PRESENTATION.—Little Auguste, boy comedian and dancer, was presented with a solid gold medal at the Tivoli, South Shields, on Friday, Dec. 23. The presentation was made by the proprietors, Messrs J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney, who spoke in high terms of the recipient.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Seldom has the great annual gathering at the Agricultural Hall, under the superintendence of Messrs T. and T. E. Read, assisted by their able lieutenant, Mr H. Fowler, been so advanced in its preparations as this year, and this, curiously enough, in spite of the most serious obstacles. Wombwell's Menagerie had to come up from Barking in a dense fog, with big lanterns on each waggon, but they arrived without damage and scarcely a collision. Very few of the shows were not "ready to begin" on Christmas Eve; and the items were all of genuine excellence.

A "big thing" in the programme in this, as in preceding years, is the circus under the direction of "Sir" R. Fossett. Amongst the numerous and attractive details of this capital entertainment is a carnival by the Merry Men, including Silly Billy, August the Fool, and Little Crackpot; Mr Davies rides and drives four horses at a time, showing splendid skill; Mdlle. Scott executes some agreeable evolutions on the rolling globe; and Lightning Tom, as the American cowboy, gives dashing illustrations of prairie life. The marvellous Grenadas' sensational gymnastic leaps from bar to bar, double forward and backward somersaults, and their comedy act on the trampoline create laughter and astonishment; Master Thomas introduces his highly trained pony Bonny, who runs up and downstairs and jumps over tables; Rabbit and Hairpin give their new and laughable cake-walk; Signorita Frascuelo, an accomplished horsewoman, does some graceful feats; the Two Fitzroys' gymnastic performance is artistic; an interesting descriptive scene act on horseback is supplied by Mr Davies; Madame Lena shows her skill on the tight wire; Alec Cordon does a comic cushion act; Mr Fossett introduces his clever twin midget ponies; Mr Thomas Yelding's daring jockey act is applauded; Miss Ginnett's trick act is both pretty and sensational; the troupe of Arabian acrobats, including Ameer Abou Hamad, the champion pyramid understander of the world, accomplish some marvellous somersaults and hand springs; Miss Emmie, a charming side-saddle rider, is much admired; "The Sentinel and the Bear," a laughable burlesque by the Brothers Austin, is extremely amusing, with Comical Albert as the Sentinel and Funny Charlie as the Bear; Mr Thomas Fossett's jockey act is full of spirit and activity; the exploits of a tamer in a den of forest-bred lions create a sensation; Mr Yelding, with a trained horse, gives a realistic performance entitled "A Life on the Ocean Wave;" Miss Allar, a delightful equestrienne, does a high-class manège act; a laughable shooting entrée is supplied by those droll comedians Tommy and Johnnie; Mr Davies as the Newmarket favourite is warmly applauded; Mons. Austin, foot equilibrist, is an expert in his line; a double acrobatic jockey act is done by Messrs T. Fossett and T. Yelding; and Topsy, a well-trained performing elephant, is entirely successful. A smart trick act by Mr Davies is received with favour; as is a comic chair and tumbling act by Funny Ramsley. Mr Gnidley's impersonations on horseback take extremely well; and M. Luonsea is a surprising contortionist. The Four Arizonas, acrobatic tumblers and staircase hand-balancing performers, are high in favour; and the Brothers Alberto, with their pyramid of chairs, evoke hearty plaudits. "Sir" Robert Fossett exhibits his skill as a horse trainer; and the bucking mule, Barney, defies all attempts to ride him round the ring.

CHITTOCK'S CINEMATOGRAPH will be freely visited at the Agricultural Hall. The films are of the best; and the show well maintains the reputation which it has won by its long-established existence.

SIMPSON'S PERFORMING PIGEONS do their feats without the aid of apparatus. Their tameness and obedience are the result of their proprietor's gift for bird-training; and the result of his labours is convincing as to ability. His show is both pretty and interesting.

LE NEVE AND SULLIVAN'S lady wrestlers supply an attraction of a kind which is very fashionable just now; and, undoubtedly, the skill and strength displayed by the ladies are astonishing.

"THE LOST DUCHESS" illusion is very neatly managed. A lady, attired as the figure in the well-known "Gainsborough" picture, is seen in a frame, around which a sword is passed. A second and very pretty illusion is also offered in this show.

COTTRELL'S SWIMMERS display remarkable ability in the art of natation, and will certainly attract many to enjoy the sight of their graceful evolutions in the liquid element.

BAILEY'S FINE ART EXHIBITION has variety, beauty, and charm, and is likely to be freely patronised by all lovers of the artistic.

FRANK TURNER'S DISTORTING MIRRORS cause laughter in all who see themselves and others "misrepresented" in their silvery depths. A hearty laugh can always be secured here. Mr Turner's Rifle Range is also freely patronised by "sharp" shooters.

THE HAUNTED SWING is a well-contrived delusion. To explain its mystery would be to spoil the pleasure of some of the hundreds who will inspect this quaint and clever show.

HASTING'S MIDGETS, with their pretty little brougham and handsome pony, are a great treat to young and old, who flock to see the clever dwarfs and their droll doings.

TAYLOR'S LIVING PICTURES are both "up-to-date" and artistic. By presenting an admirable entertainment, Mr W. Taylor has ensured the liberal patronage of the public.

H. BAILEY'S SHOOTING SALOON is resorted to both by the "young idea" and by those of riper growth.

WOMBWELL'S MENAGERIE, as usual, is one of the staple attractions of the great Hall. The lions are especially fine; and the elephants and camels are remarkable both for their size, their number, and their splendid condition.

The HERBERT TROUPE of aerial gymnasts give two shows daily. At each they are applauded to the echo, the natural result of their skill and daring.

"WHITE WINGS," the double-maned and long-tailed horse, is admired as he stands in his stall at the further end of the building.

MENOTTI, on the high telephone wire, evokes demonstrative astonishment in those who witness his extraordinary exploits.

HUGHES' ASSAULT-AT-ARMS booth is visited by those to whom the manly and the athletic specially appeal.

The FAT LADY holds court all day, and many are those who come to admire her vast proportions.

BAILEY'S CIRCULAR SWITCHBACK, Venetian Gondoliers, and Galloping Horses are immensely popular.

CLAUDE LOWE'S TOPSY TURVYDOM is a thing of delight to young and old.

STOREY'S COSMORAMA, with its beautiful scenic effects, is a great attraction. The views are interesting and effective, and they are shown in the most expert and scientific manner.

The EXHIBITION OF RELICS FROM NEWGATE in the entry will be examined by all with whom the famous "Calendar" is a favourite. Other items of merit are "Slipping the Slip"—a variation of the switchback—the Flying Lady, the Channel Tunnel Express, and a host of minor enterprises too numerous to describe in detail.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—Your correspondent, in his last week's notice of the Empire, Bristol, omitted to mention, yours truly, TELL and TELL.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Sold by Chemists everywhere, 1s. 1½d. per BOX.—[ADVT.]

KING'S LYNN.

NEW ROYAL THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business Manager, Mr Herbert Leonard.—The attractions here for Christmas Eve were Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass by Mr St. Albans and his company. Mr E. St. Albans was a host in himself as the Mad Hatter, and kept the house in roars of laughter. Alice was prettily played by Miss Ida Thompson; and Messrs J. W. Hooper and Sidney Benson caused considerable amusement as Tweedledum and Tweedledee in Through the Looking Glass. Mr Bert Coote gave The Fatal Wedding on Boxing Night. Mr Ernest Owttrim was successful as Howard Wilson; Miss Helen Russell won entire approval for her sympathetic rendering of Mabel Wilson; Miss Beatrice Whitney played Cora Williams satisfactorily; Mr Cecil Collins was a good representative of Robert Curtis; Mr J. Carl Lyle as Toto, the French butler, was good, being ably supported by Miss Carrie Fenton as Bridget; Mr Shirley Lea was amusing as Peter Schwartz; and Miss Marjorie Lawrence did well as the "Little Mother."

LANCASTER.

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson. — For the holidays Mrs Bandmann Palmer's company is proving a big attraction, opening on Christmas Eve with East Lynne. Mrs Bandmann Palmer appeared with success as Lady Isabel, and she was ably supported by Mr F. Skein as Sir Francis Levison. Other plays billed include Jane Shore, Mary, Queen of Scots, Sapho, Hamlet, and Nell Gwynn.

PALACE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs W. J. Fergusson and John Porter.—Another capital programme is arranged here, being headed by Abel and Welsh, one-legged comedians. Muir and Bartlett, in a duologue, The Lady and the Lunatic, is well received, as also is Coram, ventriloquist. Others who contribute successfully are the Zampahs, Miss Minnie Ray, clog dancer, and Mark Tapley, raconteur.

LEAMINGTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr Harry Esden. —A great treat is being provided the holiday audiences here in the shape of a visit from Mr Edward Compton, who, with his company, is commencing a provincial tour. The pieces billed for the week are Davy Garrick, She Stoops to Conquer, The School for Scandal, and Mr Compton's latest success To-morrow. Two crowded audiences on Boxing Day witnessed fine performances of Davy Garrick. Mr Compton in the title-rôle gave a brilliant histrionic display, while Miss Haidee Gunn proved a worthy colleague as Violet Gresham. Mr Henry Crocker and Mr A. B. Imeson played carefully in their respective parts of Gresham and his bright nephew. Those farcical individuals the Rumbelows, the Sowerberrys, and Simpkins were represented by Messrs C. R. Stone, A. Lucy, and G. Wallace Johnston and Miss M. Hassell and Miss Mackenzie in a manner which left nothing to be desired.

LEEDS.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Bush. — Mr James Kiddie's pantomime Cinderella, is the Christmas attraction at this pleasant suburban theatre, and record business has been achieved. It is a clever all-round pantomime, with plenty of rollicking fun, in addition to an abundance of pretty vocal numbers and gorgeous spectacular display. Mdlle. De Rose is a striking principal boy with a handsome figure and accomplished vocal powers. The Cinderella, a charming impersonation by Miss Florence Watson, is ably seconded by a bevy of pleasing beauties, of whom Miss S. Bevan, Miss Nellie Stewart, Miss Pollie Kiddie, and Miss Minnie Harvey are particularly successful. Prominent amongst the fun-makers is Mr C. Harvey, who fairly revels in the busy part of Pimples, the Page; Mr Will Saunders in the rôle of the Baron makes a distinct hit in many amusing interludes; and Messrs H. C. Lovell and Fred Denman, who play the Sisters, miss no opportunity of contributing a share of the good things. Miss Rose Pareezer is to the fore with very fine vocal work as the Fairy Godmother, and Mr J. H. Hawtrey and Mr Wm. Verto also merit high praise for their good work. Clever acrobatic specialty business is introduced by Houpla and Heela, and the expert dancing of the Stewart Quartet is also very popular.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—Mr Macnaghten's third Leeds pantomime opened here to a crowded house on Christmas Eve. Cinderella is the theme treated on orthodox lines by Mr J. H. Wolfe, and the production, dressed and staged in a gorgeous and sumptuous manner, is under the direction of Messrs Fred Baugh and Standley Wade. The company includes many star artistes of well known ability, the part of principal boy being in the hands of Miss Olive Marston, who treats the part in a thoroughly satisfactory manner, her acting being particularly fine and convincing. A pleasing and dainty Cinderella indeed is Miss Lola Patey, who with sympathetic acting and charming vocal work has established herself a prime favourite thus early. Miss Murielle Langley is a handsome and stately Dandini, and the second lady's part of Dorothy is a captivating performance by Miss Edie Rivers, a little lady who knows exactly how to please her audience with song and dance. The piece bubbles over with boisterous yet cleanly fun, and in this direction Mr Deane Tribune and Mr Harry Weldon, who play the two Ugly Sisters, have a considerable share. Mr Herbert Shelley is the penniless Baron, and gets a deal more fun out of it than usual. Mr F. B. Fayme promises to be a big favourite in his clever study of Buttons, the page, his quaint whimsical style making a distinct hit. Mr Tom Weston and Mr Harry Bernard as a pair of broker's men are responsible for many laughter-provoking interludes; Miss Florence Godfrey's fine voice is heard to advantage as the Fairy Godmother; and Miss Flo Schubert and Miss Grace Mackay are also very successful in leading rôles. The speciality dancing of Miss Ivy Lane's troupe is cleverly done. Some decidedly picturesque sets are shown, and the incidental music is arranged and conducted by Mr John Kurkamp. Mr R. Ernest Liston is the courteous local manager.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—Excellent holiday crowds are the rule here this week, and a strong programme is submitted for their delectation. A clever and humorous trio of acrobats appear in Keno, Welch, and Montrose, and their efforts are thoroughly enjoyed; Florrie Gallimore, popular as ever, scores a great success in her own inimitable style; Hagedorn's Grotto, a fascinating spectable, remains over from last week, and continues to arouse enthusiasm; those smart sketch artists Geoffrey and Benson again delight their admirers; and a fresh and novel ventriloquial turn by Barney Vox is a popular item. The Sakers are a smart and well-known comedy couple; Rastus and Banks do well in song and dance; and smart work is also done by Little Uno, a juvenile comedian, and the Vasilesen Troupe of comedy acrobats.

TIVOLI. — Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Charles Weldon and Edgar O. Waller.—The Six Brothers Luck are leading a fine holiday bill in their diverting pantomime sketch, The Hermit: Lind, the novel and mysterious dancer, again arouses great interest; and that popular vocalist and composer, F. V. St. Clair, makes a huge success of new and topical ditties. The rest of the varied and entertaining bill includes Gardner, Griffin, and Gardner, in a musical absurdity; Stanley and Vandyke, expert banjoists; the Donatos, acrobatic marvels; the Elysian Troupe of entertainers; Maud Caswell, specialty dancer; and Monks and Woods, a smart musical turn.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones. — This popular hall is enjoying the best of holiday patronage, and a good programme is in evidence, notable success being achieved by the Maningos, acrobats and equilibrists; Fred Curran, eccentric comedian; Vernando, novelty ventriloquist; Lee and Kingston, comedy artists; and Evelyn Taylor, the clever male impersonator.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager and Scenic Artist, Mr C. D. Leigh. —No better substitute for a pantomime perhaps could possibly be found than the Messrs C. and F. Renad's company in the musical pantomimical comedy The Swiss Express, which inaugurated a fortnight's engagement here on Boxing Day before a crowded house. From start to finish the fun was fast and furious, and laughter reigned supreme throughout the "show," the audience at times giving vent to their appreciation by unstinted applause. As James and John, a couple of eccentric servants, Messrs Charles and Frederick Renad score a genuine success in their congenial parts, which allow these clever pantomimists full scope for the display of their versatility. Mr Wilford Bailey as Dr. Gondimar Gull and Miss Dolly Doyle as Virginia are both to be complimented on excellent embodiments. Others who also acquit themselves with great credit are Mr George Martin as Rob Rollingstone, Mr Alec Wylie as Dudley Green, Mr George Power as Rhino, Miss Nellie Fern as Mrs Septimus Squeeze, Miss Rosie Chandler as Jeanette, Miss May Cornish as Lizette, Miss Dolly Payne as Florette, and Miss Hetty Coventry as Annette. The specialities of the Four Brighton Girls, vocalists, dancers, lance and sword experts, prove an attractive feature. The staging is well done.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—A packed house here on Boxing Day gave an enthusiastic welcome to Messrs Carson and Granville's successful play Defending His Honour, which has the merit of being well played and excellently staged. Mr John Davidson as Douglas Bryce, the hero, and Miss F. Melrose-Millett as Ethel Bryce, the heroine, are seen to great advantage. Mr Clifton Boyne as Stephen Gerald, the evil genius, is excellent. Both Mr Kenneth Black, jun., as Dick Verison and Mr J. P. Marsden as Jack Damish are also to be complimented on portrayals of much merit. Miss T. Elton is conspicuously successful as Jack Bryce, the little son of the hero.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED. — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—Crowded holiday audiences are evincing the greatest delight with the first-class programme submitted here, at the head of which is George Gray and his clever combination, in the well-written sketch The Fighting Parson. Mr Gray at the termination is rewarded with a reception befitting this clever and versatile artist. Another big favourite is Alf Gibson, whose quaint style keeps the audience in a continual roar. He has to sing four songs before he is allowed to retire. A very popular turn is given by the Barowsky Trio, in a humorous scena entitled "In the Wood," in which they excel as gymnasts, the youngster being especially smart in his work. Leonard and Francois provide much merriment, their burlesque of a bull-fight arousing great laughter. A daring and pretty trapeze act by the Three Sisters Trentanovi is another popular item. Miss Childie Stuart is a dainty comedienne, who scores with her song. A fine exhibition of fancy and parodistic dancing is submitted by the Passports. The overture, "Past and Present," specially arranged by Mr John W. Lowe, the musical director, is full of tuneful and popular melodies, to which full justice is done by the admirable orchestra of the establishment.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—Effie White, in her remarkably pretty kaleidoscopic dances, with electrical effects, is making a huge success here. Madame Collard's highly-trained boarhounds, impersonating lions and tigers in a cleverly-contrived and unique act entitled Robinson Crusoe among His Favourites, is on a first successful visit. The Wynford Bros. are unquestionably the best barrel jumpers, &c., that have visited Leicester. Franz A. Crisp is an excellent actor-vocalist. The Rozells cause great laughter in their comedy bar act. Others contributing with success to a varied and good programme are Stanert and Yondi in their comedy and musical act; Alf Levarni, in his wire act, "A Middy's Pleasure;" George Foyle, character vocalist; and Clara Sefton, comedienne and dainty dancer.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—The management has secured for the Christmas holidays Mr J. W. Cragg and company, who are paying a welcome return visit with Laughterland. Mr Henry B. Lewis is capital as Professor Silvanus Moore; Mr John Hitchins is excellent as Dick Marlow; Mr G. Westacott is good as Sir Vincent Marlow; and as Alderman Trentham Mr Craigie Edwards is well placed. It would almost be impossible to find a better exponent of the part of Billy than Mr Cremorne Cragg. Miss Louise Millward is pleasing as Clothilda, and as Clarice Miss Amy Hastings is well suited. The Craggs give a clever and daring acrobatic performance during the second act, for which they are most enthusiastically applauded. The Sisters Belgrave, singers and dancers, contribute some very pretty dances, and their coon songs are well received. On Thursday evening Mr J. W. Cragg took a complimentary benefit, under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress of Leigh.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Mr Hoggan-Armadale and company are appearing here this week in The Bells. Mr Hoggan-Armadale gave a most realistic rendering of the part of Mathias, and held the audience spellbound. Mr Booth Conway and Mr W. F. Clitherow filled the parts of Mons. Bussey and Father Herman very well. Miss Marie Florence played Madame Mathias capably, and Miss Violet Wilson was a dainty Annette. The Vicar of Wakefield, David Garrick, and Trilby are also included in the week's bill.

LONG EATON.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. Meakin.—Mr J. A. Campbell and Mr G. Fulton's company in A Bid for Fortune had a flattering reception from a bumper house on Monday. The play is of the Georgian era, and centres around the efforts of a tramp to usurp the title and position of Sir Philip Templemore (Mr C. Brereton Borer). Mr Oswald Douglas is the usurper, sticking at nothing to accomplish his purpose. Miss Mary Ainslie and Miss Olive Fulton figure as the devoted wife and the victim of the usurper. Little Marie Edmonds takes the part of Little Eric, who has a warm welcome. Fun is plentiful through the antics of Mr Dick Thomas.

LUTON.

GRAND.—Proprietor, Mr E. Graham Falcon; Acting Manager, Mr Louis J. Beard.—Mr T. Edward Ward's company is filling a week's engagement with Her Fatal Past, by Nita Rae. Mr Percy Brown is successful as Mark Desmond; Mr Bernard Dunston, who is responsible for the stage-management, scores as Leonard Fernside; the part of Little Leonard is pleasingly played by Little Ivy Henigan; and in the dual-rôle of Ruth Fernside and Bella De Lara Miss Helen Ingleow does well. Miss Ward contributes an artistic rendering of Honor Symes.

LIMERICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Robert Fogerty. —The Elster-Grime Grand Opera company opened here on Boxing Night in Fra Diavolo. The title-rôle was well rendered by Mr Payne Clarke, whilst Mr Michael Kemble and Mr H. Murphy sustained the humorous rôles of Giacomo and Beppo excellently. Mr T. Partridge did well in the rôle of Father Matteo, and as Lorenzo Mr A. Kewley deserves praise. Mr G. King scored in the rôle of Lord Allcash, and Mr Joe Murphy was the Francesco Veroni. Miss Teresa Gilbert was a capital Lady Allcash, her beautiful contralto being heard to advantage, whilst Miss Lizzie Marshall, Miss Esther's understudy, gave a delightful interpretation of Zerlina's rôle. On Tuesday night The Lily of Killarney was produced. The orchestra was under the able bâton of Mr Edward Grime.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—Under Two Flags is being presented to enthusiastic audiences by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company. Miss Emelie Polini is an extremely vivacious Cigarette, scoring a great success—it was stated that Monday's was her first appearance in the character—and she was accorded a great ovation at the close. Mr Mark Blow is a handsome and manly hero; Mr R. Harley-West does very well as Barkie Cecil; Mr Charles Brooke makes much of his one scene as Lord Royellieu; Mr W. Thornton is very smart as Lord Rockingham; and Mr Will Hook works hard and successfully as the valet Rake, while Mr C. D. Pitts makes an incisive figure of Black Hawk. Miss Hope Mayne as Venetia and Miss Lucy Carr as Lady Beatrice present pleasing portrayals, and Miss D. Carlton is a lively Lavinia. Other characters are well played, and the staging is most effective.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur; Assistant-Manager, Mr Brandon Blake.—Overflowing houses were recorded here on Monday, when a big holiday bill was put on. The Magic Kettle, presented by Samson for the first time before Lincoln audiences, created great astonishment, and is the talk of the town. Jimmy De Voy and his wonderful pony give a clever and amusing turn, and a great effect is made by the Cinématograph film "Whirling the Worlds." Friscarl, a smart juggler, repeats the success of previous visits; Jenny Reeve, comedienne; Edie Sylvesto, contortionist; and Dardan and Iris, dancers, also appear with very great success.

LIVERPOOL.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—The chief attraction here for the festive week is Mr J. L. Shine as Conn (the Shaughraun), supported by an able company. Craig, Rose, and Craig are acrobats of no mean order; Professor Maccann, with his concertina, is well received; George Prince and Nellie Adams are also good.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—The four-act drama The World's Desire, from the pen of Mr Barry Williams, is full of good points, which are accentuated with marked effect by Mr and Mrs Wm. Giffard and their No. 1 company. The part of the solicitor Tridley is undertaken by Mr Giffard, an actor of ability; Mr Clifford Rean shows his dramatic powers in the dual-rôle of the twin brothers; Mr George Child as the drunken solicitor presents a telling character; Mrs Giffard plays with sweetness and sympathy the rôle of the heroine; and Miss Ella Seton gives an acceptable rendering of Helen Berkshaw.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville; Business Manager, Mr F. L. Arthur.—Mr Lingford Carson's able work The Drama of Life has proved a strong attraction here during the week. Included in the principals were Messrs Jerrold Ord, John J. Hooker, Owen Remonde, Bulwer Pitt, Leonard Thackeray, and the Misses Cissie Bellamy, Muriel Inglis, Nellie Daly, and Marie Murray.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—This popular place has had a fair share of the Bank Holiday week patronage, the programme presented being full of good things. At the top we have Fred Karno's company of comedians with their laughable sketch Saturday to Monday. The ludicrous antics of Mr Fred Kitchen as John Willie Jaggs kept the audience in a continual state of merriment. Peppo's monkeys go through a smart performance; Mr Horace White provided a good turn with his ventriloquism and piano playing; several acceptable songs are rendered by Miss Lilian Lowe; Messrs M'Phee and Hill give a well-appreciated exhibition on the horizontal bars; much laughter is created by that quaint comedian, Johnny Gilmore; and others in the programme are Lyane and Geks, smart novelty contortionists; and Jan Rudenyi, Hungarian violinist.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—In the long bill-of-fare offered here this week Ed. F. Reynard is at the top. His exhibition as a ventriloquist is excellent, the manipulation of a number of figures being skilfully performed. The wonderful feats of memory shown by a blind man introduced by Mr Charles Morritt create considerable attention; Mr Morritt performs some exceedingly clever sleight-of-hand tricks; and Miss Raffin puts her troupe of monkeys through a smart act. A popular comedian is Gus Harris, with his Hebrew impersonation; Dusty Rhodes provokes much laughter with his patter and songs, as does also George Penn. Michele and Sandro are clever acrobatic equilibrists, and some charming serpentine dancing is executed by Mdlle. Flora Lumiere. The bill also includes Miss Ethel Yorke, comedienne, and the Two Fat Boys, athletes and musicians.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—A special attraction here for the Christmas holidays has been Miss Madeline Clifford's company in the dramatic musical sketch, Wife and Fortune, which is full of mirth and pathos. Miss Clifford, who undertook the rôle of Beauty Glitters, also sang with taste. The sketch was loudly applauded. In the general part of the programme were Mr John Stewart, an old favourite comedian in Liverpool; Mr Billy Richardson, the well-known stump speaker; and Mr Percy Boucher, the Cockney comedian.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—Heading the bill here are the O'Malleys, who have been responsible for much laughter; Barney Stuart gives his amusing creation, "Impersonalia;" Little Marie Dane is a graceful vocalist and dancer; Marco, the boy illusionist and magician, provides a clever sleight-of-hand performance; Florence Wood proves herself an able burlesque actress and dancer; and Bert Holmes sings several acceptable songs.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—A diversified bill-of-fare is presented here this week. Heading it is Mr George Pitt, the collier strong man and instrumentalist; Gambo, the musical man monkey, is a good turn; Bert Lytton sings several smart songs; Little Beatie for a child sings and dances neatly; Kid Johnson manipulates the clubs with skill; Alec Swann and Elsie Stanley submit a clever entertainment which includes forty impersonations of well-known people and characters; and Lil Gorman is a singer and dancer of merit.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery. —At the north-end music hall Harry Glynn's comedy sketch team head the programme and provide an excellent turn. Mr Charles R. Whittle, a smart versatile comedian, remains another week; some admirable conjuring is done by Shanghai; a contortionist of remarkable power is Mephisto; and Johnny Dane, the popular local comedian, meets with a cordial reception. Others in the bill are Mons. De Picta, a clever shadowgraphist; Chas. Dixon, comedian and dancer; and Kate Lynn, comedienne.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—The Gregson Comedy Trio are top here this week with their laughable absurdity The Dummy; Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists, pay a return visit with their latest successes; the Delamere Trio of equilibrists give a novel turn; Lilian Travellie has a pleasing voice and some good songs; and the remainder of the programme contains the names of Lily Lever, burlesque actress; Sam Dalton, character comedian; Henriette, vocalist; the Two Gems, comediennes and duettists; and Arthur M'Nab, juvenile vocalist.

MAIDENHEAD.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Edgar Dereve and F. L. Schmitz.—A Wrecker of Men was presented by Messrs Maurice and Morgan's company on Boxing night before a crowded house. The central character, Risca Mallison, is one of exceptional power, and is particularly well filled by Miss Ellen Beverley. Miss Alice de Lacey is quiet but effective as Doris Melville, and Miss Kitty Melville is very good as a "slavey" of the Louie Freear type. Mr W. F Travers had, in Jim Murley, a prominent and exacting part, in which he does well. Mr Alfred Maurice is good as Guise Strange; Mr Sydney Fiennes is well adapted for the rôle of Railton; and Mr M. J. Cumming is an acceptable Verrincourt. Mr Milner Noble deserves praise as the Egyptian Pharos, and the double rôle of Ezekiel Isaacs and Karnaphus is a clever piece of acting by Mr Henry Rutland.

NEW PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr G. Gude.—A good entertainment is provided for the holidays. Undoubtedly the cleverest turn is that of James Fay, a smart female impersonator. Fred W. Egan is a good top boot dancer; Tom Cara, George Scott, and Joe Dale appear as character comedians; and Miss Hettie Le Bon does well as a burlesque actress. Leslie Reed is well received in his songs, and is specially applauded for his extempore compositions. A farcical comedy sketch, entitled Mistaken Identity, is played by Evered and Vaughan.

MANCHESTER.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—A very potent attraction was established here on Monday for a period extending well over the Christmas season—in fact for so long as may satisfy the eagerness of the public to see a play which rivals the attractions of pantomime. Mr William Greet's company has been engaged to give The Earl and the Girl a musical comedy which seems to have been designed purposely to involve a picturesque display of dresses and that eccentricity of plot which makes for humour of the broader kind. There is something in the idea of the dog-trainer' temporary translation to an earldom, set forth as it is by Mr William Stephens in the part of Jim Cheese, which must inevitably draw the laughter-loving public to give this venture of the management the great success it deserves. Mr Stephens is particularly happy in the comic incongruities of the second act, and it is likely he will make himself a welcome favourite with Manchester audiences. As Dick Wargrave Mr Percy Carr also scores an outstanding success, his pleasing voice and lively style imparting marked vigour to a performance which is singularly animated as a whole. This vigour distinguishes also Miss Aimée Grey, who gives a very nice depiction of the American heiress; Mr Will Hindson, whose version of Downham, the Yankee solicitor, is phenomenally smart; Miss Florence Imeson, who plays Daisy Fallowfield in charming style; and Miss Dot Carey, who gives quite a lifelike delineation of Liza, Jim Cheese's sweetheart. Others who contribute notably to the success are Mr Paul Belmore as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, Mr Tom Redmond as the host of the inn, Miss Helen Langton as Virginia Bliss, Miss Gladys Fontaine as Mrs Black, Mr J. C. Graves as Mr Talk, and Mr William Walshe as Bunker Bliss, while the efforts of the remainder, added to those of the chorus, are full of vivacity throughout. The orchestra has been largely augmented by the company's instrumentalists, and the whole combination is under the direction of Mr Evelyn Baker.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead. A capital programme is presented here this week, including remarkable turns by Amy Anderson and company, in a coster scena; Lachie Thompson's Topweights, in an exhibition of athletics; Chard's highly trained troupe of performing dogs; and Herr Venturini's latest illusion, "Age, the Suspended Maiden." Other entertaining items are Alba and Amba, comedy jugglers; Vere and Royal, in a comedy act; Frank Whiteley, comedian and dancer; Master George, boy vocalist; Sivane and Fielding, sketch artists; Jack Horsley, bag puncher; and Beattie Kendal, character vocalist.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A drama embodying strong naval interest, Why Woman Sins, by W. P. Sheen and F. S. Jennings, is the attraction here this week. It is the play's first visit to Manchester, and a large and curious audience was decidedly pleased by its interest and sensations on the opening night. Mr Fred S. Jennings and Miss Cora Deane have the control of the company, which is throughout a capable one. Prominent parts are in the hands of Mr Wallace Campbell, Mr Roy Fortescue, Mr E. Harvey-White, Mr Charles Herberter, Miss Gussie Everitt, Miss Effie Bartlett, and Miss May Axon, all of whom acquit themselves with credit. There are many minor parts of interest also, some of which are full of acceptable humour. Very effective scenery is employed.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Potasch.—Mr Ben Greet's principal company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, occupy the stage here this week in The Belle of New York. The attractions of this piece are sufficiently well known and appreciated to ensure full houses, which are the order of the week. Mr Harry A. Maymott is particularly excellent as Ichabod Bronson; Mr Harold Wardroper is effective as Harry Bronson; and Miss Mora Hersee is pleasingly demure and tuneful as Violet Gray. Mr Walter Emro also does well in the difficult part of the lunatic, and other notable rôles are filled by Messrs Mack Olive, Colin M. Johnston, Walter Uridge, Miss Ada Elliston, Miss Jennie Lynwood, and Miss Florence Hersee.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—This week here A Royal Divorce occupies the stage, and continues, for all its many visits, a strong attraction. That Mr Frederick Victor and Miss Edith Cole are in the principal parts is an assurance of the exceptional quality of the company, who give a powerful interpretation of the play.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead. —The star turn here this week is supplied by Claude Ginnett and company in that amusing sketch The Cockney Sportsman, which is received with roars of laughter. Gus Garrick, a capital vocal comedian, makes a decided hit; and Harry Morris is deservedly well applauded for his excellent mimicry, singing, and amusing patter. As an eccentric musician Eddie Stidder is highly successful; Ray and Lea are smart comedy gymnasts; Field and Acres appear in a laughable act, The Park Keepers, and do some good dancing; Herslebs aerial comedians, are particularly good; the Sisters Bartholomew are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Almon is a clever hand balancer; and the Danvils, song illustrators with living tableaux, are well received. The series of animated pictures are very interesting.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—An exceptionally good programme is provided here this week. George White's Night Arabs sing and talk in an exceptional manner; Cyclo arouses enthusiasm by his clever cycle tricks; Achilles is equally successful with his really surprising feats of strength; and Mahatma astounds the audience by her exhibition of thought transmission. Harry Thurston gives excellent impersonations of leading artists; Len Lever is good as a coon singer and dancer; the Sisters Lytton are well described as "charming vocalists;" and Harland and Rollinson cause much amusement with their drolleries and clever playing of musical instruments. The Four Maisanos give a somewhat similar turn, which has also much merit; and finally the Ettenas show their skill as globe rollers. The animated pictures are quite up to the average.

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—Fannie Leslie, an old Manchester favourite, is here this week, and sings three capital songs; a remarkable item is supplied by Zaid in his Oriental speciality, introducing some astounding contortions on the rings; the Two D's (Dorothy and Dora) appear in a special scene, and render "Anona" in a most charming and effective manner; Tiny Reiff, a dainty comedienne, sings two pleasing songs; James Brady is a highly amusing comedian; and other enjoyable items are supplied by Percy and Percy, duettists and dancers; the Sisters Charnley, speciality dancers; Peter Kelly, comedian; and Ted Waite, comedian.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Collins.—The star turn here this week is Horace Goldin, the great illusionist, whose performance, assisted by Miss Jean Fransiola and company, is surely the most marvellous of its kind to be seen upon the stage. James and Marie Finney are also here in their exhibition of trick swimming in a tank, while remarkably good turns are given by the Trapnall Family of Continental acrobats; Oakley and James, versatile artistes; Harry Lawson, eccentric comedian; and Fraser and Mac in a comedy creation entitled The Modern School of Acting. Other entertaining business is supplied by Werner and Reider, tyrolean "stars"; Jennie Belmore, burlesque actress and soubrette; Princess Pauline, serio; and the Cape Girls, vocalists and dancers.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—The following are engaged here this week:—Pichel Troupe in their sensational acrobatic display; Browning and Wally, acrobatic and strong teeth act; David Poole, ventriloquist; Ronald Bayne and Evelyn Hope in their novel and effective scena An Emperor's Divorce; Mayon and Marl, comedy duo; Will Dalton, vocalist; Melaine on the "corde elastique"; Mabel Kessler, cornet and post-horn soloist; and Dorothy Payne, burlesque actress. A series of animated pictures are also shown.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—The Six Brothers Luck, in their beautiful pantomime The Babes in the Wood, which was fully noticed last week, remains the attraction here, and runs smoothly from beginning to end. On Monday the house was packed at each of the three shows, fully 8,000 people paying for admission. Besides this big item, included in the current programme is Rousby's "In Paris," an electric review in four tableaux, showing the most interesting features of the French capital—a decidedly novel turn. Zeta Gray sings well in an absurdity, entitled The Lancashire Lass; the Four Jumels appear in a delightful musical act; and last, but not least, Carl Reinsch remains with his highly trained horses and dogs.

MANCHESTER HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr E. P. Morgan; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr H. Hall.—Huge crowds amounting to over 10,000 persons, beseiged this latest of local places of entertainment on Monday, the opening day, when three performances (the first preceded by the National Anthem, sung to orchestral accompaniment by a choir in Georgian costume) were given of a performance designed to employ the novel combination—in Manchester—of a music hall stage and an arena, which can be filled with water in the space of a few minutes when desired for the show. This spectacle was, in fact, requisitioned for an elaborate equestrian sketch called Tally-ho! which involves four scenes freely equipped with horses, dogs, vehicles, and a variously costumed company of large dimensions, the whole producing an effect remarkably realistic and sensational as the staple attraction of the programme. Current attractions also are Manning's entertainers in their comic scene of The Turkish Baths; Max Gruber, with horse, elephant, &c., in a clever parade act; the marvellous Noissets, cyclists on the whirling table; the M'Connell Trio of musical sketch artistes; Lafayette's clever dogs, Winter and Banks, in The Leading Lady; Elsie Clare, a pleasing vocalist; Post Mason, baritone, in a popular song; and a series of Bioscope pictures.

MARGATE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr C. E. Hardy.—For the amusement of the Christmas holiday patrons of this theatre Mr George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company has been playing the sensational drama Judy; or, the Fatal Hand. Mr George Kirk enacts the rôle of Grip, the man with three fingers, with an amount of assurance that commands attention. As Duburg Mr Richard Ferris makes a good impression; and Mr William Vane is a decidedly interesting Sterling. Mr Will Casey as Jim, the coster, is full of kindly sentiment; Mr Frank Lyndon is pleasing as Dick; and Mr J. Stoner is particularly good as Mike. Miss Violet Langley is most effective as the scheming woman Blake; Miss Mary Neil plays with success as Alice and Polly, a dual-rôle; and Miss Florrie Groves fairly revels in the part of Judy, the child of the streets, playing with a vigour that is quite refreshing.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—The holiday attraction here has been Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company in the comedy Saturday to Monday. The principal character, Lord Culvert of Alcester, is successfully impersonated by Mr Stuart Champion, who displays considerable skill and ability. As the fascinating widow, Mrs Wendover, Miss Moyra Creegan cleverly sustains the character. Miss Adeline Lester is most effective as Lady Diana Porchester, whose daughter Angela is admirably represented by Miss Kitty Doyle. The acting of Mr Dallas Welford as Stanley Pidding is excellent; and as Probyn Dyke much amusement is caused by Mr Jack Hampton. Mr Edward Ling is good as the Rev. Thomas Toop, and the rôles of Miss Ursula Toop and Miss Skeet are capitally impersonated by Miss Madge Burton and Miss Charlotte Mead respectively. Miss Olive Loftus Leyton does well as Thompson. The comedy has been preceded each evening by the one-act farce, Judged by Appearances.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—On Boxing night Mr Van Biene and his excellent company opened in The Broken Melody. In the second act Mr Van Biene captivates his hearers with his grand 'cello solos, and his acting as Paul Borinski is characterised by real emotional intensity. Miss Ida Chapman gives a graceful and clever study of Mabel, and as the Duchesse Miss Marie Rignold is highly successful. Mr Arthur Bawtree is particularly good as General Ivanoff, and Mr T. P. Haynes as Dudley Mortimer gives a thoroughly racy rendering of the part.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—The attraction here is provided by Mr J. H. Clyndes's company, in The Royal Revenge. Mr J. H. Clyndes gives an artistic performance of Estevan Alvarez, and Mr Geoffrey Broughton is exceedingly good as the King of Spain. Mr Edward Aldworth merits praise for a capital embodiment of Nicholas Vargas, and Mr Charles Jordan ably sustains the part of Manuel Modega. Mr Jack Bigwood is highly amusing as the Innkeeper; Mr Richard Webb does excellent work as Friar Dominic; Miss Bessie Elms's rendering of Inez is natural and sympathetic; Cora Casilda and Paquita Marcela have excellent representatives in Miss Evelyn Shannan and Miss Aimee Grattan.]

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Messrs Marston and Buckstone's pantomime Goody Two Shoes was produced here on Saturday. Miss Maud Western is a dashing principal boy as Roland; Miss Marie Santley is no less successful as Goody Two Shoes; Miss Connie Irwin is a charming Fairy; Miss A. D. Hender is successful as the wicked demon; Mr F. A. Marston works well as Baron Graball; and Mr Dan Hardie (Bobbie Bobs), Mr Syd Bazley (Simple Simon), Mr Ted Mac (Dame Durden) are all first-class comedians, and gain hearty approval. Capital specialities are given by York, Mac, and York, with a boxing act; Grant and Kelley, eccentric knockabouts; Varno and Nano, gymnasts; Messrs Phinas and Aida, hand-balancers; and Wilmo, trick cyclist.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—Dick Whittington as played by Mr J. F. Elliston's company under the management of Mr Charles Hermann and the stage-management of Mr Fred Mulvey has made a favourable impression. The title-rôle is charmingly sustained by Miss Ethel Newman. Miss Clara Reid is a most acceptable Alice; and as Mary Ann Miss Nellie Dade is amusing. Mr Burt Byrne creates considerable laughter in the character of Gertrude, the cook. Alderman Fitzwarren is made the most of by Mr Charles Goff; and Idle Jack is successfully played by Mr Tom Foy. The dresses and scenery are pretty, and the orchestra under the bâton of Mr W. Sommerland is deserving of praise.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Licensee and General Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Mr Humphrey E. Brammall's Christmas pantomime, Cinderella, was presented at a matinée on Monday. The principal boy was Miss Marie Loftus, who made the very most of the part of Prince Peerless, and though suffering from a slight cold her singing was much enjoyed, her most marked success being a clever Japanese coon song. Miss Alice Digby was very pleasing in the title-rôle. As Sister Gertrude Mr Lawrence Barclay was funny, as was also Mr Victor Travers as Pickles. The Baron Balderdash of Mr George Hestor created a favourable impression, and fun of the rollicking kind was provided by Mr Tom Bass and Messrs Hoades and Luck. The Eight Stars are capital acrobatic dancers. The dresses are very fine, the properties artistic, the scenery beautiful, and the chorus tuneful and well balanced, whilst the orchestra, under the able guidance of Mr Norman Latham, is deserving of praise. The pantomime is under the management of Mr Horace Cole, and the acting-manager is Mr G. Rhodes Parry.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—A good holiday programme is provided, Mr G. W. Leslie's company in the prize play, Chums, heading the bill. The Four Estrelles give an exceedingly smart acrobatic performance; Charles Fanning, comedian, is a great favourite; and Clarke's Nippers, speciality act, are much in favour. Goggin and Davis are amusing in their acrobatic act, and Edie Gray and her white coons receive hearty plaudits. Charles Russell pleases with his singing, and Mdlle. Viviane is a pretty dancer. Some amusing films are shown.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr W. Ainsworth.—The Cirnocs are the principal attraction here in their handcuff turn. The Royal Zarbinis Troupe in a scena, In Fairyland, make a great hit. Ellis and Watts, comedians and dancers, please; Lee and Arden, in The Lady and the Waterman, is an amusing turn; and Robert Beevers in "Comicscope," is capital. Lil Esplin sings some good songs; Herniot and Sanvion are clever conjurors; as a vocalist Fred Bronte is much in favour, The Bioscope completes the programme.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy; Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan.—Mr Arthur Rose pays a visit this week with his company in The Follies of Youth. As Captain Ronald Druce Mr Walter Bentley could scarcely be excelled. Miss Violet Macaree acts with infinite grace as Gwendoline Murdock; Miss Bertha Hanbury is clever as Little Ruth; Mr Arthur Rose is capable as Ralph Murdock; and Nat Thistle finds a good exponent in Mr David Beattie. Mr Fred Haming is smart as Bob Roberts; and Kitty Hawthorne is well played by Miss Ena Russell. Miss Laurie E. Pardy is very good as Dorothy Dornton.

NEATH.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Johnson.—Mr Johnson opened his pantomime season here on Boxing Day with Japan's Aladdin, the music arranged by Mr G. T. Hutchins. There are several clever people in the pantomime, and they enter into the spirit of the thing with great gusto. Aladdin has a gallant and shapely representative in Miss Carrie Campbell; Abanazar has a nimble exponent in Mr George H. Pitt; Mr Charlas Vernon as the Emperor is good; Miss Rosa Lind as Pekoe is successful; Mr Tommy Gough as Li-Li, Aladdin's mother, is very funny; as is also Mr Johnson as Washee Washee, of the Royal Baths. The cake walk by a dozen local children in Aladdin's palace is successful.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Mr Walter Melville's company is paying us a return visit with A Girl's Cross Roads. An experienced actress in Miss Hilda Beverley sustains the part of Barbara Wade with much ability, and the support is good.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—Holiday audiences are well catered for at this hall, where Fred Karno's company remain for another week, but they are now presenting with success their sketch Mumming Birds. The Three Sisters Hayden are well received in their songs, and some smart juggling is exhibited by Prince Kokin. We renew acquaintance with George Bohee, the famous banjoist, and acceptable contributions are also those of Madame Alice Simmons, operatic soprano; Swan and Bambard, acrobatic comedians; Edie Veno, comedienne; Diamond and Beatrice, song and dance artistes; Hugh Stanton, sketch artist; and Warren Doyle, the Ashington dancing pit boy.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Thornton and Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—Here we are favoured with a visit from Mr Stanley Hope's company in The Master Criminal. Mr Albert Guyon in the title part does capitally, and Miss Nellie Thearle as Cecile also appears to advantage.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—For the Christmas and New Year's holidays the management have secured the Negro musical comedy In Dahomey, and on Monday night the unusual spectacle was witnessed of hundreds of people being unable to obtain admission to the theatre, which was crowded to the very doors. The play was a huge success, the many excellent musical numbers and dances with which it abounds being received with much applause, whilst encores were numerous. Mr Dan Avery as Rareback Pinkerton and Mr Charles Hart as Shylock Homestead were excellent, and caused endless laughter. There is an extremely strong company supporting these two artistes, and the engagement may be counted a big success.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—Crowded audiences assemble here, where Harry Ford, who is meeting with the heartiest of receptions, has a capital budget of songs, which he gives in his usual enjoyable style. A novel and amusing sketch entitled Fun at a Railway Station is merrily rattled through by Farley, Rennie, and Farley. The Young American Quintet supply some capital singing and dancing. Musical eccentrics in the Brothers Forrest are well to the fore, and there are also appearing successfully A. Aldridge, Walton and Miss Ella, with a clever dog show; Lilly Seville, Miss Florizelle, and the Allsons.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—The D'Oyly Carte No. 1 opera company opened here on Bank Holiday with two performances of The Mikado. As Pooh-Bah Mr Fred Billington, that admirable droll comedian, was seen to advantage; and Mr C. H. Workman in the rôle of Ko-Ko fully sustained that high standard of merit with which his name is identified, while Mr Pacie Ripple, in sympathetic and tuneful voice, was an ideal Nanki-Poo. Miss Norah Maguire was a fascinating Yum-Yum, singing brilliantly, and equally effective in the characters of Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo were Miss Jessie Rose and Miss Alice Lisle, while Miss Theresa Ransam as Katisha sang and acted admirably. Mr Fred Drawater was an excellent Pish-Tush, and Mr Albert Kavanagh effectively impersonated the Mikado. The melodious gems with which the opera is studded were received with manifest signs of appreciation. Included in this week's bill are H.M.S. Pinafore, Iolanthe, Pirates of Penzance, and The Gondoliers.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—A good all-round holiday programme is provided here. The band, under Mr Sam Tute, opened with "Les Deux Magots," following which came Dome, the original clay modeller. Phillips and Terry in The Revolt of Man were successful. Charles Gardner, the eccentric comedian, was warmly received, and little Nellie Coleman cleverly impersonated an Irish comedian and comic singer. Richard List's performing bears were interesting; the Howards were warmly applauded for their cornet solos; and the Sisters Devona presented an exceedingly pretty electrical act. The Lumas gave some excellent acrobatic performances, and Harry Lamore on the slack wire received quite an ovation.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—The pantomime produced here on Boxing Day is Robinson Crusoe, produced by Messrs Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy, and specially written by H. E. Bowes, with music selected and composed by H. Wellings and H. Somerville. Miss Vera Mayne is very nice in the nom-rôle; Miss Nellie Moore is a pretty Polly Hopkins; Miss Daisy Volbecque makes a "killing" Captain Billie Taylor; Miss Rosie Volbecque as Princess Flumera is attractive; Miss Bertha St. Ruth appears with success as Electra, the Good Fairy; Mr Will Freedo presents the Dame, Mrs Sarah Crusoe, in a droll manner; Mr George Rapley is a clever Will Atkins; and the Twins, Billy Crusoe and Jimmy Crusoe, as represented by Messrs Bass and Guiness, are full of fun and merriment. Mr T. Johnson is good as King Kyapoloola, and his dancing is highly appreciated. Mr Will Crowson is very capable as Friday. The French Brothers, unicyclists, and the Three Deveres are the principal specialities. The scenery is by Alfred Whyatt, and the rich and appropriate dresses are by Miss Hetty and Miss Ada M'Donald.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Barton.—The Christmas programme is a highly acceptable one. The Great Northern Troupe of International dancers are very good; the Staffordshire Cardboard Boxmakers, a trio of comely lasses, sing in excellent style; H. C. Wills has a comic effusion that is quaintly rendered; the Parez Trio of lady hand bell-ringers give a good performance; Phil Sinclair, assisted by a partner whose name is not on the programme, is extremely funny in a domestic scena The Night Walk; Texas Hattie is a coloured young lady of ability on the tight rope; Clark and Golé, "The Astro-Nomers," with their special business and clever banjo playing, meet with much favour; Barnard's world-famed marionettes are among the most perfect of their kind; and Harry Florence is still popular here.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Mr Harry Foxwell's company, with Shadows of a Great City, has attracted large holiday audiences here this week. Mr Foxwell as Tom Cooper is responsible for a clever portrayal of the character; Mr Charles Vivian is capital in the rôle of George Benson; Mr Arthur Tomlin is effective as Arkwright; and Mr Beard Randal makes the most of Jim Farren. Miss Sheila Walsh in the dual-rôle of Annie and Nellie Standish merits warm praise.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Mould.—The Zaros, acrobats and tumblers, the principal attraction here, have had a very hearty reception; the Jalvans, coloured Oriental entertainers, introduce a clever act; and Mr George Bernard, actor-vocalist, scores a great success. Little Lady Fauntleroy, ventriloquist, is smart, and Mr W. Horsley, song and dance artiste; Mr James Lowrey, the singing furnaceman; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope also meet with favour.

NORTHWICH.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs S. Golden; Manager, Mr Percy Webb.—A visit of Madame Willoughby's grand spectacular pantomime company in Babes in the Wood is the holiday attraction here, and on Monday night the house was packed to suffocation. The book is well written by Mr Thos. Willoughby; the musical selections by Mr J. Holroyd are bright and tuneful; the dresses, designed by Madame Willoughby, are pretty and tasteful; and the mounting gives entire satisfaction. The company is of all-round excellence, and the show goes right merrily from start to finish. Mr B. Gardner, who is responsible for the production, is a host in himself, and in the dual-part of the Demon King and the Remorseless Uncle works like the true artist he is; Mr G. Williams does well as Bottle Neck; and Publican in the hands of Mr W. H. Chambers leaves nothing to be desired. Messrs Brown and Harker as the two villains find plenty of scope for their humorous treatment of the part, and Mr Alf. Foy causes much merriment in his delineation of the Nurse. The parts of Friar Tuck and the Sleepy Boy are well looked after by Messrs W. F. Ames and F. A. Halma respectively. Miss B. Dudley as Robin Hood plays with real ability and success; Miss Winnie Wentworth is charmingly attractive as Maid Marion; and Miss D'Alberte acts and sings well as the Good Fairy; whilst the Misses Violet and Daisy Mottley as the Two Babes win hosts of admirers with the very able enactment of the characters. The specialities are the Sisters Allen, international dancers; the Two Flowers, in a successful coon song and dance; and Halma, in his special show of juggling. The transformation scene, entitled Lilies of the Valley, is a perfect picture.

NORWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr E. St. Alban's company in Alice in Wonderland and its sequel, Through the Looking Glass, is here this week. Miss Ida Thompson as Alice displays ability, and Mr J. W. Hooper as the Mock Turtle ably assists. Mr Sydney Benson as the Gryphon, Miss J. Rogers as the Cheshire Cat, and Miss Edith Alcoe as the Doormouse render much assistance. Mr St. Alban does well as the Mad Hatter; Mr George Handel and Miss Madge Webster as the King and Queen of Hearts are good; and Mr J. E. Cowell as the Knave of Hearts and Mr L. Sandown as the Executioner create much fun. Mr J. W. Hooper and Mr Sydney Benson as Tweedledum and Tweedledee are energetic. The Cards and Chessmen ballets with the fairy dances are admirably presented by the juveniles from Mr Philip Nolan's training school. The scenery and effects are very good. Mr George Jenkinson ably conducted.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Captain Selby.—Among the attractions in Norwich this place of amusement is certainly not the least. The Leopold Troupe are acrobats of marvellous ability, and their performance is greeted with much applause. Tom and Marie Montramo are warm favourites, and their musical comedy, Do You Reverse? is heartily greeted. Lauri Wylie is an ingenious mimic with his mannikin, and some well-known artists receive faithful representation. The Great Wieland is a very clever juggler. The Royal Welshmen appear, although not billed, and are highly successful. J. H. Bowman is well received. Beatty and Blanche are charming duettists and dancers. The Venola Brothers do well as comedy gymnasts, and Rosa Rosetti deserves every praise for her admirable turn. Extra matinées were given on Monday and Tuesday.

NOTTINGHAM.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Charles P. Cooke.—Mr Charles Chard's pantomime, Goody Two Shoes, was presented here on Christmas Eve. Mr Fred Locke, the author, has dished up some capital fare in his best vein. The story is naturally simple, and deals with the love of Goody and Roland, whom the Good Fairy wishes to assist by giving a magic rose to the former, which will help her in all difficulties. Unfortunately, Goody misplaces the rose, which enables Mephisto to use his powers for ill against her. Eventually the Good Fairy comes to her assistance, the rose is found, and all ends happily. There is ample foundation on which to build an attractive entertainment, and no opportunity is lost by the artists. The scenery is exceptionally good, and special commendation should be accorded the Gardens en Fête and Her Highness's Hall. The music is catchy and tuneful, and Mr A. Stratton is to be congratulated on his stage-managership. Miss Ida Gladstone fills the part of Roland with a vivacious energy that will win her many admirers, and her voice is heard to advantage in the popular song "Dolly Gray," and in the duet, "When I think" with the principal girl. Miss Annie Casey is an attractive Goody, and her singing of "Old Bull and Bush" fetched the audience at once, an encore being demanded. Miss Lily St. Julian (Dolly Dimple) and Miss Gladys St. Julian (Peter Piper) sing and act with versatility, and Miss Isa Steel performs the part of the Good Fairy with natural grace. High praise is also due to Miss Bessy Dears (Pansy Blossom) and Miss F. Spencer (Frisky Friday). Mr Charles Chard undertakes the rôle of Simple Simon, a part in which his powers as a comedian have full scope, and there is not a dull moment when he is on the stage. Mr James Kerry as Sammy Sopps is always entertaining, and his humour finds its reward. Mr Sidney Dean as the voluble Dame Freckles adds to the merriment. Messrs Bliss and Bliss as Phil and Tom keep the audience in good humour by their jokes and antics, and a couple of coloured comedians, Pete and Juno, display their activity in clever dancing and singing. Miss Alice Marsden is sufficiently weird as Mephisto, and specialities are given by the Mikado Troupe of Dancers, the Sisters St. Julian, and Nano, Leo, and Kinko. The performance went capitally throughout, and Mr Charles P. Cooke, the genial manager of the theatre, has earned the thanks of his patrons for the smart pantomime provided for them.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, A. W. Bull.—For the festival week Mr Macnaghten has staged The King's Pardon, which abounds in sensational incident, being founded on the life of a noted highwayman, which character is played by Mr C. A. Leicester with a gallantry and abandon that make him a huge favourite. Mr Charles Stirling acts carefully as Noel Blake, and the misfortunes of Clifford Yorke are well shown by Mr Charles Whitlock. Miss Georgina V. France embodies Barbara Yorke with tenderness and feeling, and Miss Violet B. Clarke does well as Marjorie Yorke. There is an abundance of humour, in which Mr Harry Belford specially shines as Major Dobbs, being ably seconded by Miss Pollie Denville, a charming waitress; Mr Val W. Gully as Ebenezer, and Mr Will Lawrence as Sergeant Slade.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—The graceful and artistic dancing of Loie Fuller seems the very poetry of motion, and its excellence is enhanced by the beautiful colour effects, the whole forming an attractive spectacle. Carl Hertz and his assistant, Mdlle. D'Alton, remain this week, and must feel gratified by their reception. The Bostons, of the comic bull-fight fame, are also retained. A skilful equestrian act is introduced by Otto Schumann, assisted by Miss Mona Mona. Warden Reed and company submit a farce, Married or Photographed, to the accompaniment of hearty laughter. The Labakans and their clever dog go through some comical acrobatic feats with great credit, and the conjuring of Little Nelusco forms an agreeable item. The versatility of Harry Campion is exemplified in songs which gain him recalls, and a fine programme is closed by Miss Kitty Bell, vocalist and dancer, and L. B. Athol, character comedian.

NUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—After being closed for five nights, Mr Arthur Gibbons opened his tour on Saturday at this pretty temple of the drama with Beauty and the Beast. Congratulations are due to Mr Gibbons and to Mr Cross, whose efforts to please have been crowned with success. The pantomime is presented in two acts and ten scenes, all of which are exceedingly pretty. The music is specially written by Mr Percy Kurntz and Mr Mark Strong, the latter ably conducting. Miss Linda Keston gracefully carries out the rôle of Beauty, her songs being well received, especially "Bluebell." A very attractive principal boy is Miss Marie Beaufort, who proves herself an accomplished vocalist. Mr Sydney Vereker fills with success the part of Ko-Hop, his amusing ditties provoking a good share of merriment, and as Maude Hannah Mr Albert E. Mann is quite at home. The twins, Reginald and Sibyl, Mr Will Holland and Tom Banks, work well together, making a decided hit with "Has anybody seen our brother Charlie?" Miss Janet Lawton puts plenty of dash and spirit into the part of Dandy Veller; Miss Margarite Romney is a capital representative of Malicia (Spirit of Strife), and Miss Gertrude Wright proves a favourite as Amoroso (Spirit of Love). The specialities by the Misses Trissy Mills, Rosie Knott, and Sisters Hula are heartily appreciated. Between the acts great excitement is created by the Original Dartigan's wonderful performance of "Looping the Loop." The performance closes with a pretty transformation scene, The Four Seasons.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—Mr and Mrs Calvert Routledge opened here on Boxing night for a week's engagement with The Cricket on the Hearth. Mr Calvert Routledge gives a highly creditable representation of John Peerybingle. As Caleb Plummer Mr David Curtis is very natural, and Mr Sydney Sarl is most realistic as Mr Tackleton. Mr Alexander Wills is versatile as Edward Plummer; Miss Mary Jocelyn (Mrs Calvert Routledge) charms her audience by a delightful portrayal of Dot; Miss Dora Lewis convulses the house as Tilly Slowboy; Miss Sybil Ruskin makes a good Bertha, and Miss C. Warner is graceful as May Fielding. Of the immortals, who dance in very effective style, Miss Maud Ryder as Fairy Cricket, Miss Maggie Robertson as Fairy Christmas, Miss Marion Ryder as Fairy Queen, and Miss Daisy Jago as Puck are all highly successful.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—Mr Sanderson Moffat is here with A Woman Adrift. As Sir John Ingleby Mr Joseph Millane is most effective, Mr Claud Morton is good as Jibbs, Mr Saunderson Moffat interprets Ferdinand Castro with considerable power and ability; and other male characters are all in capable hands. Miss Phyllis Hamilton proves an attraction with her artistic rendering of Cora Leigh; Little May Tickell is excellent as Rupert Ingleby; Miss Vera Tickell is successful as Nanette, and Miss Patey Trounsell in the dual-rôle of Lady Ingleby and Stella is decidedly good.

PETERBOROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—The American drama, A Fight for Millions, is the holiday attraction here, being presented by Mr Robert Perris's company. Mr V. Carlyle is a success as Tom Manley; Mr J. Newton Cowling as Hudson Rivers and Mr Horace Booth as Richard Dudley are both good; Mr Robert Perris is amusing as Willie Neverwork; Mr Karl H. Edwards does well as Solomon Moses; and the Pearl Rivers of Miss Eva Purcell is a creditable performance.

PAISLEY.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—Topping the bill this week is Joe Wesley's Scottish Minstrels, who appear in new and original funny songs and sayings and adroit dancing. The others of the company are Bruce M'Kenzie, in old favourite Scottish songs; the Big Four, in their statue dance, "The Gambler's End;" Robbins and Crewso, in their comic interlude The Professor and the Boy; Joe Edmonds, banjoist; and Tom Robbins, dancer.

PENTRE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—Mr Hugh Osborne's company is here in The Sins of the Fathers. Mr Wallace Eastlake gives a clever impersonation of Geo. Armitage, seconded in a charming style by Miss Dorothy Routh as Edith Harmsworth. Mr B. Dennison as Sebastian Brandt and Miss Amy M'Neil as Camille Leblanc are deserving of high praise. Mr J. Dillon's Mr Harmsworth is exceedingly good.

PLYMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—The hall-mark of public approval is likely to be stamped on this year's Royal pantomime, judging by the frequency of encores and the unstinted applause which were forthcoming at the initial performance on Christmas Eve. The subject levied under contribution by Mr G. V. Keast is Dick Whittington. In a humorous vein is the story told, and there is a wealth of local and topical allusions, many mirth-provoking incidents, and a goodly sprinkling of up-to-date songs. Very pretty indeed is the scenery, the music is bright and lively, and has been well arranged by Mr Charles Victor, whilst that indispensable condition to the complete success of a pantomime—a big bevy of pretty girls—is very much in evidence. Like the scenery, the costumes are very effective, the whole reflecting the highest credit alike on those already mentioned, and last, but not least, Mr George Taylor, the producer and stage-manager. The nine scenes comprise representations of Old Cheapside, Highgate-hill, deck of the Golden Kipper, the Emperor's Palace, and London in the olden time. A new claimant to Plymouth favours, Miss Margaret Ruby, scored well as Dick. Tall, graceful, of prepossessing appearance, and gifted with a nice voice, she is an acquisition, and all were pleased with her performance. Miss May Angus-Young is of attractive appearance, and therefore makes an ideal Alice, especially as she sings, dances, and acts so bewitchingly. In the part of Blue-eyed Susan Miss Georgie Grantley does exceedingly well, and Miss Muriel Juin sings sweetly as the Fairy Queen. A gay and dashing Prince who can sing a good song in great style is Miss Nellie Sheffield. There is quite a galaxy of talent amongst the male artists, who are, of course, responsible for the fun, of which there is a full supply. The life and soul of the piece is Mr Pat Waddock, who is very amusing as Idle Jack, and he is well seconded by Mr Frank Weir as Biddy the cook. Messrs Reed and Lerne are capital comedians, whilst Mr Edmond T. Sayers is an admirable Alderman. Very clever dancing is provided by the Misses Amy and Florrie Lock, Cissy Burgess, and Nellie Loft, the Australian belles, and a tribute must be paid to the chorus work, which is very satisfactory. Artistically and musically a success, the pantomime should also be a financial success.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Williams.—The Earl and the Girl are making their début here this week through the medium of Mr William Greet. There is all-round excellence in the company. Mr Alec Fraser as the hero sings intelligently and pleasingly, and in conjunction with Miss Mary Fraser wins much applause. Mr Reginald Schwitz as Cheese is distinctly funny, and admirable portrayals were forthcoming from Messrs Fred Edwards and Hybert. Mr H. B. Brandreck appears as Bunker Bliss, and Mr Haddon Cave provides a clever impersonation of Crewer Boodles. Miss Cynthia Carey, Miss Maud Adams, and Miss Mary Morrison add to the enjoyment of the piece.

METROPOLE THEATRE (DEVONPORT).—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton.—Produced here on Boxing Day, Sinbad the Sailor is a pantomime which the public will flock to see on account of its many good qualities. Mr Carlton has eclipsed his former effort, and is to be congratulated on this his second production of the kind in the town. The dialogue teems with humorous allusions, and the local "hits" catch on splendidly, as they deserve to. As for the mounting of the piece, some of the scenes are gorgeous, and there is, generally speaking, much beauty and colour. The musical department has been well looked after, with the result that the orchestration, under Mr Stephen Blythe, was all that could be desired, and there is bright and tuneful music all the time. Mr H. F. Housden, the stage-manager, is to be complimented on his achievement; and words of praise are due to Madame Marie Harold, who has arranged the attractive ballets, and to Miss Elsie Jerritt, whose training of the children was so efficient that the performance of the little ones is quite a feature of the pantomime. As the principal boy Miss Rita Leslie is very talented, and pleases the public all the time. Miss Katie Holloway is dainty and vivacious as the sweetheart; and other successes amongst the ladies are the Misses May Rivington, Madge Yates, Kathleen Emmett, and Ruby Toze. Merry-makers include Mr Gilbert Payne, who is funny to a degree; and Mr J. Kerno and Mr H. Ugar, comical seafaring men; Mr S. Atwill and Mr Stanley Howard appear in important parts with great credit.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Directors Messrs Livermore Brothers; Manager, Mr J. Field.—The star turn this week is Dr. Edmond Taylor with his mystic kettle. The Ragamuffins, a quintet of vocalists, are clever; Attilla Brothers, skilled athletes and weight lifters, provide an attractive entertainment; Juma's Octoroons, a combination of young singers and dancers with Miss Amy Tilley as interlocutor, go strong; Haldyne Duo is very amusing in The Curate's Dilemma; Clyo and Rochelle appear as acrobats; Herbert Cyril is an eccentric comedian; Miss Maud Stanley has some good songs; and there are animated pictures.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—The amusement of the holiday folk at this theatre has been entrusted to Mr George Dance's principal company with the musical play of The Girl from Kay's, and it is just the sort of light entertainment likely to suit the season. Miss Gladys Desmond played Norah Chalmers with dainty refinement; Miss Maisie North as Ellen was capital; Miss Mabel Champion as the doubting mother-in-law, Mrs Chalmers, played with much ability; the Winnie Harborough of Miss Nancie Hervyn was a very agreeable and natural impersonation. Mr Garnet Wilson was brisk and smart as the much-harassed husband, Harry Gordon; the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle was amusingly played by Mr Leslie Roy Cathie; Mr Arthur Jackson made the best of Theodore Quench, K.C.; Mr H. C. Barry's diverting interpretation of Max Hoggenheimer was largely appreciated by the audience.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—The management here has provided a strong company for the Bank Holiday week. Yvett's Hippodrome, with their equestrian and canine act, affords keen delight; Arthur Albert, comedian, sings his songs well; Jean Seul, the Indian mystery, meets with unqualified approval; Mdlle. Martha is a graceful lady gymnast; Stewart and Morgan score in a vocal speciality "Leaving Ireland;" Kitty Nevill, dainty comedienne, has a good reception; Chas. Ridgwell, eccentric comedian, is in fine form; Mdlle. Kloet appears in her original spectacle "Panneaux Des Art Electriques," produced with great artistic merit and much appreciated; Hunt and Resford, the Australian comedy duo, do well; the Revell Troupe, in their pantomime Mischief, create roars of laughter.

PONTYPOOL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; General Manager, Mr J. H. Stephens.—Mr and Mrs William M'Laren's répertoire company is proving a great holiday attraction here this week with Proof. Miss Lily C. Bandmann impersonates the characters of Madeline and Valentine with great success. Mr M'Laren himself makes a hit as Pierre Lorance. On Tuesday night the four-act comedy David Garrick was performed before a crowded house. The other plays for the week include The Lady of Lyons and East Lynne.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—The attraction for the holidays at the above is Mr Henry Furnival's company in Lost in Paris. Mr W. J. Butler is very successful as Count De Linière; Mr A. V. Dixon gives a capable rendering of the part of the Chevalier Du Vaudrey; the Marquis De Presles has a capital exponent in Mr H. Charles; Miss Pattie Hastings deserves mention for her excellent impersonation of La Frochard; Jacques and Pierre are successfully played by Mr Edward Valentine and Mr Henry Furnival respectively; Miss Alice Oliver makes a charming Countess De Linière; Mr J. Fulton Miller is an amusing Picard; Mr W. Garrett is well placed as the Doctor; Miss K. Willoughby plays effectively the part of Louise; and Miss Louisa Peach gives an excellent performance of Henriette. The drama is well mounted, the scenery and costumes being very pretty.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Miss Ada Alexandra; General Manager, Mr E. Pryce.—The above place of amusement was reopened on Boxing Day with an excellent programme, contributed to by Les Francois, acrobats; Stylo, hoop manipulator; the Butts, barrel jumpers; Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; the Moxon Family, feet equilibrists; the Australian Comedy Team, Bruce and Ross, Carlo Barello, the golfer-juggler; the Three Ethardos, on the unsupported ladders; the Musical Dorells, Sam Anderson, a clever horseman; and Hairpin and Rabbit, clowns. An afternoon performance will be given every Monday throughout the season.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—Milton-Rays' company opened here on Christmas Eve to a good house in the pantomime Beauty and the Beast. Miss Maidie Scott is seen to great advantage as Silver Button; Beauty is pleasingly impersonated by Miss Nellie Merton; and Prince Greatheart has a bright representative in Miss Maud Jay. Mr Rolando Martin works hard and successfully as Sammy; Mr G. Rydon provides a good share of fun as Sir Mackintosh Mizzletoe; and Mr Edwin Garth is an amusing Wilhelmina. The funny business of Messrs Fyne and Hurley as Spindles and Twitters evokes much laughter. The Hayes Brothers acquit themselves well as Tommy Titmouse and Willy Winkles. Mr Sidney Milton capably depicts Witch Spitfire; and Mr James Sherwin (the Beast) delivers his lines clearly. Special turns are contributed by the El Dorado Quartet of dancers; Hayes Brothers, Australian comedy artistes; Fyne and Hurley, society entertainers; and Wallau, the boy juggler. The pantomime is effectively staged, and the onerous work of producing it has been successfully carried out by Mr Milton Rosmer.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—On Monday evening the drama A Modern Adventuress was presented here for the first time by Messrs Carson and Granville's No. 1 company, and the unfolding of the plot was followed with keen interest by a crowded house. Mr Geo D. Knight gives a capable delineation of William Delby. Mr Royce Carleton cleverly sustains the part of Harry Delby; as Wallace Danton Mr Edward M. Hamilton displays considerable ability; much praise is due to Mr Leonard Aardale for his able embodiment of Pietro Bonelli; Miss Alice Defoe is quite a successful Vivette Delby; and in the title-rôle Miss Beatrice M. Anderson gives a powerful performance. Miss Emily Custance (Sally Hodges) and Mr Evan Roland (John Crompton) create much amusement; and Mr Leonard Montgomery gains appreciation as Steve Meredith. The drama is well staged.

RUGBY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr E. Parker Royston.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr F. Somerfield's company is here this week with A Life's Revenge. As Prince Boris Strogoroff Mr F. Somerfield gives a powerful impersonation; as Paul Starovitch Mr John F. Traynor's rendering is realistic; and Mr T. G. Vane as Maurice Trevor is successful. Mr Walter Roberts as Michael Orloff is good; Mr George C. Hall is worthy of commendation as Clarence Chesterfield; Mr Sidney Ernest makes the most of the part of Nicholas; and Mr Charles E. Warne as Colonel Tumbleoff and Mr Edwin Chectham as General Mikhaloff both act with ability. Miss Marie Dagmar in the rôle of the Princess acts with grace and is to be highly complimented upon her successful interpretation; Miss Amy Elliam as Marcia Vittoria shows herself to be an accomplished actress; and as Daphne Dashaway Miss Maudie Grayson does exceedingly well. Miss Amy Hughes is very good as Acoulina.

FOSSETT'S HIPPODROME.—A remarkably good programme is presented here this week. Mr John Irvin in his marvellous juggling act on barebacked horses displays wonderful dexterity, and as a foot equilibrist he is equally good; Miss Pinder in her clever trotting act introduces with graceful effect her flock of trained pigeons; Miss Marie gives a graceful and effective exhibition of serpentine dancing on the rolling globe; Mdlle. Fossett is responsible for a most graceful exhibition; and Mr Robert Fossett is again successful in winning the appreciation of the audience by his daring and skilful horsemanship. The Brothers Smarte and Comic Charlie are very amusing, and Mr Charles Becket repeats his success of last week. Mons. Otto, hand balancer and Arab tumbler is very good, and the midget performing pony and the bucking mule both display wonderful intelligence,

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Mr Fred J. Kirke is to be congratulated on the production of The Naval Detective here. In the triple rôle of Lieut. Jack Beresford, Rev. Frequent Nipper, and Pat M'Guinness he displays much dramatic ability, and Mr George Anslow gives an adequate representation of Dr. Schreiner. Mr Alec Godfrey as Capt. Hastle dances admirably; Mr Arthur Beaufort as the Hon. Bertie Fairlox also does much good work. Mr Wm. Bird makes up well as Hans Winklepump; Miss E. Claus as Susan Scrubbs is amusing; and Miss V. Russell is well received as Phyllis Leslie and a sailor boy. Miss Florry Hayes plays Lulu in a pleasing manner, and Miss Lily Seymour makes the most of Rebecca Gentle. Miss Lily Gwynne and Miss Kitty Clark are a pair of graceful dancing girls.

RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE. — Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—After having been closed for a short period the Amphitheatre — the interior very effectively redecorated and repainted—reopened on Boxing night with the pantomime Aladdin, played in capital fashion by Mr Herbert Barrs's company. The chief rôle, that of Aladdin, is impersonated in fascinating style by Miss Kitty Clayton, while Miss Nellie Dyson has won all hearts by the charm and grace with which she sings and acts as the Princess. Mr Billie Jackson is a distinct success as the Widow Twankey. Contributing greatly to the success of the production are clever speciality turns by Ada Marjutti, appropriately described as the flexible Venus; Marti and Julietta, who give a daring flying spar performance; Bernado, a really comic tramp juggler; Travella, a dexterous wire walker; Grapho and Jackson, comedians; and the smart Empire Troupe of dancers. The harlequinade—designed to give fun to the juniors in the audience—has certainly achieved that object.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—On Saturday Pardoes' combination of high-class artists opened here with Cinderella to a large audience. Miss Cissie Kedward makes an excellent Cinderella, and sings and dances in a manner leaving nothing to be desired. As the Prince Charming Miss Lottie Holland is a prime favourite, whilst Scoot is taken by Mr George Hyam, who displays great talent as a humourist. Messrs Harry Hanley and Mike Hastings as the knockabouts keep the house in one perpetual roar. Miss Violet Rivers and Miss Ivey Leafe as the two Sisters are also seen to advantage. Miss Nellie Rose as Princess Rosella, Miss Katie More as Dandini, and Mr Tom Hulme as Baron No Cash greatly help the success. The specialities introduced include the Brothers Pardoes, in their human skipping rope and human bundle turn; Capita, with his living marionette; the Sultan Brothers, herculean equilibrists: the Dome Trio of wonderful dancers; and the Sisters Tyrell, sand and buck dancers.

READING.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—Messrs Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's comic pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor was produced here with complete success on Boxing Night, and is having a very successful run.

SMALL TOWN HALL.—Mr Ben Lawes gave a variety show at this hall on Boxing Night before a crowded and most appreciative audience.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Mr Joseph Poole, who has paid an annual Christmas visit to this town for many years past, has again produced his popular myrioramic and variety entertainment at the above hall. The performance commenced on Boxing Day, and will be continued twice daily. The latest up-to-date tableaux are exhibited, including stirring scenes of the Russo-Japanese War and a series of new animated photographs. Among the other attractions are Mdlle. Orbassany and her troupe of performing cockatoos; Miss May Finch, characteristic vocalist; the Veronas, lady dancers; Felix Somers, the facial king; the Marvellous Westwoods, expert and comedy cyclists; and Mr Nat Abatt, the popular guide and raconteur.

ROCHDALE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—It's Never Too Late to Mend was presented on Monday evening. Mr John Wainwright again appeared with distinct success as Tom Robinson; Mr Alfred E. Calver made a favourable impression in the part of George Fielding; and Miss Kate Randolph acted with womanly feeling as Susan Merton.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Hargreaves.—An excellent programme has been submitted here. The Bros. De Wynne are an exceptionally clever pair of athletes whose graceful and refined tricks evoke deserved applause. The Onatis Troupe of jugglers appear in picturesque costume and perform with skill. Will Godwin, in Repentance; J. J. Plant, comedian; Miss Omega, "queen of the wire;" Sheila M'Neill, Scotch comedienne; Jack Martin, descriptive vocalist; and the Empire Bioscope add to an enjoyable list.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—The special attraction for the holidays here is being provided by The Bells of Haslemere company. Mr Leonard Yorke is a manly Frank Beresford; Mr Montague Turner gives a strong portrayal of the part of John Silkstone, being ably seconded by Mr Charles A. Chandler as Captain Vere. Mr Charles Cecil is seen to advantage as Reuben Armstrong; Mr Douglas Hamilton scores as Matthew Brookfield; Mr Charles Clark is a typical Patrick Desmond; and Mr Harry Montague is very amusing as Toby. Miss Harrietta Polini is pleasing and sympathetic as Evelyn Brookfield; Miss Stafford Smith is a sprightly Dorothy Tremble; Miss Mary Hardacre does well as Mary Northcote; and Miss Florence Chandler plays Nora Desmond with fine dramatic effect.

TOWN HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Mr Goulden Hamilton, the Yorkshire humourist, is providing the entertainment here this week with a specially strong company, including Charles Howarth, Victoria Rich, the lady baritone; Val, conjuror; Handel and Lee, P. Rhodes, the Vyponds, together with the Edison Paul Bioscope, and the Oakdene singing pictures.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—The Still Alarm is proving a good holiday attraction here. Messrs Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is responsible for the realistic production. Jack Manley, the hero, is excellently played by Mr Matthew H. Glenville and Miss Mary Lovett is a charming Elinore Fordham. Mr Paul Lovett represents the villainous John Bird; Mr Fred Osmond gives a clever study of Doc Wilber; Miss Connie Meadows, a graceful dancer, is successful as Carrie Wilber, and joins Mr Tom Beasley as Willie Manley in much mirth-provoking business; Mrs Manley is well played by Miss Mabel Veriton; Mr Dan Mining as Joe Jones has a good share in the fun; and the Lyric Comedy Four assist with glees which are well received.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—The matinee and both evening houses were crowded on Monday by audiences who heartily laughed at the very entertaining sketches, A Matrimonial Agency, by Joe Hayman and Mildred Franklin; The Water Cure, by Charles Stewart and company; Next, Please, by the Bros. Ashley; Not a Word, by Kitty Glover and R. Courtney; and Parson and Sport, by Keen and Waller. Acceptable turns were given also by Book Pylades, facial artist; Amy Elvira, comedienne; and Fielding and Hull, vocal entertainers.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Manager, Mr J. B. Taylor.—Crowded houses appeared highly pleased at the matinee and two performances on Monday evening. A laughable sketch entitled The Blind Spinster, by Fred Lloyd and company, heads the bill. Other turns are provided by Alma Obrey, comedienne; Otto and Olga, novel comedy and musical act; Chris Masters, character comedian; the Donare, in an acrobatic equilibrist act; Andrew Higginson, vocal comedian; Pinaros, in their funny American comedy act; Vincent, a clever acrobat and Arab tumbler; Kellino and Pope, in their circus comedy act; the Two Wiltons, duettists and expert dancers; and Hurman, juggler and hoop manipulator.

L. AND N. W. PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietress, Mrs S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—The holiday attraction here as usual gives satisfaction to the numerous patrons. Among the artistes engaged are Mr Walter Dunn, character comedian; Miss Mary Turner, comedienne; Mr Harry Huntley, baritone and violinist; and Mr Frank Hulme, descriptive vocalist.

BRIDGE HOTEL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Tom Bradbury; Musical Director, Mr Cecil Pollitt.—This cosy hall, which recently changed hands, has been thoroughly redecorated and made very pretty. It was reopened on Monday by Mr Tom Bradbury, who is well-known in Salford, and was for some time acting-manager of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton. The company engaged includes Mr Edward Gresty, tenor vocalist; Miss Vera Vester, coon and descriptive vocalist; Mr Leo Trainor, clever humourist; Mr Lester Lyons, baritone; and Mr Will Peplowa, variety artiste, well known in the district.

SCARBOROUGH.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr J. T. Carpenter.—Mr Leigh Lovel's company is here playing with much success the farcical comedy, The Duke of Killiecrankie. Mr Leigh Lovel is a capable Henry Pitt Welby; Mr Herbert J. Bentley makes an excellent Duke of Killiecrankie; Miss Octavia Kenmore is good as Lady Henrietta Addison, and the same may be said of Miss Naomi Neilson's Mrs Mulholland. The play is well mounted.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew.—The boards of this theatre are occupied by Miss Mary Austin's company in The Cotton Spinner. The principal characters are sustained by Messrs John S. Haydon, E. V. Edmonds, E. C. Edwards, E. F. Tysher; Mesdames Bella Power, Mary Grimshaw, and Miss Mary Austin. The play is preceded each evening by a series of animated pictures on the Bioscope.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing Director, Mr Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr Walter Kitchingman.—A crowded audience assembled here on Boxing Night to witness Mr Harry Firth's company in the pantomime, Cinderella. The pantomime is produced under the direction of Mr Fred Lake; Miss Madge Osmond sings and dances well as Cinderella; Miss Ethel Mohr's voice is heard to advantage as the Princess's valet; Prince Perfect is successfully played by Dora Denmark; Mr E. Wilson is the Baron; the Baron's twin daughters are played by Mr I. Binns and Mr H. James; the Baron's page, Pimple, is safe in the hands of Mr Fred Lake; the Prince's footmen are well presented by Messrs W. Marsh and W. Morris; the Sisters Golfrey are loudly encored for the dances; Miss Rosie Leroni puts in good work as a dancer; and Miss Clarice Mignon performs on a variety of musical instruments.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Quinton Gibson.—Here again on Boxing Night there was a crowded house. The principal item here is the pantomime sketch Sinbad the Sailor, in which thirty local children appear. The other items include Valvo, ventriloquist; Miss Florrie Bray, vocalist and dancer; Ethardo, juggler; Miss Gertrude Moore, step-dancer; M'Neil and Will Ellerslie, comedians; the Vyponds, in their drawing-room entertainment; and Miss Pardoe.

SEACOMBE.

IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—Mr Leslie Norman's company opened here on Boxing Day with the successful musical comedy A Trip to Chinatown. Mr Charles Sequin as Welland Strong repeated his former success, as also did Mr Jerrold Manville as Ben Gay. Mr Leslie Norman is a decided success as Rashleigh Gay; Mr Oswald Gray does well as Saxon Blood; Mr Will Smith as Noah Heap and Mr S. Champion as Slavin Payne are all good in their respective rôles. Miss Bertha Codman, although labouring under the great disadvantage of a most severe cold, invests the part of Mrs Guyer with characteristic dash. Miss Daisy Revett is successful as Flirt, and Miss Florrie M'Innes as Tiny Gay, Miss Winifred Davies as Isabel Dane, and Miss Francis Erroll as Willie Grow leave little to be desired.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—Messrs W. J. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company is here this week with Florodora, this being the first visit of the popular musical play to Seaham. A monster holiday audience witnessed the performance on Monday, and the interpretation throughout was of the most successful character. Cyrus W. Gilfain is taken in capital style by Mr C. Young Fixott; Mr William Everard as Abercoed scores heavily; Mr Frank Grant as Captain Donegal shows great ability; Mr Arthur Lenville proves an immensely popular Tweedlepunch; Miss Maud Lake is a thoroughly artistic exponent of Dolores; Angela is charmingly played by Miss May Yates; and Lady Holyrood is pleasingly presented by Miss Cissy Sephton.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Mr H. E. Angless.—The new management opened on Monday afternoon for a week's engagement with a capital variety programme. Miss Georgie Morris is a clever comedienne; Mr Fred Rowe as a society entertainer wins favour; Mr Tesler James is a good humorist; Miss Adela Sutcliffe gives excellent violin solos; Mr Wilfred Stracey earns praise as a comedian; Miss Bianca Woodford well renders solos on the banjo; some good cornet solos are given by Miss Ida May Angless; Miss Edith Pratt sings well, as also does Miss Gertrude Skinner; and the orchestra, under the direction of Madame H. E. Angless, contributes largely to the success of the programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow, sen.; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—The attraction here this week is the production of the pantomime entitled The Babes in the Wood, under the direction of Mr C. St. John Denton, who is supported by a powerful company. The dancing by the Four Olympian Stars is very clever; Steve Selby and his mechanical donkey cause much merriment; Dainez's Circus, with the celebrated donkey Smiler, evokes the heartiest of applause; Miss Ethel Karri as the good fairy, Water Lily, is very winsome, and Miss Rosalind O'Ferral is well suited as Herne; Prince Charming finds a pleasing exponent in Miss Rose Dearing; Miss Eleanor L'Estelle makes a capital Phyllis; Mr Willie Scott gives prominence to the character of Charlotte; Billy Buttons is excellently portrayed by Mr Densley Russell; Mr Laurie Leslie as Baron Bluster is good; Miss Dolly Harcourt well impersonates Lord Johnny Spoof; Master Harry Pleon makes a smart Augustus; and Gagam and Scragem are well portrayed by Messrs Ferris and Farnley. The scenery is very pretty.

SHEERNESS.

COLISEUM.—Sole Proprietor, Mr T. C. Dorling; Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—A programme brimful of novelties is provided here for the Christmas holidays, and includes Wirson a clever equilibrist, Wragg and Wragg, military athletes furnish a grand display of swordsmanship; Newland Major, ventriloquist, is responsible for a fund of amusement; Johnny Hanson and company in the sketch, Captain Bronson, are capitally received; the Melvernes with their Liliputian wonders are very amusing; and Helm and Cozens, musical sketch artists, also score. Sleath and Aldin, comedy sketch artists; Dora Cameron, illuminated song artist; Miss Alma Bignell, comedienne; Edgar Granville, comedian; and Mark Merritt, comedian, also contribute to a most successful programme.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr P. Raymond.—Amongst the principal attractions submitted to the patrons of this popular place of amusement are the Frank Purcell company of sketch artists, in the amusing farce, Brown, the Bigamist. Similar honours are likewise due to Fanny Newnes and company, in the sketch, The Lady and the Pro. Mr Frank Wynford, eccentric comedian; and Will Munday, comedian, with others, furnish the remainder of the bill.

SHEFFIELD.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—On Boxing Day Mr C. P. Levilly's company began a fortnight's engagement with Amorelle, which was again cordially received by a large and enthusiastic audience. That popular favourite Mr Eric Thorne fairly let himself go in the funny rôle of Dr. Crow, and he kept the house in roars of laughter. Miss Stella Gastelle, who was warmly welcomed, made a bright and bewitching Amorelle, and her melodious voice was heard to great advantage in Audran's charming music. Mr John Doran acted and sang with care and sympathetic expression, and very successful were Miss Madge Avery, Miss Kitty Cavendish, Mr Newton Ide, Mr Fred Seymour, and Mr Gerald Clifford. The opera was beautifully mounted, and band and chorus, under the direction of Mr H. Rushworth, were up to the standard.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The Christmas scheme of amusement here was on a very generous plan, the following clever performers being scheduled:—Frank Hilbert, in a smart exposition of the methods of prison-breaking; Charles Stevens, vocal comedian; Daisy May, coon singer; Katie Butler, serio-comic; Mdlle. Nello, a clever contortionist; the Three Sisters Slater, instrumentalists and dancers; A. T. Fiske and Nelly M'Donnagh, in a comic sketch; the Milons, equilibrists; and Daisy Mayer, a smart American comedienne.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The artistes engaged for the holiday week were Ashley's Stage Circus, Nelly Elder, Mart Marvin, Harry Cotton, the Three Sisters Lee, Leslie Murray, and Pallister's Royal Cinématograph.

ALBERT HALL.—Messrs Harry and Fred Poole's famous myriorama and variety aggregation opened to a packed house on Boxing Day. The realistic new scenes were much applauded, and the latest films of the Russo-Japanese war excited much interest. The variety company included the marvellous Wortley-Bayer Troupe of gymnasts; the Two Mitsutas, Jap jugglers; the Snow Family, trick and comic skaters; Professor Houston, magician; Takergero and Commie, in a thrilling ladder act; the celebrated French Troupe of cyclists; and Frank Lyndon, musical entertainer.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Mr Chas. Macdona's company opened here on Monday in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr Steane Louch acted and sang well as Hang Chow; Mr Louis Ashmeade was a capable Chippie Chop; Mr Maxwell Stewart was droll and successful as Hi Lung; Mr Arthur Foote was bright and satisfactory as Tom Hatherton; Mr Sidney Burt made an amusing Mr Pineapple; and Mr W. Ross as a coolie was satisfactory. Miss Ettie Cinders was rightly placed as Fi-Fi, and she extracted plenty of fun from this low comedy part; Miss Ethel Dunbar looked well and sang sweetly as Soo-Soo; Miss Haidee Heath was pleasing as Mi-Mi; Miss Love and Miss Jean Templeton were a bright and attractive pair as Sing-Sing and Yen-Yen; Miss Dulcie Garland played with ability the rôle of Mrs Brown; Miss Daisy Dale and Miss Marie Ford were attractive bridesmaids; and Miss Alicia Norton made the most of her opportunities as Mrs Pineapple. A coon song and dance was a feature of the piece.

SMETHWICK.

ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr C. Barnard; Manager, Mr E. Hewitson.—For the Christmas holidays the management has secured a great attraction in a visit of Mr Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company in The Christian. Chief interest was centred in the admirable embodiment of John Storm by that popular actor Mr Hilliard Vox and the clever and artistic delineation of Glory Quayle by Miss Grace Chalmers. A special word of praise must be given to Miss Gertrude Homewood for her natural representation of Polly Love. Mr Charles Hill made the most of Parson Quayle. Mr Stanley Radcliffe proved eminently successful as Father Lamplugh. Mr Charles B. Bedells cleverly sustained the rôle of Lord Robert Ure. Mr. Jackson Wilcox gave a capital representation of Horatio Drake. Mr Oswald Marshall submitted a good rendering of Mr Lorimer. Miss Clara Nicholls was a pleasing Mrs Callander. Miss May Weir as Aggie Jones created much merriment.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—For the holiday week Mr Charles Macdona's company is fulfilling an engagement here in the sparkling musical comedy The School Girl, which was very ably presented on Monday night. The various prominent characters were all excellently depicted, and the new dresses and scenery added much to the enjoyment of the production.

HIPPODROME, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs Murray King and Clark; General Manager, Mr A. Cuthbert.—A capital programme is provided here for the Christmas week, foremost amongst the artistes engaged being Onda and Artell in their trapeze act; Zasma and Mdlle. De Lorne in an excellent ring act; Mdlle. Fraco, equestrienne; R klaw, rolling globe act; Weld and Wynne, comedy jugglers; Leonard's performing dogs; and Comical Walker's acrobats.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—The strong drama entitled When Woman Hates, abounding in sensational incidents, is being presented here by Miss Nettie Ware and company. Overflowing audiences have shown great appreciation of Miss Ware's vivid portrayal of the handsome fiend, Dora Daintry. Mr William Yates scores as General Sir Henry Rokeby, Bart. Mr John B. Shinton is in every respect capital as Lieutenant Fred Rokeby, R.N. The part of Godfrey Lawton is safely entrusted to Mr Oscar Ayde. Mr Will Percy cleverly sustains the idiosyncrasies of Patrick O'Brien. Miss Jennie Hughes and Miss Louise Brandon in their respective parts of Marie Rokeby and Edith Rokeby lend excellent support.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—In Mr Joe Peterman's Belle of the Orient we have a varied performance which is drawing crowds nightly. Geo. Newburn is well known here, and his clever imitations never fail to attract. Margaret Ashton, American comedienne, secures a host of admirers. Mueller and Coyne are amusing knockabouts. The Raies, dancers; Chas. Vincent, comedian; and the Bioscope successfully complete the bill.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—The Alskarno Trio constitute the principal turn here. Their acrobatic feats are well received. The Earles, including Miss Fanny Earle, lady banjoist, display ability of a high order. T. W. Barrett, comedian, is clever; Lydia Dudley is a funny low comedy artiste; the Dunvilles appear in a good musical act; and J. P. Carroll, the military tambourine player, and A. P. Boswell, the black furniture shifter, submit turns to the public taste.

ROYAL ASSEMBLY HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions opened to a large audience on Boxing Day. The dioramic effects are beautiful, and the marked approval of the audience is clearly made manifest. Living pictures and a good variety performance are noticeable additions towards the evening's enjoyment.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; General Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—Mr F. S. Gilbert's opera company is providing a good programme this week. In Maritana, on Monday, the title-rôle was excellently taken by Miss Mary D'Alcourt. Mr F. S. Gilbert scored heavily as Don Cæsar; Mr F. Halpin's efforts as the King of Spain were fully appreciated; Miss Clairette Florence's Lazarillo was very effective; Mr Fletcher Sansome and Mr Stuart Bolton were good as Don Jose and Marquis; and other rôles were well handled by Miss Kate White, Mr E. Davies, and Mr E. Fredericks. Faust, The Bohemian Girl, The Daughter of the Regiment, and Satanella are also in the repertory of the company.

ST. HELENS.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—Heading the bill here this week are the Three Juggling Geraldos. Mr Herbert La Martine, vocalist and eccentric dancer, is also a good attraction. Others in an excellent company include Mr Andy Fagan; Miss Mabel La Blanche, vocalist; Mr Baker Belphor, Sisters Redfern, Mr Harry Hayton, and Henri Bekker.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Revill.—Pantomime reigns here in Messrs Dottridge and Longden's Forty Thieves, which was presented on Monday night, and at once achieved a remarkable success. It is brimful of up-to-date songs and delightful music, whilst the talented combination responsible for the principal characters make it throughout exceedingly merry and amusing. Mr Ernie Myers as Fitz Hassarac stands out prominently among the comedians, his comicalities and funny sayings causing the heartiest laughter. Mr James Danvers is quietly funny as Ali Baba, and Mr Forsyth Bruce is distinctly clever in his impersonation of Cassim. Miss Dolly Elsworthy is a sprightly principal boy, Ganem, and Abdallah, the captain of the "Forty," has a pleasing representative in Miss Cissy Kingsley. Morgiana is charmingly impersonated by Miss Lily Lonsdale, who is a delightful vocalist, her songs being listened to with genuine pleasure and much appreciation. Miss May Fallowfield as Zorilda and Miss Ada Beaumont as Fizzali are both successful. Among the specialities are the Ichmed troupe of Bedouin Arabs, who give a marvellous acrobatic performance; James Dubois, the man-monkey, in his wonderful rope performance, heartily applauded; and the Reed Oetzman Troupe in the comic sketch, En Voyage, a source of much boisterous fun.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr John F. Asche and company in the well-known Drury-lane drama, The World, are here. As Sir Clement Huntingford Mr Stuart Lomath makes a dashing hero; Mr Francis Hawley's Harry Huntingford is admirably acted; and Mr Jackson Hayes as Martin Bashford is also very meritorious. Longley, the lawyer, finds a clever exponent in Mr Adam Alexander, and Mr Henry Longford does well as Captain Pearson. As Miss Jewel Mr Bernard J. Lieli gives a capital portrayal, and is responsible for a good deal of fun. Miss Beatrice Fay as Mary Blythe plays in a very effective way; Miss Georgette Thierry does full justice to the rôle of Mabel Huntingford; and Miss Maud Scott scores as Ned. A speciality dance is given each evening in act five by Miss Ada Irving.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—The chief turn here should have been given by Mr Webster Bruce with his Mysterious Kettle, but owing to the non-arrival of liquid air this act could not be done. However, the Brothers Lang were engaged, and on Tuesday the Orpheus Glee Singers (a local troupe) appeared with great success. Other turns are done by Vasey and Ramsey, clever dancers; the Dalys, operatic vocalists; Bessie Travis, ventriloquist; the Bransbys, duettists; Ross and Lewis, in a smart musical and dancing show; and Payne's Bio with a selection of films.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—A fine bill is presented this week by Mr Egerton. At the head are the Royal Imperial Boys' Orchestra (Kilted Kiddies), under the direction of Herr Welhelm Linde. The selections are really excellent, and the sword dancing of Geo. Macfarlane is capital. Augustin and Hartley are seen in a clever barrel jumping exhibition, which is much appreciated; the Babuslau Bros. contribute a smart acrobatic and head-balancing turn; Angelina, a lady juggler, shows extraordinary ability in her line of business; Tom Owen is a smart comedian; Millie Howell sings her songs well; Wake and Dean are a pair of funny duettists; and The Factory Girl, a musical scene, is much appreciated. The pictures are, as usual, up to date.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton. — The attraction here is The Sledge-Hammer, under the direction of Messrs Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod. There are realistic effects and beautiful scenery. Mr Alfred Northway as Everard Derrick deserves warm congratulations on his delineation; Mr W. V. Garrod as Jacob Derrick gives an accomplished performance, receiving able assistance from Mr Charles Halling as Simon Derrick; Mr H. H. Barrington as Tom Walker has much to do with the success of the piece; Mr Frank Dallas makes an excellent Sammy Shaws; and Mr Lawrence Conrad plays effectively as John Merlo. Miss Martha Kingston is a pleasing Rose Maywell.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.

NEW KING'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, Sutton Theatre Syndicate; Managing Director, Captain Clayton; Manager, Mr Edward Grey. — Messrs Armadale and Warren's company is here for the holiday week in The Face at the Window. Chief amongst the artistes to be mentioned are Mr Augustine Knight, with a most artistic rendering of the part of Delgado; Mr T. W. Dunscombe as the detective Gouffet; Mr C. Allen Hineson, a droll Peter Pottlebury; and Barbette, played by Miss Gwynne Warren.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons, Limited; Lessees and Managers, Messrs E. Oswald Brooks and J. W. Woodbridge; Resident Partner, Mr E. Oswald Brooks.—The Christmas attra artistes winning warm applause. Miss Teify Davies was a pleasing Siebel, and Miss M. Moore was very good as Martha. Mephistopheles was ably represented by Mr Charles Tilbury, as was Valentine by Mr Walter Barrett. The chorus is a capital one, and, with the augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr Harrison Frewin, the performance was very successful and enjoyable. On Monday night The Bohemian Girl was performed, and for the rest of the week the operas are Tannhäuser, Carmen, The Daughter of the Regiment, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Maritana.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—At this house for the Bank Holiday week the lessee's own company is providing the attraction in presenting Mr George A. De Grey's new domestic drama A Woman's Devotion. Two performances were given on Boxing Day to crowded houses.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The strong programme here includes Tilly Bébé, with her troupe of twelve performing lions; Morton and Elliott, harmonica players and vocalists; Lily Marney, comedienne; the American Bioscope, the Selbinis, a clever troupe of acrobats and cyclists; Auto and Mobil, the original comedy motorists; Virto and his daughter, Irene, clever instrumentalists; Wilson Hallett, and Theo Hardeen, expert handcuff and trunk manipulator.

PALACE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr T. W. Grantham.—The programme arranged for this house for the current week includes Miss Geraldine Montrose and company, in their sensational dramatic episode, The Snake; Harry Carmen, comedian; Daisy Lane, chic comedienne; Vernon's animated pictures, Laffan B. Jolly, the laughing comedian; Millie Vareoe, Tyrolean singer; Winur, equilibrist and hand balancer; and Mdlle. Thelma, lady clay modeller.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr Fred H. Lucas.—The new season opened on Boxing Day at this house, when a crowded and characteristic holiday audience witnessed the first production in this town of Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson's new drama The Revenge. The elaborate staging and the exquisite dresses and costumes form a very strong feature of the piece, which is of a military nature, and goes with a decidedly good swing throughout, under the personal direction of the talented author. It was played by an excellent company, headed by Mr Edward Hill-Mitchelson, who had been paid a large fee to give his admirable impersonation of Prince Orloff during the week. Another part which received excellent treatment was that of Captain Vanessa, the blind soldier, by Mr Wellesley Draper; while Miss Grace Aimers as Lieutenant Maurize was seen to considerable advantage. To Miss Violet Carlyle was entrusted the delineation of the Queen, which was brightly marked with grace and dignity; and Miss Frances White submitted a remarkably strong and clever study of the wicked Draga Vanessa. Miss L. Atheling was pleasing as Tusha, and Miss Ada Douglas (Olga) and Miss Alice Barber (Cora) also did well. Mr T. W. Hurst deserved every credit for his fine Captain Carr, R.N., and his duties as stage-manager. Mr Theo Balfour as the King and Mr Alfred M'Cullough as Count Mussant made the most of their parts; while Mr Fred Yarnold achieved a great success as Jim Jennings, A.B., being the cause of much fun throughout the play.

TON-Y-PANDY.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr S. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr H. Counsell.—It would be difficult to secure a more suitable holiday attraction than The Traitor as presented by Messrs Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company. The title-rôle is treated powerfully by Mr S. E. Scanlan; Prince Rudolph is safely entrusted to Mr Jno. C. Carlyle; Mr E. Jenner presents Captain Ross, R.N., in a praiseworthy manner; and Jack Boult is well assumed by Mr Frank Sutherland. Miss Ruth Shepherd gives a forcible rendering of Zula, the avenger, and the Countess Zicka of Miss L. Rosselle is meritorious.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; Sole Lessee, Miss Alexandra; Managing-Director, Mr Dd. Taylor.—After two seasons as a variety theatre the above house was reopened on Monday under the management of the originators. Prominent in the bill are the Brothers Lloyd, cable artistes, and the Moxon family of acrobats, who each gain rounds of applause for their clever work. The Two Jetneys, coon singers and sand dancers, add to their already great popularity; the Francois troupe of acrobats are very smart; and Souplesse proves her claim to be a boneless wonder. La Place is a prime favourite.

TORQUAY.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing Director, Mr R. Snowdon; Secretary, Mr A. Pearse.—Mr Herbert Barrs produced his fifth annual pantomime on Boxing Day, and in Cinderella he has found a charming subject, which he has treated to the best possible advantage. The scenery calls for special comment, and Mr D. S. Bradley, the artist, is to be complimented on the realistic representations of some beautiful views of the river Dart and Torbay. In the name-part Miss Winnie Willett is graceful to a degree, and her successful suitor, Prince Charming, is dashingly represented by Miss Tessie Vandean. These ladies, with Miss Louie Counsell as the beautiful Fairy Godmother, supply the pretty numbers, which include "Blue Bell" and "The Boys' Brigade." A quartet of comics ably provide the fun of the pantomime, Mr Oscar Mills and Mr Walter Langford being the Ugly Sisters, Mr Carl Fredericks the Baron, and Mr Paul Pry, Buttons the Page. There are several pretty ballets, dances, and specialities, and amongst the latter may be mentioned the Ya Pyn Keto Family, the Oriental magicians; the Casino Girl Dancers; Madame Cordelia, the chameleon sylph; John Bull, ventriloquist; and Fred Mason, the marvellous whistler. The pantomime is lavishly mounted, the fairy coach, brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, being drawn by a pair of Dartmoor ponies in silver-mounted harness. Mr Barrs is responsible for the "book," and Mr H. L. Gibson, who conducts, for the music.

VENTNOR (I.O.W.).

GRAND PAVILION.—On Monday and two following nights a variety entertainment was given here. Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show was reproduced on the Biograph; and the following artistes also contributed:—Miss Lilly Carrick, a winsome comedienne and dancer; Mr Gilroy, ventriloquist, with his "naughty boy;" and Mr Tom Carrick, a capital comedian. The entertainment was under the management of Mr Neville, and Mr Somerville Ellis was the pianist.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs Paumier and Howard's company in the stirring drama Under the Russian Flag is here this week. The part of Demetrius is ably filled by Mr Walter Howard; Ivan and Mitchell are well portrayed by Mr F. W. Freeman and Mr Geo. Arthur respectively; Miss Ellen Snow is seen to advantage as Lulu Marishla; and Miss Ada Champion acts with ability as Vera Vassiloff.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wakefield Hippodrome, Limited; Manager, Mr D. G. Mooney.—Miss Maggie Duggan, burlesque artiste, appeared in this city for the first time on Monday, when she received a hearty ovation and sang her songs in her usual smart style. Zanfretta and Napio appear in an amusing musical turn; Miss Francess Haskoll's illustrated songs win applause. The Three Sisters Le Graham, vocalists and acrobatic dancers, provide an enjoyable turn; the Three Schaffers perform clever feats of strength; Mr Geo. Barron, comedian, is well received; and Miss Gracie Logan, comedienne and dancer, wins favour.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Company, Limited; General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr John Walters's company is here in Cinderella. Miss Florence Drew acts, sings, and dances pleasingly. Miss Constance St. Bride makes a vivacious Prince Charming. A dashing Dandini is Miss Billy Linn; Miss Dolly Linn is a capital Flighty Flirt; the Two Ugly Sisters are amusingly represented by Messrs Arthur Hickman and T. H. Solly; Mr Geo. Reeves as the Baron Wheresmecash is very successful. Messrs Clarence and Bell are well received. The pantomime is produced under the stage direction of Mr Bert Albert Mutley.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Miss Renee Glendower and company is here this week with The Ladder of Life. Mr Tyrone Power makes a capital General Gordon; Mr Rolf Gascoigne is an eminently satisfactory Colonel M'Gregor; as Fergus Gordon Mr C. H. Matthews is all that can be desired; Mr Roy Milton is seen to advantage as David Gordon; and Mr J. Cooke Hinton is well placed as Ivan Kirkeritch; Miss Renee Glendower makes a highly successful Mother Flint; the part of Meg Merriles is played in a creditable manner by Miss Flora Leslie; and Miss Stephanie Baring ably sustains that of Dora Sobrinski. Those well-known acrobats the Feros are also well received.

WALTHAMSTOW.

KING'S THEATRE.—It is a long time since the boards of the King's have been occupied by such a good rollicking pantomime as Little Red Riding Hood. The company engaged includes a whole host of capable comedians, a fascinating principal boy and girl, and no end of pretty faces. The music, arranged and composed by Mr Sheridan Gordon, goes with great spirit. The scenery and effects are by J. S. Vale, R. William and assistants, the traps, harlequinade, and animals by the Harry Montague Troupe; the costumes by Alias, Madame Mey and Louis Benjamin, and the ballets by the Pansey Troupe. As Sir Goose Green Mr Robert Williams scores all along the line. With an admirable make-up and an inexhaustible flow of spirits, Mr Williams keeps his audience in a constant state of hilarity. He is splendidly seconded by Mr Bob Hall as Master Goosey, than whom no more diverting comedian has been seen here. The Jonathan Wisenut of Mr George Mayes is a very quaint and amusing impersonation. Mr W. Hatheville is capital as Mr Bluepoint Porgan and the Wolf in disguise. Mr J. Gill and Mr L. Delvoy are an amusing pair of ruffians as Tommy Nothing and Tommy Less. The Little Red Riding Hood of Miss Trixie Toole is a charming performance, and the Boy Blue of Miss Ruth Wallace is delightfully arch and spirited. A very pretty rendering of the Spirit of Good Luck is given by a small actress, Miss Hazel Kirke, who sings marvellously well for one of such immature years. One of the best "dames" we have seen is the Dame of Mr Billy Taylor, whose acting never exceeded the bounds of delicacy and yet was extremely funny throughout. Miss Carmen Sylvia and Miss Nellie Charteris also appear with acceptance. The transformation scene is entitled The Birth of the Rising Sun, and is a very fine set. The harlequinade is provided by Mr Harry Montague (clown), and company. Mr Billie Taylor is stage-manager for the production, and Councillor George W. Crump as business-manager of the theatre, looks carefully after the interests of the crowded audiences.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company is proving a capital attraction this week in the domestic drama, The Midnight Mail. Mr George Harvard scores well as Harry Steyne, and a really clever character sketch of Billy Brewer, the drunken stoker, is submitted by Mr Fred G. Evison. Mr Alec Alves is well placed at Leonard Royle, and Mr Arthur Gilroy makes the most of the Turkish adventurer, Hassan Padisha. Miss Ada Oakley acts naturally the trying rôle of Mary Steyne, and Miss Violet Clayton is a dignified Lady Phyllis Eustace. Miss Mildred Carr infuses plenty of dash into the character of Nancy Brewer. The staging is very effective, and the minor parts are ably sustained.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—Hanco, the gaol breaker, is the chief attraction here this week. The Sisters Russell are clever exponents of burlesque and low comedy, and Henri is a wonderful juggler. Fox and Melville, song illustrators; Frank Melton, comedian; Brothers Hannaway, vocalists; J. W. Bray, vocalist; and the Royal Bioscope complete a capital programme.

PARR HALL.—Sole Lessee, Mr J. Lyon Whittle.—Mr J. H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy Children are here this week, and excellent turns are also given by the Lizzette Troupe of acrobats; Elsie Rubina, wire walker; the Poole Sisters, dancers; Sam Paul, coon artiste; the Musical Keiths; Fred M'Leary, comedian; and the Comedy Trio.

WATERFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr John Collins.—Mr Edmund Tearle's company is here. On Monday The Three Musketeers was performed. Messrs Tearle and Benson and Miss Kate Clinton were conspicuous for their ability. On Tuesday Ingomar was given. Virginius, Under the Red Robe, and Jeannie Deans are also in the bill.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—On Boxing Night Mr Gus Levaine's up-to-date pantomime Sinbad the Sailor opened here to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Miss Kitty Bishop makes a sprightly and bewitching Sinbad; Mr Ernie Clyde as Tinbad the Tailor creates roars of laughter; Old Mother Sinbad is effectively portrayed by Mr Ernie Howard; Mr Edward Haswell gives an ideal rendering of Captain Kettle; and Mr Chas. Arnett as the First Mate, Nothing, is highly commendable. Mr Stuart Charles as Rajah Rhum is excellent; Miss Flo Richardson as Fatima and Miss Lizzie Lind as Dorothy are excellently suited in their respective parts. Miss Elsie Ide makes a charming Prince Izod. The specialities include the Great Zola Troupe of Herculean dancers; Lance and Lane, acrobatic top boot experts; the Bertinis, in their novel musical act; Ashby and Hearne, in their statuette performance; and Mdlle. Alberta, in her telephone wire entertainment.

WEST BROMWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. P. Moore.—Douglas Bruce's company, in A Girl's Cross Roads, is this week playing to crowded houses here. Mr Geo. Gaisford in the rôle of Jack Livingstone submits a powerful piece of acting. The villainous Cuthbert Lumley is cleverly sustained by Mr W. Fraser-Brunner. The Barbara Wade of Miss Lilly Hammersley is deserving of great praise. Miss Kate Walford gives satisfaction in the character of Nellie Meadows; Mr Will Corrie is good as Toby Turner; Miss Ethel Bracewell as Constance Cornell is most artistic and consistent in the part; and Mr W. E. Griffiths gives a fine portrayal of John Meadows.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr Fred Conneaux. A house filled to overflowing on Monday testified to their appreciation of the fare provided here for the festive season, when Mr Godfrey Lamplugh's company presented Miss Mischief, in which Miss Evelyn Hughes gives a dainty and vivacious rendering of the name-role. Although working at a great disadvantage through suffering from severe hoarseness, Miss Crissie Francias thoroughly ingratiated herself into the favour of her audience with her charming acting as Mary Ann Smith. Miss Eileen Guilbert gives a capital rendering of the rôle of Lady Orrey. Excellent comedy work is done by Mr T. E. Conover as Private Harris. Mr Harold Stanley as Admiral Sir Hannibal Bethune looks and plays the part admirably. Captain Jack Bethune is capitally acted by Mr Cecil Curtiss, and Lord Percy Fitzsherry has a capable exponent in Mr Fred Mantell.

PALACE. — Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—A strong array of talent for the holiday attraction is headed by the Tom Davis Trio of cyclists, who go through their daring performance on the teacup track amidst breathless excitement. Harry Tate's company, in their irresistibly funny skit on Motoring, keep the audience in one continued ripple of merriment. Lovers of music are amply provided for by Prosper Benn in his performance on bells and glasses. Some neat and attractive national dancing is done by Clark and Argyle; a clever acrobatic turn is contributed by the Novels. Cissie Reece, dancer; Marie Joyce, burlesque artiste; and J. D. Pedley, comedian, have gratifying receptions; and an extra turn is done by Emily Allen, a dainty artiste with a sweet voice and taking style.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

VICTORIA HALL.—Manager, Mr E. W. Sully — Mr Cecil Clayton's touring pantomime company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in Cinderella. In the name part Miss Cameron was satisfactory, and Miss Lottie Mellor was a pleasing Prince Charming. As Dandini Miss May did well, and Miss Gertrude Gray deserves special mention as Fairy Sunshine, her singing being decidedly good. Mr Herbert Colley worked very hard as Baron Loweralotte, as did Mr Mark Twain as Pimples. Mr Harry May as Gertie and Mr Ernest Thirlway as Lily caused considerable fun as the ugly daughters. The dresses were pretty, and the scenery was excellent.

WEYMOUTH.

ROYAL VICTORIA JUBILEE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. R. Wallis.—A capital pantomime was the verdict of everyone who witnessed the production of Messrs Thomson and Hunter's Aladdin. The book in the main follows the well-known lines of the story, but the amusing features introduced by clever artists in all sorts of places and times are equal to the best we have ever seen here. The scenery, too, is exceptionally worthy of the pantomime, especially scene six, The Jewel Grotto. The music by Mr Sparrow Harris is bright and pleasing; and the whole works well under the able stage-management of Mr Chas. Wood, who also plays Abanazar with excellent effect. Aladdin's part is in the hands of Miss Beatrice Varley, who looks and acts the character to perfection; Miss E. Cameron as the Princess Badroulbadour is equally good; Widow Twankey is played by Mr A. Williams, an actor who manages to extract a considerable amount of humour from the part; Miss Edith Isabelle makes an attractive Pekoe; Miss Emay Isabelle is very winsome as Nicey; and the Emperor and his Vizier, in the persons of Mr Will Dale and Mr Will D'Argan provide much amusement. The ballets are well arranged, and the varieties in the Palace scene are much above the average. Goliath well justifies his name, and the turn of Dale and D'Argan is very funny. The Geisha Girls dance prettily.

WHITEHAVEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—A strong attraction has been secured here for the holidays in the appearance of Mr Chas. Macdona's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr G. P. Ascot appears successfully as Mr Pineapple, his song, "The Happy Land," meeting with the usual encore. Mr H. Welchman makes a manly Tom Hatherton, and Mr Lester Carey is good as the Emperor. Mr Percy Stephens as Chippie-Chop and Mr Tom Birch as Hi-Lung are both capable in their respective characters, and Miss Julie St. George gives a good performance as Mrs Brown. Miss Mabel Florence makes a bewitching Mrs Pineapple, and Miss Mamie Finbow is a charming Princess. The scenery and dresses are elaborate, and the chorus is strong.

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—The Court Theatre this week is occupied by Mr J. Gar Kiddie's comic pantomime, Little Bo Peep, by George Burton. The audiences during the week have been large, and the pantomime has been greatly appreciated.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—An excellent bill-of-fare is provided this week. The Rushworths, with their picture songs, have attracted large audiences; the Norman and Leonard Trio, in their latest London success, The Itinerant, give an acceptable performance; Renson and Waite are excellent variety artistes; and Alice Lorette, with prize dog Ben; Harry Grey, "the Australian Nugget;" Ella Dean, a charming contralto; and King Leo, singing ventriloquist, are capital performers. The Bros. O'Brien are unrivalled triple bar performers, and Haig and Novel in a comedy act, and Carl Howard, the funny and original lazy conjuror, are popular. The Hippodrome pictures include a grand pantomime story in colours entitled "The Sleeping Beauty."

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr W. Birchall.—O'Connor and Traynor, eccentric comedians and burlesque boxers, give an acceptable performance. Les Prinellos have a beautiful cornfield scene for their sketch entitled A Country Flirtation; and Alice Townend, vocalist; Charlie Alden, comedian; Rene Allen, comedienne; Fred Burnard, vocal actor; and Harry Corley, comedian, complete a good programme.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—On Boxing Day Mr Milton Bode's pantomime of Cinderella was produced here, the book being by Mr Stanley Rogers. The production is full of go, has excellent scenery, and a good company, with bright dresses and pleasing songs. The part of Cinderella is attractively played by Miss Florence Beech, and her vocal efforts are much appreciated. Miss Hebe Bliss makes a capital Prince Brilliant, her songs being very well rendered. As Dandini Miss Marie Reeves is an attraction of no mean order, and her coon song goes with a swing. Miss Blanch Marion as Rosie Romp dances in effective style. As Baron Balmy Mr Leo Sterling is a host in himself, while Mr John Nolan and Mr Percy Dawsone as the step sisters are also well to the fore. Mr George Antill does admirably as Capers, and Messrs Lanton and Lane as Perks and Pinchit create plenty of diversion. Among other special attractions are Miss Maud Dewey, lady whistler; Major Harry Sitherland, rifle and bâton manipulator; and Bert Woodward, coon trick cyclist. A word of praise should also be given to the Fairy Godmother, Miss Addie Love. The pantomime should prove very popular.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Mr Fred Benton and Mr F. J. Little; Business Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—On Christmas Eve a new departure was made here by the introduction of a hippodrome and circus, together with a variety entertainment. Two performances are given each evening.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—The holiday attractions include Martin Conway, comedienne; Arabella Allen, in character sketches; Charles Serre, equilibrist; Karl Hooper's pose plastiques; Field and Lewis, American burlesque artistes; and Harrigan and Holt, comedians. M. Gintaro, Japanese society juggler; and Great Anthy also appear; while Ruffell's Bioscope shows some amusing films.

WORCESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant Manager, Mr Le Warde.—The pantomime here is Sinbad the Sailor, which was presented on Boxing Day to overflowing audiences by Mr Mouillot's efficient company, and in a most attractive style as regards scenery, costumes, and general mounting. The principal ballet scene, entitled "Nature's Gifts," is generally voted one of the best ever seen in local pantomime, while there are several other pretty scenes, including one in which a dance with scarves or sashes is introduced, and the concluding spectacle, "The Palace of 1,000 Eyes," is gorgeous in its effects. Miss Florence Dillon is Sinbad, and pleases all with her acting and songs, the favourite of which, "Sammy," has a good chorus, and is bound to be popular. As the Princess, Miss Ada Brennan is clever and charming, and her principal song, "For she had such a taking way," is capitally rendered. "Innocence," a song and dance, is also good. Miss Humphries appears as Zorilda, and introduces a pretty feature, a lullaby doll song, in which local children take part. Of the principal male characters that of Mrs Sinbad (Mr S. Fitzgerald) is distinctly well played, and he is well supported by Tinbad (Mr J. R. Val); also Messrs Denby and Dent (Captain Bunker and Mate Shirker). Their business and songs are very amusing, and valuable aid in this department is afforded by Mr A. Murray (the Bashaw) and Mr A. M. Moore (Old Man of the Sea). The author is Mr F. L. Moreton, and Messrs W. Damant and V. Dare are responsible for the arrangement and selection of the music.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—On Monday night Mr C. Macdona's company appeared in A Country Girl. Mr Guy Williams was good as Geoffrey, and equally so Mr J. Parson as the Rajah. Mr W. Champney was excellent as Barry, his rich fund of humour causing hearty laughter. Mr W. Bosco was satisfactory as Sir Joseph; Miss Kathleen Comber in the part of Nan played with vigour, and her singing was greatly admired; Miss Beatrice Rowe was graceful as Marjorie; Miss Gertrude De Lucy was a charming Princess. The chorus was good, and the dresses and mounting excellent.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Helsby Wright.—Mr and Mrs Chalmers Mackey are paying a successful return visit in Wearin' o' the Green. As Barney he was immensely popular; Mrs Mackey's rendition of Norah was delightful; Mr R. Garland was manly as Shamus; Mr J. S. Chamberlain was powerful and convincing as Kenny. The competent cast also included Mr C. Hastings, Mr H. Sainsbury, Mr Henry Danson, Miss L. Stanhope, Miss K. Clare, Miss N. Moore, Miss M. Russell, and Miss A. Liddon.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company was here the first three days of the week, presenting A Country Mouse. As the Hon. Archibald Vyse Mr Chas. Howitt was good, as was Mr Evelyn Vernon as the Duke of St. Kitts. Mr Chas. Harley, an old favourite, is still excellent as John Bowlby. Mr John E. Watson scored as Jephcot. The Angela of Miss Violet M. Harley deserves the highest praise. On Thursday Oh, Susannah, was presented by Mr and Mrs Drew Mackintosh's company.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—With every prospect of a huge success Mr A. E. Smith produced Aladdin on Monday before large and well-pleased audiences. The management in placing the arrangement of the show in the hands of Mr Smith were well advised, for he has presented before the public a thoroughly lively, smart, and up-to-date pantomime, brimful of novelty, and bristling with fun. Miss Teresa Reeden claims first attention. Her conception of the title-rôle is a most happy one. Lively in style and full of go, Miss Reeden must at once be written down a distinct success. She is the bright particular star of the pantomime. Miss Elsie Douglas makes a pretty Princess, and sings tastefully and with good effect, her efforts being highly appreciated. As the Fairy Miss Maud Bettison had ample opportunities of displaying her undoubted vocal talents, and was well received. Miss Fannie Douglas is also entitled to praise for her dainty rendering of Pekoe. Of the gentleman Mr Fred Ramsdale stands out prominently and gives a clever impersonation of Twankey, who, in his hands, is a most amusing personage. Mr J. H. Maxwell puts plenty of life into the rôle of Abanazar, and on the whole is to be credited with giving a clever performance. Mr Teddy Lennon is the Vizier and Mr Fred Arnold the Emperor, whilst the Brothers Taylor as two policemen cause some amusement. Special turns are given by Miss Reeden, Brothers Taylor, Maud Bettison, Arnold, Elsie Douglas, the Four Snowdrops, Teddy Lennon, and Mr J. H. Maxwell.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company before crowded and enthusiastic audiences presented the Christmas pantomime Cinderella, which is full of bright, catchy music and songs and sparkling flashes of wit. Miss Dot Harradine is a pretty and winning Cinderella, and she soon established herself a favourite with the audience. The charming style and splendid figure of Miss Mabel Englehardt makes Prince Rudolph a very pleasing personality. Miss Hettie Zillwood as Dandini and Miss Edith Harmer as Fairy Delight are vocalists of much merit and act in a graceful manner. Mr Ernie Mayne as Buttons and Mr Tatten Hall as Baron Hardup are the principal fun purveyors, and they are heartily applauded for their untiring efforts. Mr Fred Spencer and Mr Tom Owen as the Ugly Sisters are distinctly amusing; whilst never stooping to vulgarity, they stand out prominently, and are comedians of vast resource. The other parts are in capable hands.

EXHIBITION LARGE HALL.—The third annual visit of Mr Joseph Poole's popular Myriorama is again a huge success. The show is thoroughly up-to-date, and includes the following successful turns:—Zelda, a clever musician; Captain Carl Howlet's marionettes; Wal Owen, Sulli and Saroni, comedians.

FOOTBALL.

BRISTOL X.L.C.R. AND HARRY HARE'S ORCHESTRAL BAND ATHLETIC CLUBS V. MUSIC HALLS A.F.C.

Played on Clifton Downs on Dec. 24. Harry Hare was able to assist his club. The following were the teams:—

Bristol X.L.C.R. and Harry Hare's Orchestral Band Athletic Clubs.—H. Belding, goal; A. Cox and A. Hamlin (captain), backs; W. Miller, H. Slade, and A. E. Bailey, half-backs; H. Clements, J. Aubrey, H. Edwards E. Belding, and L. Hamlin, forwards.

Music Halls A.F.C.—F. B. Nicholls, goal; T. Denton and F. Thorne (of Bristol X.L.C.R. Second A.F.C.), backs; T. Neagle (captain), W. Hinder, and J. Lacey, half-backs; D. O'Connor, F. Hansford, G. Anstey, P. Reardon, and W. Meadows, forwards.

Referee, H. Hare (Bristol X.L.C.R. Athletic Club). Linesmen, S. Carter and J. Stuart. Result:—Bristol X.L.C.R. and Harrry Hare's Orchestral Band Athletic Clubs, one goal; Music Halls A.F.C., two goals. Messrs H. Clements and J. Lacey (two) scored the goals for their respective sides.

A NEW drama entitled The Vacant Chair, by Theodore Kremer, author of The Fatal Wedding, was produced for copyright purposes at Her Majesty's Theatre, Walsall, on Nov. 4.

NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS.

M. WITMARK AND SONS

EXTEND BEST WISHES FOR HEALTH AND PROSPERITY TO
THE MANY ARTISTS AND MANAGERS WHO HAVE GLADDENED THE PUBLIC BY USING

THE WITMARK SONGS.

LONDON HAS SUSTAINED THE PROVINCIAL VERDICT.

BY THE OLD OAK-TREE
and
HONEYMOON HALL,
the First Night Hits in
"PEGGY MACHREE"
at WYNDHAM'S THEATRE.
Sung by
MISS MARIE DAINTON.

Daily Telegraph, Dec. 29, 1904.
The chief lyrical success of the evening was won by "The Old Oak Tree," a ditty of the Letty Lind type, which suggested American, rather than Irish, authorship. The song in question was very daintily sung by Miss Marie Dainton.

Pall Mall Gazette, Dec. 29, 1904.
One song, "Honeymoon Hall," beautifully sung by Miss Marie Dainton, arrested our attention at once, not only by its essential prettiness, but also by the ingenuity with which from a humorous point it was treated. . . . In this act occurs a charming little melody entitled "By the old oak tree."

St. James's Gazette, Dec. 29, 1904.
"Honeymoon Hall" is stated to be an interpolated number. It is likely to be immensely popular.

Evening News, Dec. 29, 1904.
"Honeymoon Hall," charmingly sung and acted by Miss Marie Dainton, made a great hit.

Enormous Success of MISS MADGE LESSING,
in
GOOD-BYE, LITTLE GIRL, GOOD-BYE.
LONDON COLISEUM.
Absolutely the Finest Stage Setting ever given to a Single Song.
Instantaneous Hit at the PRINCE'S THEATRE, BRISTOL, of TESSIE,
as Sung by

Bristol News, Dec 26, 1904.
There are at least two such which she now introduces, and it will be surprising if they are not soon being whistled by the man in the street, to say nothing of the small boy. "Tessie" is a decided novelty, for after the second verse the refrain is taken up by a male voice "off," the said male voice being reproduced by means of a powerful and clear-toned gramaphone. The third verse gives the band an opportunity to raise laughter, and they make the most of it.

Bristol Times, Dec. 26, 1904.
"Tessie," as sung by Miss Lil Hawthorne, is sure to establish itself as a favourite, and the village band chorus is one of the funniest items of the evening.

The Singer of Novelty Songs,
MISS RACHEL LOWE,
Scores at KENNINGTON THEATRE
with
WHAT'S THE USE OF THAT, HUH?
and
MY LUCKY DUCK.

St. James's Gazette, Dec. 27, says:—
Miss Rachel Lowe is Aladdin, and her singing captured the crowded house last night with a quacking refrain by a live pet duck. Her song "My Lucky Duck" is one of the most novel things in Panto. Land.

The North Quickly Responds to MISS VERONICA BRADY, HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE, ABERDEEN,
when she is singing
and
I'LL BE YOUR DEW-DROP ROSY.

Catholic Herald says:—
Miss Brady made a hit with her first song, "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," and the large audience quickly caught up the chorus.

People's Journal, Aberdeen, says:—
"Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," and "I'll be Your Dew-drop Rosy" are the most fetching ditties in the pantomime.

Bon Accord, Dec. 13, 1904, says:—

MISS MAY MARS
Captured her Audience at the CROWN THEATRE, PECKHAM,
and

MISS CLAIRE ROMAINE
Scores with PENNIES,
BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

MISS ALICE LLOYD
